Super Salesman in Right Place for B.C. Birthday Kickoff

Amid Pasadena Roses, Bennett Sees Green

By IAN STREET
Colonist Legislative Reporter

PASADENA — It's perfectly in keeping with the picture most Canadians hold of Premier Bennett that he should be here in California to open British Columbia's Centennial 71 celebrations.

Another premier might have chosen to stand huddled against the New Year's Eve chill on the steps of the legislative buildings watching fireworks explode in the inky skies above Victoria.

But Bennett has his eye fixed on a maximum of 30 seconds of television exposure, to an audience of more than 100 million viewers, that comes with participation in the annual Tournament of Roses Parade held each New Year's Day.

The brash, huckster image belongs here among the razzle dazzle. Somehow, amid palms trees under blues skies.

"Greatest test of the 70s will be in finding jobs . . . and protecting our environment."

it doesn't seem quite so absurd that a centenary — which Bennett describes as the most important in Canada's history — should be kicked off this way so many hundreds of miles beyond our borders.

The choice, as he sees it, lies between a practical businesslike approach — with enormous potential returns in tourism from continent-wide television exposure — or being merely sentimental. Obviously, tourist dollars win hands down.

The premier, however, likes to take a back seat to no one in expressions of his attachment to British Columbia and Canada. In an exclusive interview with the Colonist, Bennett talked about his feelings on this province's future in Confederation. The premier also discussed events planned as part of the coming centenary which he believes will help cement our nationhood.

Centennial 71, Bennett said, is much more significant than the 1967 national birthday party which marked the centenary of Confederation. In the coming year, not only British Columbians but all Canadians are celebrating a century of true nationhood, starting with the creation in 1871 of Canada from sea to sea.

As protests mount against Spain six doomed Basques write . . .

'We Wish to Die'

MADRID — Six Basque nationalists under sentence of death have spurned clemency and expressed a desire to die for the dignity of man and the liberty of their native land, a Basque spokesman said Tuesday.

The development came as Gen. Francisco Franco met with his highest advisers to discuss the case of the six. He alone can commute death sentences.

Reuter news agency quoted informed sources as saying there were indications Franco would commute the sentences to 30 years.

A letter, purporting to come from one of the six, was made public in St. Jean de Luz, France, across the border from the Basque country, by Teleforo de Monzon, a leading Basque spokesman.

"We hope strongly that clemency will not be accorded," the letter said.

"We are revolutionaries. We wish to die for the dignity of man and the liberty of our Basque lands."

* * *

De Monzon said he believes the writer expressed the spirit of the other five, describing them "all as serene and determined as he."

Spain's Council of the Realm advised Franco Tuesday to commute the death sentences ordered for the six Basques, but the more powerful cabinet remained split on the issue, government sources reported.

* * *

Fascist Spain and Soviet Russia, two countries on opposite ends of the political spectrum, were both under increasing world-wide pressure Tuesday — to commute the death sentences for the Basques on one side and for two Russian Jews convicted of an airplane hijack plot on the other.

Appeals for clemency came from the Vatican, heads of state and trade unions.

* * *

European governments that spoke out against the death sentences and appealed to Spain for clemency included Britain, Israel, Switzerland, France, West Germany, Ireland, Italy, Sweden, Belgium, Austria, Norway, the Soviet Union and Yugoslavia.

Various organizations throughout the world, including the British Council of Churches, the British opposition Labor party, and the bishops of Denmark and Norway also sent telegrams to Franco on behalf of the Basques.

Basque sympathizers in major cities throughout Europe demonstrated against the verdict. In London, Cardiff, Glasgow, and Dublin, demonstrators settled in for long vigils outside Spanish embassies, bundling up under blankets against heavy sleet.

In Washington, the U.S. senate Tuesday night also protested death sentences handed out to the two Russian Jews and a congressman announced legislators from several countries plan to fly to Moscow to protest the treatment of Soviet Jewry.

In Ottawa, the Canadian government called in the Soviet ambassador Tuesday and delivered a formal protest against death sentences handed down to the two Russian Jews.

Six Lots Barred from Shelves

Imported Tuna Screened For Mercury

OTTAWA (CP) — Testing of all imported fish has resulted in six lots of tinned tuna being barred from the retail market because of mercury contamination, health authorities said Tuesday.

All were imported, either frozen for canning here or from Japanese or Cuban canners.

Conflicting news reports from Ottawa indicated domestic tuna was also involved, but this could not be confirmed.

A spokesman for the federal fisheries department inspection division in Vancouver elaborated on the official statement by explaining that although it might be possible some contaminated tuna could be on retail shelves now, it would not be a safety hazard.

"In the first place," he said, "the standards were set based on the assumption that a person would be eating a very large amount of tuna, as in Japan where fish and rice forms the diet of many people.

* * *

"But even if it were the sole source of diet, it would still not be a hazard because products that will be purchasable from now on will not be contaminated so the mercury would not be able to accumulate."

He explained it would not be possible to give brand names in the case of the Japanese tuna, at least, because the cans are unlabelled and importers who would label them would be purchasing from several different factories throughout the country.

He was unaware of any other sources of contaminated

Lewis Demands End to Anti-Terror Law

FLQ Trio Zips In, Out of Court

From CP, UPI

MONTREAL — Brothers Paul and Jacques Rose and Francis Simard were given formal notice Tuesday at a special coroner's inquest they are being held as material witnesses in the murder of Pierre Laporte, Quebec's former labor minister.

In a 30-second appearance — a formality — the three were told they are being held under warrants issued Nov. 5.

They are to be brought before the inquest when it resumes Monday.

In Ottawa, David Lewis, deputy NDP leader, called for immediate revocation of the government's anti-terrorist legislation following the Monday arrests of the FLQ suspects.

Lewis said "there is no longer any possible excuse for the Public Order Act to continue in force."

"I therefore call on the prime minister to discuss with the premier of Quebec the revocation of this act at the earliest possible date."

The New Democratic Party was the only party to oppose the government's "anti-terrorist" legislation.

Lewis
. . . "no excuse"

None of the three was handcuffed as they were brought one by one into the courtroom on the sixth floor of the Quebec provincial police headquarters where the coroner's inquest has been held.

Paul Rose, sporting a week-old beard, was dressed in a dirty reddish-brown sweater and dark slacks. His unkempt hair varied from reddish yellow in the middle to dark at the sides. His brother Jacques wore a blue shirt with blue jeans.

Simard, pale and gaunt, wearing a grey work shirt and dark slacks, also was unshaven.

Apart from Paul Rose who said something and was drowned out by Sessions Judge Jacques Trahan, none of them tried to speak. They were asked if they had a lawyer and Jacques Rose, the only one to smile, said he had none. Simard made no comments.

Reporters and workers from QPP headquarters were the only spectators.

Seven other persons, including Michel Viger, who rented a farmhouse where the Roses and Simard were found, also appeared Tuesday and are to testify Monday.

Viger, a 30-year-old accountant, rented the large white farmhouse in October and was picked up by police with the Roses and Simard.

B.C. Cabinet Accepts Isman Resignation

The B.C. cabinet has accepted the resignation of Provincial Court Judge Bernard Isman of Vancouver, who had been under suspension since August for alleged dealings with a woman suspected of prostitution and drug abuse.

The cabinet order made public Tuesday also rescinded the order that appointed him to the bench in 1963.

Isman, 63, was suspended Aug. 24.

* * *

The suspension was followed by a hearing into the matter by the seven-member B.C. Judicial Council, chaired by former provincial judge Cyril White, now chairman of the Workmen's Compensation Board.

The hearings were closed to the public after Isman's counsel said a woman who was a key witness would not appear if they were held in public.

Passengers Injured

DUNROBIN, Ont. (CP) — The eastbound Canadian National Super Continental passenger train was derailed near here Tuesday night and eight to 10 persons were reported injured.

Cause of the accident was not known.

But a special train was sent here from Ottawa, 20 miles to the southeast, to take the passengers there.

Kissing Disease Vaccine Close

CHICAGO (Reuter) — A team of medical researchers reported Tuesday a major development toward the production of a vaccine against infectious mononucleosis, often called the kissing disease.

The researchers from Northwestern University told the annual meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science that they had identified a protein from the red blood cells of sheep that may provide immunity from the disease.

Injected into chickens it stimulated the production of a chemical immunity that is identical to the same kind of immunity that humans get after recovering from a bout with mononucleosis, it was reported.

Woman Stabs Needler During Violence Study

CHICAGO (Reuter) — A symposium on crime, violence and social control achieved a violent touch Tuesday when a young heckler was stabbed in the arm by a woman with a knitting needle.

The incident occurred during a three-hour panel discussion at the annual meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science being held in three large hotels in Chicago.

Twelve persons entered the meeting room during the discussion and began interrupting and jeering the participants. They attempted to make the point that crime is not an individual behavior problem but the results of "political repression, racism and imperialism."

A woman in the audience, later identified as the wife of a delegate, who had been knitting, became so upset that she jabbed a needle into the arm of a protester in the aisle.

Hang On to Your Stetson

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The John B. Stetson Co., manufacturer of famous hats since 1865, announced Tuesday it will stop making hats in early 1971.

Norman Karps, executive vice-president, said:

"Despite the diligent efforts of management and the loyalty of our customers, the severe decline in the use of hats has made it economically unfeasible to continue the production of hats in our large Philadelphia plant."

Thus, the modern male's dislike of hats will bring an end to the Stetson hat, long identified with the rich history of the American West and worn by ranchers and oil millionaires, among others.

At one time the Stetson firm employed 5,000 workers at its Philadelphia plant, but today only 300 work there. Other plants are in Danbury, Conn., and New York City.

Tied Hands

THE LAW of the land has been eroded by politicians and lawyers. It has become weighted in favor of the criminal, it has tied the hands of law enforcement. Those espousing liberal thinking applaud, but the guy in the street, the little man, watches helplessly as crime mounts in every category.

Politicians did it again last week. They went against the express law of the land, against the wishes of those who put them in office. The cabinet of P. E. Trudeau decided once again that killing a policeman maybe wasn't so bad after all.

The cabinet commuted the death sentence of one Clifford Lurvey, who shot and killed a St. Boniface police constable during a holdup back in 1969. Lurvey will now serve a life sentence instead in Stoney Mountain penitentiary.

REMEMBER all the fuss, all the debate, all the soul-searching that went into the death sentence discussion a couple or three years ago? Well, they finally got around to abolishing the death penalty, except for those who killed police officers or prison guards. This appendage would supposedly give these men of the law a little more protectiion and, dammit all, it might just have, except for the wishy-washy members of cabinet.

In other words, friends, that law isn't worth the paper it's written on. It has been negated, thrown in the wastebasket by the very men and women who put it on the books in the first place. Our statute books must be filled with such laws that are being ignored for one reason or another.

I think the removal of the death penalty was a mistake. Prime Minister Trudeau also harbors this feeling. You might recall that at the very height of the Cross, Laporte crisis, he stated it might be necessary to reimpose the death penalty for political kidnappings. But would such a law have any chance of being carried to fruition?

Not if the same permissivemeness carries on within the cabinet. It would merely be another issue to discuss, another killing—to be glossed over with a commuted sentence. And I submit that the ministers of justice, the attorneys-general are the culpable parties to this public rape of the laws of the land.

THREE eagle-eyed readers write in to tell me I'm all wet about the Jimmie Allen flying club being sponsored by BA Oil back in the Thirties. They insist it was Richfield Oil first and then the Langendorf Bread Co.

In this area it might well have been, but back there on the firgid praires, back in good ol' Winnipeg, it was BA on the sponsorship. Maybe yet another sponsor held the rights in eastern Canada, I don't really know.

I'M happy to report that Brian Roberts, the Growers Wine fella, has had one of the casts removed. When Brian does something, he does it up brown. It all happened at the annual cricket banquet, and who said cricket is a time sport?

THIS is the time of year when the mail is doubly enjoyable, mainly because it takes on a more friendly tone. HERE'S a new approach to birth control. Dr. Lloyd Jones, a veterinary pathologist at the University of Guelph, notes that the poor, needy and starving breed faster than the rich, well-fed people The reasoning by the poor is that the more children they have, the more security they are likely to have in their old age. Therefore, if the poor can be assured proper food, their security will likewise be assured and they will curtail their family size. So there you have the food-as-a-contraceptive theory.

It's Sneaky Disease

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

YOUR GOOD HEALTH

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I guess diabetes is a sneaky disease. Could it be brought on by medicines which I am taking, and am told I must take for the rest of my life, after having a heart attack?

I am going through a very traumatic time, what with losing many relatives and having a pregnant, unmarried granddaughter whom I now have on my hands. It is hard to stop being emotionally involved when these things happen in such rapid succession.

I am told I am a borderline diabetic and was given a diet to follow. — M.D.E.

Yes, it's a sneaky disease, and rarely comes on suddenly, the exception being in children or adolescents who can develop severe diabetes with considerable rapidity — although even in them, I suspect that signs could be discovered early if only some clue appeared.

The fact is that the cause of diabetes is not known. Obesity tends to bring on diabetes — particularly if the person has a tendency toward that disease to start with. Both physical and emotional trauma appear to have a similar effect — bringing potential diabetes into being, or aggravating it.

Medicines such as you are taking for your heart will not cause or otherwise influence the diabetes. Neither will tranquilizers.

A good many people who have heart attacks are found to have diabetes of which they were unaware, and there is evidence that diabetes, particularly untreated diabetes, plays some role in making people more likely to have heart trouble — one of many good reasons why we must be on our guard against this sneaky disease.

You are, obviously, under a considerable emotional burden, but I can offer you this solace for what it is worth: if you were merely given a diet to follow, your physician must have found you as having mild diabetes which can be kept under control without the use of medication or insulin in addition.

It is essential that you follow the diet, though.

Amid Roses, Bennett Sees Green

"In British Columbia," Bennett said, "all governments and all premiers have been critical of the federal government and I have no doubt this will carry on in future, no matter who is the premier.

"This is due to our location, to our rapid growth, and because we are made up of people of initiative who left their moorings to come here. British Columbians have opinons to express and express them fearlessly."

* * *

Despte this ingrained chip-on-the-shoulder attitude toward the so-called centralists in Ottawa, however, there is no place — Bennett claims — with "more loyalty, not only to the Canadian dream, but to its fulfilment."

That, the premier said, "is what British Columbia's representations to Ottawa are all about."

The true mettle of the Canadian dream will be tested on at least two occasions during the coming year at events which are being scheduled here as part of the centennial celebrations. In mid-June Victoria will be the scene of a full-fledged constitutional conference — the first ever held outside of Ottawa.

* * *

And in early August there will be the annual meeting of provincial premiers, held here only once before.

Both are major political events which will bring top federal and provincial figures to this province and, hopefully, provide all Canadians with a better idea of the problems faced by British Columbia. Both occasions — though the premier was careful not to say so — will probably also provide a platform for his reiterated demands for greater financial support to ease B.C.'s acute growing pains.

* * *

This province — the fastest growing region of Canada, a major storehouse of natural resources, and the nation's shop window on the great Pacific Rim trading area — has a major role to play in the fulfilment of the Canadian dream.

Bennett indicates that if B.C. isn't give the financial resources it needs to develop fully that all Canada will suffer and many experts agree. But with proper support, he said: "The seventies will be British Columbia's greatest decade; and the rest of this century belongs to Canada."

By the year 2001, according to estimates, there will be approximately 38 million Canadians and 23 per cent or more than 8,000,000 will live in this province. (B.C. now has 10 per cent of Canada's population.)

* * *

The province, with a population growth rate already twice as great as the rest of Canada, can do nothing to halt this influx. Bennett doesn't suggest his government would try to halt development, even if it was possible to do so.

"We must be bold in our policies to open up the whole province," Bennett said. "But the great test of the Seventies will be in finding jobs for these newcomers and still protecting our environment.

"We could have a perfect environment if we didn't allow anyone to live here. And we could have lots of jobs if we didn't care about the environment. The great challenge facing the government is to create jobs and still protect the environment."

* * *

This explains why tourism, which pumped almost $500 million into B.C.'s economy in 1970 without creating much pollution, looms so large in the provincial government's economic planning.

Bennett makes it plain, too, he believes there is no fear of domination by the United States as long as Canadians take some elementary precautions. (This despite estimates which place U.S. population at about 300 million by the year 2001).

"We haven't feared U.S. domination over the past 100 years," he said. "So why should we fear it now — as long as governments make sure all of our resources are owned by Canadians and all business conducted in this country is governed only by Canadian laws."

* * *

The premier had no sympathy either for those who complain that Americans are coming here to take jobs when unemployment is high in Canada and particularly in B.C.

"For every American who has come to Canada for a job there are 25 Canadians who have gone to the U.S.," Bennett said. "Both countries benefit from the new ideas and exchange of skills. So we must not be narrow in our thinking."

It was stipulated beforehand that the premier didn't wish to discuss the decision to come to Pasadena to open the centennial celebrations. But when the interview was over, it seemed everything important which could have been said on the subject had been said.

Tuna Screened

tuna that have been discoverd, but said that if domestic tuna was involved, it was likely from the east coast.

All tuna entering the country is held until results of tests come back from the Winnipeg fisheries laboratory, he said. Samples of each day's production within each lot are analysed.

The ban kept several thousand cases of cans out of the stores.

Federal Fisheries Minister Jack Davis and Health Minister John Munro said in a joint statement the public need have no concern about the safety of stocks in stores or at home.

* * *

Dr. C. M. Blackwood, director of the federal fisheries inspection branch, said similar checks of all fish taken in Canadian waters show no problem with mercury.

Main suspected areas are the New England coast, the west coast of Africa and certain parts of the Pacific Ocean.

Blackwood said coding data available from the fish processors will indicate the source of the contaminated tuna.

Since Canada, the United States and Japan maintain health standards that ban sales of fish containing more than .5 parts per million of mercury, processors are expected to stop buying fish caught in contaminated waters.

Nevertheless, the checking program will continue. A statistically significant sampling of each canning factory lot was tested.

Blackwood said the contaminated lots contained up to 1.2 parts per million mercury.

. . . no second term

LONDON — A retired major-general admits that he wrote indiscreet letters to a major's wife but denies that he sabotaged his subordinate's promotion because the wife gave him the chill.

It is one of the liveliest military scandal in years here and is occupying — literally — pages in some of the tabloid newspapers.

Maj. Dawson Cain, now also retired, has a complaint before the war office that a dozen years ago in Germany the general — then a brigadier — deluged his wife with obscene phone calls and letters and held up promotion because Mrs. Cain gave him the cold shoulder.

Gen. St. John Cutler Hooley, 68, kept quiet until Monday night because, as he said, he did not want to spoil his own wife's Christmas. Then he confessed to writing sexy, but not obscene, letters and denied doing anything about Cain's promotion.

"The man must be bonkers," the general said. "It would have been impossible for me to have influenced his promotion chances. All the decisions on promotion would have been taken in Whitehall, not in Germany," where both were then stationed.

College Will Go for Sail

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The one-time pride of Britain's merchant marine, the liner Queen Elizabeth, will not follow her older sister, the Queen Mary, into a future as a convention centre and hotel but will continue to sail the seas.

Chapman College announced Tuesday that Hong Kong shipping magnate C. Y. Tung, who bought the Queen Elizabeth for $3.2 million, would turn the vessel over to the college to be used as a floating university.

* * *

Since 1965 Chapman has had its World University afloat and now with the 83,000-ton Queen, the program will be expanded to include students from other colleges and universities.

For the past two years the Queen Elizabeth has been at a southern Florida wharf, being used as a tourist attraction. Visitors paid $2.50 a head to go through her 22 miles of corridors.

In January, the Queen will sail out of Florida to Hong Kong for a refurbishing by next summer.

Then with a new coat of paint and her brass polished, she will return to the United States with a new name — the Seawise University. Next September she will leave Los Angeles harbor for her first cruise around the world as a floating campus, a trip that will take 3½ months.

Doomed 15 Now Spared

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (UPI) — Governor Winthrop Rockefeller, in one of his last official acts before leaving office, Tuesday commuted to life in prison the death sentences of all 15 men on Death Row in Arkansas.

It was the first time in U.S. history that a governor has commuted at one time all men sentenced to die in his state.

"I will not and cannot turn my back on lifelong Christian teaching and principles," Rockefeller said.

Death Row Vet Granted Hearing

NEWARK, N.J. (UPI) — Edgar H. Smith, who has been on Death Row longer than any other man in American history, learned Tuesday he had been granted possibly the most important hearing in his 13-year struggle to elude the electric chair.

Smith's attorneys said a full plenary hearing will be held early in 1971 on Smith's contention that his 39-page confession to the brutal murder of a 15-year-old schoolgirl in 1957 was coerced by incessant questioning by police and prosecutors.

U.S. Circuit Court Judge John Gibbons said he was assigned to the district court of New Jersey to preside at the hearing, which probably will be held in Trenton.

Smith's appeal could win him a new trial, which likely would end in acquittal because of the difficulty of trying a 13-year-old murder case. However, both Smith and the state were expected to continue to contest an unfavorable verdict.

* * *

Smith, now 35, pleaded his case at length in Brief Against Death, one of two books he has written while on Death Row at the New Jersey state prison in Trenton. He has been studying law and assisted in his 18 appeals. His case won the support of conservative journalist William Buckley.

Smith and his attorneys claim they have new evidence to show the confession was not voluntary.

The confession played a key role in Smith's conviction by a Bergen County grand jury in 1957. Smith never signed it, but he said it was true.

Dad Must Support Her —Even in Hippie Style

NEW YORK (AP) — A judge's ruling that a father must support his daughter in college until she is 21 even though he doesn't approve of her life style, brought varied reaction Tuesday from other parents and youngsters.

Agreement or disagreement with the court's decision did not depend on age. Several parents in Larchmont, an affluent New York City suburb, took the daughter's side. A straw poll of 16 youngsters in New York's East Village produced an 11-to-5 split in favor of the father, a lawyer, who cut off support from his daughter last April complaining she was a hippie.

The ruling came to light Monday when the New York State Appellate Division stayed a 30-day contempt-of-court jail sentence that was to be imposed on the father if he did not meet the conditions of the judge's order. The stay will remain effective until the case is reviewed by the Appellate Division.

The ruling was handed down by Judge Millard Midonick of family court, who identified the father only as "a prominent member of the litigating bar" and the daughter only as a University of Louisville, Ky. student born Oct. 30, 1950. The girl's mother is dead.

The girl, Jane Vickers, 20, reached by the Louisville Courier-Journal, said she was "destitute right now."

"I'm looking for a job. In fact, if they order a retrial, I can't afford to go back to New York."

She said she had been in New York twice since August when she filed the suit seeking support. Of her father, she said: "I've received no money from him. He wouldn't give me any money because of how I looked."

She said she attended college for one year, but her father stopped his support when she moved off campus and she quit school and got a job. "It's not a fair decision," she said of the ruling.

Eritreans Ask UN Help

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The Eritrean Liberation Front urged Libya, Syria and Iraq Tuesday to call an emergency session of the UN Security Council to "halt mass annihilation of Eritreans" by the Ethiopian Army of Emperor Haile Selassie.

ELF claimed in a statement cabled from Aden that more than 1,000 Eritreans were killed and 500 arrested since the emperor declared a state of emergency in Eritrea Dec. 16.

It charged the imperial army and air force staged "several concerted attacks that left thousands of people homeless and without food in many Eritrean towns and villages."

Israel, Egypt Not Willing to Give

Mideast Lines Harden

From CP, UPI

Premier Golda Meir reiterated in Jerusalem Tuesday that despite willingness to resume peace talks, Israel will not withdraw from occupied territories until secure peace has been established in the Middle East.

Egyptian President Anwar Sadat replied later, reiterating that Egypt will not agree to extend the Middle East ceasefire past the Feb. 5 deadline unless there is real progress in peace talks under the United Nations envoy and unless Israel agrees to withdrawal of troops from captured territories.

Meanwhile, informed sources in the UN said the new round of Mideast peace talks conducted by Swedish mediator Gunnar Jarring is expected to open in the UN Monday.

Mrs. Meir, speaking before the Knesset (parliament) to explain her government's decision to return to the negotiating table, coupled an appeal for peace with a stern reminder of Israel's military might.

She said that with military aid and political support from the United States, Israel is stronger than ever.

Only a few hours later, Sadat responded by ordering Egypt's government placed in a state of readiness for war.

The official Middle East News Agency said in Cairo that he instructed that "all the executive, political and legislative apparatuses of the nation be put in battle formation and that they should have a plan for the battle."

The import of Sadat's instructions was not immediately clear, but there was no doubt he was making a tough reply to Mrs. Meir's address.

Sadat has made clear he has no intention of extending the ceasefire again unless Israel agrees to a timetable for total withdrawal from the occupied territories.

Digest Contest 'Misleading'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Reader's Digest was accused by the U.S. Federal Trade Commission Tuesday of misleading the public with a sweepstakes promotional campaign that paid out less than half as much as advertised.

The commission also charged the magazine used the names and addresses of winners in its advertising without their permission.

The proposed order would require the Digest in all future sweepstakes to award all prizes of the value and type advertised, to publish the long odds against winning, and to use the names of winners only with their written consent.

* * *

A spokesman for the Reader's Digest Association, Inc., said the magazine had not received a copy of the FTC's proposed order banning the practice in the future and did not, therefore, know whether it would accept the order or request a hearing on the charges.

The FTC said the magazine in 11 sweepstakes conducted since January, 1966, claimed winners would receive 699,293 prizes worth $5,645,000 but that actually only 274,282 prizes valued at $2,530,700 were awarded.

The contests operated this way: Millions of tickets, each bearing a printed number, were mailed to prospective purchasers of the magazine or the firm's other products. Winning numbers were drawn before the tickets were mailed.

* * *

However, the commission said, the prizes were awarded only if the winning ticket was returned by mail.

Peace Talks in Prospect

ISRAEL WILL RESUME negotiations with the Arab states in a quest for a Middle East peace formula, working through the United Nations' intermediary, Dr. Gunnar Jarring.

Prime Minister Golda Meir announced the decision Monday on the heels of a punitive foray into Lebanon where Arab terrorists suffered severe reprisals for a series of harassing raids across the border.

This represents a complete reversal of Israeli policy. Last Sept. 6 Mrs. Meir's government quit the peace talks in protest against the Egyptian erection of rocket missiles along the Suez canal shore. The installations had been made, it was charged, after the application of terms of the cease-fire. Both Israeli and United States intelligence reports agreed there had indeed been a breach of the agreement freezing all military construction or reinforcement on the Suez line, and although Cairo denied it Washington was satisfied that the offending missiles, manned by Russian crews, had been identified.

The United States was moved to reinforce the Israeli forces with highly sophisticated weapons considered powerful enough to neutralize the missile threat.

This brought charges from Moscow and Cairo of an Israeli violation of the cease-fire, but they were not pressed vigorously, which gives rise to the belief the original Israeli indictment was well founded.

Mrs. Meir's change of attitude is due to "military and political support from the United States," she freely admits.

She makes it perfectly clear her decision was in no way influenced by bellicose gestures from Cairo and the threat of revival of a state of war.

On the contrary, "I emphasize with all simplicity our wish for an unlimited and unconditional cease-fire. But I have to state that we are ready at all times to face any danger of renewed fire from the Egyptian side."

Israel is not being backed into resumption of the talks with Dr. Jarring by any pressure from the other side. That is clear.

Whatever may emerge in the way of an agreement from the Arab-Israeli conversations it will require some sort of United Nations reinforcement to ensure its effectiveness. Hopefully, an agreement will include the settlement of the displaced Palestinians, which would very greatly ease the pressures on the frontiers. But there seems to be no alternative to a United Nations' peace-keeping role, and along with that and the withdrawal from occupied territory, full demilitarization of such sensitive areas as the Suez lines.

The current cease-fire expires Feb. 5 and Egypt pretends to a reluctance to renew it.

Cairo would be ill-advised to count on Mrs. Meir's acceptance of resumed peace talks as evidence of a tendency to yield to tough talk. There are few things likely to divert this determined woman from the goal of Israeli security, and talk is not among them.

An Even Distribution

ESQUIMALT COUNCIL'S PROTEST against the election of school trustees from the Greater Victoria district at large, a practice inaugurated this year, is based presumably on the thought that the municipality is no longer represented on the board. Another way of looking at it, however, is that all the people of the district are equally represented, or will be after the next election when the new system will take complete effect.

There were two good reasons for the change to elections at large.

One was unequal representation. Three trustees were elected from Victoria, three from the District 61 portion of Saanich, two from Oak Bay and one from Esquimalt. View Royal with 3,500 residents had no seat allocated to it. Oak Bay had only 9,000 residents for each of its two representatives. Victoria had 19,000 residents for each of its three.

The other reason was that the electors could be offered a wider range of candidates: the situation had sometimes been that one municipality had a single candidate for a school board seat when another had several competing and some bound to lose despite recognized merits.

If it is agreed that Esquimalt is no longer represented since no Esquimalt resident was elected on December 12, then it must be accepted that Oak Bay is more over-represented than ever. But, we suggest again, the fact is that the five successful contestants do not represent any part of the Greater Victoria district; they represent the whole, and where they live is immaterial.

Under the new system, an Esquimalt alderman has complained that "residents lose complete touch with their school board. This is especially true of a small municipality like Esquimalt."

When the decision was taken last spring to make the district a single constituency for the election of trustees, and school board chairman Dr. Carron Jameson in opposition lamented the loss of trustees' close ties with their individual communities, it was noted that trustees might just find they would gain additional close ties.

In a way this is an answer to the alderman's complaint also. The trustees are Esquimalt's trustees as much a Oak Bay's or View Royal's or anyone's. And they are as near by telephone or note as a fellow resident of the municipality.

In your issue of Dec. 22, reporting on Oak Bay council's rezoning of land at Bowker and Cadboro Bay Road for a luxury rest home, the municipal clerk, Mr. E. H. Hart, is quoted as saying that the four letters of opposition were from persons with property that was not in the immediate area.

Ban Hunting

A number of recent television documentaries have focused new attention on the threat to wildlife at home and abroad.

Perhaps the most shocking was the CBC's "Say Goodbye," in which a gang of sadists in a helicopter chased down a family of polar bears, shot the mother and left two small cubs to starve.

No doubt the perpetrators will display the kill as if their cowardly act was something to be proud of.

This senseless killing and maiming goes on endlessly both in and out of season. Hunters damage public and private property, cause forest fires, shoot farm and domestic animals, as well as each other.

Species of animals that formerly roamed in abundance are now faced with extinction, even in once bountiful B.C.

The repeated warnings of conservationists have gone unheeded, and it's not surprising, because after all, hunting is vandalism and vandals have no respect for the laws of man or nature.

The only way to cope with this menace to our environment is to ban hunting altogether, and most important, prohibit the manufacture of guns and ammunition for sale to the general public.

At this stage in history, only the police and the military have any business with deadly weapons.

Responsible citizens must act quickly against the spoilers of every stripe before they turn this beautiful country into a desert.

Second Best

The Dominion of Canada party protests, vehemently, two items which appeared in our newspapers recently.

The first had to do with giving Russia fishing rights in the vicinity of the Queen Charlotte Islands and the use of Vancouver harbor. Did Canadian fishermen obtain equal rights in the coastal waters of Russia, or the use of a Russian harbor?

Why was the minister of fisheries so pleased at the outcome of their negotiations? As usual Canada came out second best. Russia got concessions, Canada got none.

Are we going to allow ourselves to be intimidated by the big powers indefinitely, or are we going to rebuild our armed forces for the protection of Canadian sovereignty?

The second item was the refusal of the State of Maine to allow the building of a highway across northern Maine to connect Quebec and New Brunswick. Could this be because Maine wouldn't want the Chicago gangsters, living in Montreal, to have easy access to their state? If our immigration authorities had been on their toes these undesirable characters would never have been allowed into Canada in the first place.

We supported the U.S.A. in linking Alaska with the United States — across Alberta, B.C., and the Yukon — and shared the cost! At the time of construction the highway in question was named the Alcan highway, after both countries. Now we have even lost this connotation. It is the Alaska highway!

Thoughtlessness

Householders take the time and effort to decorate their homes on the outside at Christmas for their own pleasures and others to add to the gaiety of the occation. How nice it was of the person or persons who took the Santa Claus from our front lawn last night! We hope it gives them some small pleasure. It's not the monetary value of the Santa that counts—it's the thoughtlessness that is upsetting and the fact that the Santa had a very sentimental value to our family.

To Eliminate 'Grim and Joyless' Atmosphere

New York Schools Look to Britain

By JOYCE EGGINTON

NEW YORK city schools—many of them torn apart by racial and discipline problems—have been urged by the state commissioner of education, Doctor Ewald Nyquist, to adopt the informal British system of "open classrooms" as a reform of their own classrooms' "grim and joyless" atmosphere.

In Britain the "open plan" replaces traditional classrooms by shared teaching areas and work-spaces for practical activities and individual study.

New York schools, along with those in many other large American cities, have been under fire by progressive United States educators for some time. In many metropolitan areas, where the racial balance in schools is heavily Negro, the level of illiteracy has been steadily rising. For disadvantaged children particularly, American city schools—with a few rare exceptions—have frequently failed to understand and fulfil the needs of their pupils.

* * *

The most devastating indictment of the nation's school system came recently in a lengthy study commissioned by the Carnegie Corporation from Charles E. Silverman, an author and educator. Mr. Silverman found that most American schools not only fail to educate their children adequately, but they are grim, joyless, repressive and often operating in a manner which has barely changed since the beginning of the century. His study included a detailed section on the open classroom system, widely used in British primary schools, which he praised for its creativity, spontaneity and humanity.

In contrast he found that most American schools emphasize discipline and conformity, judging the worth of a teacher by his ability to keep order, rather than his capability to bring out the best in a child.

* * *

Doctor Nyquist revealed recently that, independent of the Carnegie study, he had sent his own investigators to England and they had reached the same conclusion about the value of the British system. If his suggestion is adopted in New York, it will mean a complete transformation of this city's elementary schools, which would be watched with closest interest by education authorities across the country. At present there are limited pilot experiments in the "open classroom" system in a tiny minority of American schools, some of them expensive private institutions.

"The new method is going to mean a whole retraining of teachers," said Mrs. Dorotha Conklin, chief of New York State Bureau of Child Development and Parent Education. "Many of us have long believed that small children learn best through informal, flexible school environments where they have many materials to work with. Yet across the country children sit and sit and are talked at, often by teachers who do not fully respect children and talk down to them."

Mrs. Conklin pointed out, ironically, the progressive education movement began in the U.S. some 40 years ago from the teachings of the American educator John Dewey. "But while his ideas were never fully understood here and interpreted as permissiveness, they have been taken up and developed by British educators. Meanwhile, our schools become more formal, more didactic, less related to children. Now, hopefully, we are beginning to switch roles and to take our lead from Britain."

Election Date Change?

From the Ottawa Journal

Politicians from North Vancouver to Gloucester Township have again suggested that municipal elections should not be held in December. Their argument is that with Christmas coming people are worried more about shopping than voting, and that weather conditions can make voter turnout specially low. The suggestion that November elections would be more "successful" seems at first to make much sense. And yet . . .

Moving elections back to the early fall or even the spring would have to mean changing the date of takeover for the new regime. Provincial statutes would then have to be changed, as would the entire municipal fiscal operation, which now corresponds with the calendar year. It would require a complete overhaul of the municipal system of government.

The best way to improve voter turnout at municipal elections would seem to be getting better candidates to have better discussions of the real issues of any election, and in finding better ways to get more voters interested in those issues. If this could be accomplished, something as minor as a six-inch snowfall on election day would not keep many interested voters from exercising their democratic rights.

Reach for Top

From the London Free Press

Gerald Filion, a man who should know, has advised Quebecers to make full use of the special opportunities that are theirs by being bilingual and not to let unilingualism become a restrictive obsession.

There is already more French used in Quebec plants than is generally believed, Mr. Filion told a Canadian Manufacturers Association audience, referring to the drive to make French the language of work in Quebec industry and commerce.

One of the best ways to extend that and to make French a language of use throughout the Quebec business world is for French Canadians to attain the highest positions in that field at the "natural and continental level." To do that they must "recognize the need to be bilingual."

Mr. Filion is a good example: From his birthplace on a St. Lawrence River island and education in the schools of Rimouski he has been a participant in municipal politics, general secretary of the Quebec Farmers Union, an insurance company executive, publisher and editorial writer of Le Devoir, author of several books, has seen service on several royal commissions and as vice-chairman of the Canada Council. Recently he has been engaged with Quebec's General Investment Corporation and is currently president of Marine Industries Limited.

A little more tranquillity and little more common sense are all that are needed for Quebec to succeed, Mr. Filion says. And a keen sense of realism such as his should help the process.

Spending

From the Winnipeg Free Press

The consternation of some members of the Winnipeg school board because $50,000 allocated for special centennial projects was not fully spent is a wonderful illustration of an all too prevalent attitude toward public funds: If we have money available for a specific purpose, we must spend it. There is no point in cutting corners, no excuse for not taking advantage of the money available. It has been allocated and therefore ought to be spent.

The trustees may point out that the money in question was set aside for a worthy project — to help students fittingly observe the province's centennial. But it is doubtful if many taxpayers in the city will quibble because only a fraction of the money designated for this purpose has been spent. The trustees may be upset over the issue, but not the public. The latter, indeed, might like to see a similar situation develop in other areas affecting public funds.

Next Time?

From the Toronto Star

If the manpower retraining program is to reach its full possibilities it must be both expanded and widened so that instead of serving only a select minority it can help all the unemployed — or at least all those who are willing to make the effort to improve their qualifactions. An opportunity to do this seems to have been missed in the current budget, but we hope the government will soon correct this oversight. Failure to do this will blunt one of the most useful weapons in its arsenal against unemployment.

Economic Lever

Polish Case Warning To Kremlin

By JOSEPH KRAFT, from Washington

The leadership switch in Poland provides a rare case of economic change actually forcing political adjustment. It shows that even the most hidebound communist regime can shake off egregiously outdated men and methods.

That showing has not a little bearing on the anachronistic regime in the Soviet Union. It tends to validate the proposition that Western policy should work to promote evolution, however slow, within the communist world.

Economics, for once, provides a real starting point for political analysis. In the 20 years after the war, Poland made the transition from an agricultural to an industrial country. Production of autos, aircraft, tractors, and heavy machinery was set in motion. Such traditional lines as textiles, coal mining, shipbuilding, and metal working were rapidly expanded. Now Poland derives about 80 per cent of its gross national product from industry.

But once the basic transition was completed, the Polish economy was all dressed up with nowhere to go. Low purchasing power combined with the bias of state planners in favor of heavy industry to starve the consumer goods sector.

With light industry lagging, economic growth slowed, and large numbers of Poles — about 35 per cent — remained marooned in unproductive work down on the farms.

* * *

The cure for this kind of stagnation is an economic reform which has been discussed in communist circles for at least a decade.

The basic idea is to free prices in a way that both stimulates the consumer goods industry and provides incentives for higher agricultural ouput.

That model has worked with relatively good results in East Germany, Hungary, Czechoslovakia, and Romania. It found a strong Polish backer five years ago in the person of Edward Gierek, party boss in industrialized Silesia.

* * *

But the central communist leadership in Warsaw was immobile. Party Secretary Wladyslaw Gomulka, a prewar Communist, shied away from changes that compromised total control over the economy.

The more so as his one serious political challenge was a challenge posed by Interior Mnister Mleczslaw Moczar which emphasized Polish nationalism, not such cosmopolitan frills as economic reform.

* * *

In these circumstances, Gomulka made it his first priority to scotch Gen. Moczar's bid for power. Only this month did he get around to inaugurating economic reforms.

Out of touch with public opinion, he apparently made the moves without taking the popular pulse. That is how it happened that just before Christmas — a traditional featsing time in Poland — the regime raised food prices.

* * *

The result was a series of protest riots by workers in Silesia and the port cities of the Baltic coast. In response, the Polish regime first cracked down hard. Then, Gomulka and most of his closest associates were retired. Gierek took over as party secretary.

* * *

The mere accession of a new party secretary, of course, does not resolve Poland's difficulties.

After the recent explosion, Gierek will have to move very slowly in the direction of economic reform. His own commitment to the reform principle is by no means total.

And he will have to reckon anew with his old nationalistic rival. For, as part of the recent change, Gen. Moczar acquires new power as a member of the Polish politburo.

* * *

Still, the central fact is that there has been evolution — and evolution in the right direction. Judging by his background, Gierek will continue down the road of economic reform. At the same time, he will try to stay in far closer touch with public opinion.

In a kind of inaugural speech, he asserted that "the iron rule of our economic policy and our policy in general must be always to count with reality, to consult broadly the working class and intelligentsia."

* * *

The exact role of the Soviet Union in the Polish changes is not known in the West. But the mere fact that the Russians did not block the accession of Gierek is significant.

The present leadership of Party Secretary Leonid Brezhnev in Moscow is very similar to the Gomulka leadership in Poland.

It too is hidebound and oldfashioned, slow to embrace the economic reform put forward by some Russians and subject to challenge from younger and highly nationalistic figures.

* * *

The change that took place in Warsaw, in other words, can also take place in Moscow.

And while the going is bound to be very slow, while the outcome is by no means sure, while the odds are even unfavorable, the best course open to Western policy is to try to foster the future of the Russian equivalents of Edward Gierek--the relative good guys in the Soviet Union.

U.S. Legal Authority Cites Destruction of Vietnam Food Sources

Defoliation a Crime Against Humanity

By C. G. McDANIEL, from Chicago

The United States has engaged in activities in Vietnam for which Germany and Japan were prosecuted after the Second World War, a U.S. legal authority said Tuesday.

Responding to a report by a group of scientists on the ecological aspects of herbicides, George Bunn, professor of law at the University of Wisconsin, suggested that military forces have violated guidelines set down in the U.S. Army field manual based on international agreements.

Bunn cited protocols which ban the destruction of food sources, particularly.

Bunn is a former general counsel to the U.S. Arms Control Agency and former alternate U.S. representative to the Geneva disarmament conference.

The White House said last week that the use of herbicides is being phased out in Vietnam.

North Vietnam said Tuesday in a broadcast from Hanoi that defoliants dumped by U.S. aircraft in South Vietnam have caused millions of persons to suffer the same fate as victims of the Hiroshima and Nagasaki atomic blasts in the Second World War.

* * *

"Clinically, there have been many miscarriages, congenital anomalies and frequent monstrosities" as a result of spraying toxic chemicals, the broadcast claimed.

A herbicide assessment commission, headed by Dr. Matthew S. Meselson, professor of biology at Harvard University, presented Tuesday the first report of a survey of herbicidal damage resulting from spraying of forests and croplands by U.S. forces in South Vietnam.

The report was given at a session of the American Association for the Advancement of Science meeting.

U.S. military forces have sprayed croplands in South Vietnam with the aim of destroying Viet Cong-North Vietnamese food supplies, but members of the commission said civilian food supplies probably have suffered more than those of the military.

The commission detailed damage to mangrove forests and to South Vietnam's marketable timber stands which it said will take decades to recover. The loss of timber alone was estimated at $500 million.

The commission is also studying the possible contamination of food, and birth defects resulting from the chemical sprays.

* * *

The commission's report says 2,000 square kilometres of land have been sprayed, entailing the destruction of enough food to feed some 600,000 persons for one year.

Bunn said the destruction of civilian crops violates the spirit if not the letter of three international agreements.

He said the armed forces issued information to guide their personnel on international rules of warfare, to achieve observance of these rules and to avoid prosecution of U.S. personnel for rule violations should they be captured by the enemy.

"We sometimes forget that we helped try German and Japanese military officers for violations of these rules after the Second World War," he added.

U.S. Concern Over POW s May Trigger Harder Line

Unpopular War Policy in Offing?

By ROD CURRIE
From Washington

The recent broad publicity given the Nixon administration's concern over U.S. prisoners of war in Vietnam is being interpreted by many observers as part of a campaign to prepare the American public for a new and unpopular war policy.

The idea is that by focusing attention on the plight of these tragic figures, the administration can build a rationale to support a new and more vigorous U.S. stance in Indo-China.

The possible necessity for such a hard-line policy has been underlined time and again in recent weeks by top administration spokesmen, including President Nixon himself.

This turn of events came in the wake of the November congressional elections in which Nixon had pretty generally suceeded in defusing the war as an issue.

* * *

His progress in cutting American manpower in Vietnam to about 340,000 men from a high of 540,000 in 1969 also had the effect of convincing the folks at home that the worst of the war was over.

But just as the public was lulled by the steady march home of U.S. troops and rosy reports of the Vietnamization program whereby natives take over the fighting, they now are being jolted by warnings of new communist threats not only to South Vietnam but to neighboring Laos and Cambodia.

Nixon, at his latest news conference, warned he would not hesitiate to resume the bombing of the North — halted by President Lyndon Johnson in 1968 — if Hanoi "increases the level of fighting" in the South.

American military and civilian officials in Saigon have gone to some lengths to warn of the general political and economic troubles that could beset the country as the Americans withdraw. Additionally, reports of the communists struggling to build up supplies in southern Laos are alarming U.S. officials.

Most disturbing of all, from the point of view of war critics, was the apparent change of heart of Defence Secretary Melvin Laird who had generally given the impression he was committed to a total American withdrawal from Vietnam.

* * *

Asked about the war prisoners in the event of full U.S. withdrawal, he told reporters:

"We are going to maintain a United States presence until a satisfactory solution can be worked out for the prisoners of war."

Meanwhile, State Secretary William Rogers underlined Nixon's Dec. 10 warning on possibile bombing resumption by saying the president wanted to be sure Hanoi realized that he was not under "any restrictions or inhibitions" as U.S. troops withdrew.

* * *

As for the prisoners, the dilemma is how the U.S. would free them so long as there is no over-all peace agreement. The Paris peace talks haven't moved an inch in two years, with the North Vietnamese arguing that the subject of the prisoners — and all other negotiations — must await total U.S. withdrawal.

Laird has said that the prisoners are "one of the major concerns I have," adding: "The Vietnamization program cannot be completed as far as I am concerned until there has been resolution of the prisoner-of-war question."

* * *

This statement before a recent senate committee hearing gave a measure of official support to the growing suspicion that the administration has in mind the possbilty of a sort of so-called "Korean soluton," a reference to the 62,000 Americans still based in South Korea.

In the context of a possible indefinite U.S. presence in Vietnam, the guessing has ranged from 50,000 to 100,000 men by the presidential election years of 1972.

* * *

Thus, as the U.S. ends its first decade of involvement there, it can be expected that Nixon and his advisers will be looking for a manpower level that would be sufficient to do the job and yet be politically acceptable so that the war issue will not drive Nixon into retirement as it did Lyndon Johnson.

Not Inflationary, Says OEC

Canadian Wage Rates Years Behind Profits

By CARL MOLLINS, from Ottawa

The Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development says in a special report published Tuesday that wage rates in Canada lag behind advances in production and profits by about three years.

The report suggests that strong acceleration of pay rates in 1970 constituted simply catching up with past increases in output and corporate profits. Thus, says the report, resumption of business growth in Canada next year after a slack 1970 would not necessarily trigger inflationary wage demands.

The OECD conclusion tends to run counter to warnings by federal authorities and others that lack of pay restraint was a major cause of inflation.

The Paris-based OECD, which links the industrial countries of Western Europe to North America and Japan, makes the comment in its eighth Economic Outlook publication, which deals with prospects for 1971.

In Canada, it says, "the business situation may have reached its weakest point around mid-year" of 1970.

* * *

"The problem before the authorities is to gauge how much further scope there is for relaxation without jeopardizing the aim of gaining control over inflation."

The reference is to recent relaxation of restraints on spending and credit by federal authorities. The OECD report was written before the Dec. 3 federal budget, which included plans for additional government spending to generate productive activity.

Referring to the relation between wage increases and business activity, the report says official efforts to revive business activity by stimulating more demand for goods and services in 1971 would not necessarily generate bigger pay settlements than the significant advances in 1970.

The year 1970 may have been a peak year for wage increases — settlements ran ahead by almost 10 per cent — and "wage increases may slow down," even while unemployment falls after the early part of 1971.

The OECD bases its projection about wages on a study of trends throughout the 1960s.

It says that the rate of wage increases in the early 1960s lingered behind the rate of real productive growth and advances in corporate profits by about three years.

* * *

Wage settlements picked up in pace after that until 1966, then lagged behind other growth elements again until recently.

The OECD says much of the recent discrepancy between high wage settlements on one hand and slow productive growth with increasing unemployment on the other may be explained by the three-year lag phenomenon.

"The same kind of wage lag might be expected to prevent an early cost push in the case of an acceleration of real growth."

The OECD foresees productive and business activity recovering by the second half of 1971 to a growth rate reaching or slightly exceeding the capacity pace of 5¼-per-cent growth annually.

It forecasts that the exchange rate of the Canadian dollar is likely to settle back to about 96 U.S. cents — it had been around 99 cents recently — but uncertainties about the rate make predictions on trade difficult.

However, it expects Canada to maintain a comfortable surplus on transactions with the rest of the world, although some decline from the record 1970 surplus is expected.

* * *

The OECD outlook for Canada is based on some assumptions, including one that the government would authorize further relaxation of restraints on spending. That came about, after the report was written in the Dec. 3 budget.

However, another OECD assumption was mistaken. It assumed that the three-per-cent federal surcharge on income tax, imposed in 1968, would expire on schedule Dec. 31, thereby releasing additional cash for private spending.

Finance Minister E. J. Benson crossed up the OECD analysts by announcing Dec. 3 that the surtax would be extended through 1971.

Canadian Donations Averaged $25 Each

MONTREAL (UPI) — Canadians gave an estimated $547 million — an average of $25.40 per person — in charitable donations in 1970, a nationwide fund raising firm reported Tuesday.

Total gifts were about $11 million less than in 1969, G. A. Brakely & Co. Ltd., said.

Company president Arthur Maybee said the annual survey showed personal donations of $475 million to churches, community funds, hospitals, universities and other gift-supported causes.

Largest individual gift reported was $1 million from Samuel Nickle, Sr., to the Alberta universities' combined campaign, earmarked for the University of Calgary.

☐

VANCOUVER (CP) — Acting port manager William Duncan says 1970 was a record-breaking year for the port of Vancouver and predicts 1971 should be even better if British Columbia doesn't experience any labor unrest.

In a year-end review, Dundan said Tuesday that when this year's figures are tallied next week, they will show 26 million tons of cargo moved through the port.

He said this could rise to 30 million tons next year, and by 1974, tonnage could be up 50 per cent over previous totals.

☐

TORONTO (CP) — President James Kerr of Trans-Canada PipeLines Ltd. said Tuesday the company has filed an application with the National Energy Board to construct about $214 million of new pipeline facilities during 1971 and 1972.

The proposal would add 695 miles of new pipeline during the two-year period.

The major part of the program is for installation of 414 miles in eastern Manitoba and Northern Ontario.

This would represent a major addition to the second line of the company's system east of Winnipeg, with more than 390 miles to be constructed in Northern Ontario.

Of the remainder, 39 miles will be built to complete the third line of the company's system in Western Canada and 230 miles as part of the fourth line in Saskatchewan and Manitoba.

DETROIT (AP) — A high-ranking U.S. state department official has urged American businessmen to seek more trade with the Communist countries of Eastern Europe and make use of the liberal licensing policies of the Nixon administration.

"Our businessmen, operating within present law and policy, should feel that they are advancing our national interests in a very practical way when they pursue the enlargement of non-strategic East-West trade," Philip Trezise, assistant secretary of state, said in a speech prepared for delivery before the Association for Education in International Business.

More Heat For Uruguay

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay (UPI) — An intense heat wave that has scorched Uruguay with temperatures of more than 100 degrees fahrenheit since Christmas Eve will continue for three more days, the weather bureau said Sunday. Beaches have been swarming with bathers throughout the period, with many remaining overnight.

Soviet-Polish Trade Pact

WARSAW (Reuter) — Soviet Foreign Trade Minister Nikolai Patolichev and his Polish counterpart, Janusz Burakiewicz, signed Tuesday a new five-year agreement between their countries and a trade protocol for 1971.

Firm Gains Recorded As Optimism Prevails

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock market prices soared sharply higher Tuesday in heavy trading.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials shot up 11.09 points to 842.00, a 1.33 per cent increase.

This represented a new 13-month closing high and placed the blue-chip indicator at its highest level since Nov. 18, 1969, when it closed at 845.17.

Analysts said investors were expressing increasing optimism over the prospects for an economic recovery in 1971. Providing fuel for this hope were news reports that the U.S. government's composite index of leading economic indicators rose 1 per cent last month.

* * *

The New York Stock Exchange index of some 1,200 common stocks was ahead 0.56 at 50.19.

The Associated Press 60-stock average rose 4.6 to 288.9, a high for the year. Industrials were up 7.1, rails were up 3.4, and utilities were ahead 0.8. Standard and Poor's 500-stock index was up .29 at 92.08.

Stocks were up in all categories.

☐

TORONTO (CP) — Industrial issues thrust sharply upward in light trading Tuesday, leading the Toronto stock market in its fourth consecutive gaining session.

The advance on the industrial index was the largest since Dec. 10. The rally pushed the index to its highest level since last April.

☐

VANCOUVER (CP) — Prices were up and trading moderate on the Vancouver Stock Exchange Tuesday.

Leading industrial was Great National Land. Canarctic led the oils on 24,600 shares, up .07 at .63. Pathfinder was the biggest trader in the mines, up .05 at .80 on 646,800 shares. Fortune Channel gained .11 at .87, Great Northern Petroleum was up .08 at .83, Brycon traded at .36, Coast Silver gained .93 at .39 and Mariner was up .07 at $1.09.

☐

MONTREAL (CP) — The Montreal stock market made firm gains in all sectors except utilities in active trading Tuesday. An afternoon rally erased losses in other sectors.

Dumont Nickel Mines, the most active issue on the exchange Tuesday, rose 15 cents to $1.15 on a volume of 617,500 shares.

Advances outnumbered declines 116 to 93 and 66 issues were unchanged.

Biggest-Ever Raise In Special Contract

VANCOUVER (CP) — A wage increase described as the largest ever negotiated by the International Woodworkers of America will give tradesmen employed on new forest industry construction in British Columbia a $1.40 an hour pay raise over two years, union and company officials said Tuesday.

Negotiations between the union's Vancouver local and Forest Industrial Relations, will give qualified tradesmen a final rate of $6.04 an hour on Jan. 1, 1972.

FIR represented B.C. Sawmills Construction Ltd., Industrial Mill Installations Ltd., Stolberg Mill Construction Ltd., and Stolberg Mill Construction (1963) Ltd.

The Vancouver local represents about 450 tradesmen, improvers and helpers.

The new contract provides an increase of $1.10 an hour for improvers and helpers, raising their rates to $4.92 and $4.62½ in the last stage of the contract.

* * *

IWA negotiator Bob Blanchard said the increases are the highest obtained anywhere by the IWA in Canada or the United States.

The $1.40 raise is two cents higher than the top increase negotiated by B.C. building trades unions in general construction this year.

But ironworkers in general construction will receive $6.20 an hour and electricians $6.80 on Oct. 1, 1971.

FIR president John Billings emphasized that the new top rates — which include 21 cents an hour for tradesmen with certificates approved under apprenticeship training — are for new construction only.

On regular maintenance and repair work, they get the terms of the industry-wide contract. When on regular work they will be paid close to $1.00 an hour less than the new construction rate.

Bad Box-Office Knows No Favorites

Dad Helps Bounce Movie Mogul

NEW YORK (UPI) — Richard Zanuck was fired Tuesday as president and director of the 20th Century-Fox Film Corp. by a board of directors which included his father, Darryl Zanuck.

Young Zanuck, and David Brown, the vice-president for creative operations and also a director of the corporation, were fired because of movie box-office duds.

* * *

Zanuck, now 36, was one of the youngest production heads in the history of major studios.

Both men were asked for their resignations at a meeting of the board of directors and both tendered them, effective Dec. 31. The board then decided to leave the position of president open until a new chief from within or without the company could be named.

* * *

Elmo Williams, a producer now working for 20th Century whose latest production was Tora! Tora! Tora! was named by Darryl Zanuck to head production, subject to supervision.

Richard Zanuck took charge of the lot when he was 28 years old. In his early years as a junior mogul he bailed the studio out of financial trouble with a series of hit pictures.

The greatest box office hit of them all, The Sound of Music, was produced under Richard's aegis.

But in recent years many thought his judgment faltered with such bombs as Myra Breckenridge, Tora! Tora! Tora! and other films that came in tremendously over budget and with small chance of recouping at the turnstiles.

Another was Hello, Dolly!

Still, young Zanuck managed to guide M-A-S-H, Patton, and Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid to enormous financial success in 1970.

* * *

Butch Cassidy became the biggest non-roadshow attraction in the long history of the studio.

The ledger, however, reflected more red ink than black.

Zanuck began running the studio in 1963 when his father, Darryl, was president of the picture firm.

His salary at the time was $1,200 a week. It has escalated since.

As a child of 7, Richard Zanuck sold magazines on the studio lot. During his high school years he read scripts his father thought might appeal to teenagers.

Zanuck worked on the lot in a labor gang, in the film editing department and other areas to familiarize himself with the studio when he was still a youngster.

He was graduated from Stanford University, majoring in English, in 1956.

Young Zanuck joined the studio after graduation, working in various business departments and eventually became a producer. His first picture was Compulsion.

Once divorced, he is now married to actress Linda Harrison.

* * *

A spokesman at 20th studios said the dismissal of Richard was instigated by his father, chairman of the board and chief executive officer, who objected to closing of the studio's Paris office and for other decisions made without the senior Zanuck's approval.

Not since Jack Warner fired his own son, almost 15 years ago, has a father-son relationship engendered a firing of this nature.

The executive board also elected Dennis Stanfill, now executive vice-president for finance, to the new office of executive vice-president for finance and operations control. In the new job, Stanfill will report directly to the executive committee of the board of directors.

Hydro, PGE Rail Given Bond Nod

The provincial cabinet has authorized B.C. Hydro and the Pacific Great Eastern Railway to raise $15 million each in bond issues.

Orders in council made public Tuesday said the bonds would be offered at 7.54 per cent interest, payable half-yearly.

The cabinet orders did not specify the uses to which the money would be put.

All-Girl Parking Lot Aids Traveller

Traveller steps into van that will take him from his parked car to terminal at Montreal International Airport, in operation run solely by women whose boss is Miss Nicole Auger, at right. Idea was financed from United States, where it was launched at St. Louis in 1967. Vancouver airport is under study for similar operation.—(CP)

Few Weaknesses

Mineral Values Still Increasing

TORONTO (CP) — Value of total production of Canadian minerals will likely show a healthy increase in 1971 despite weaknesses in some areas.

The Mining Association of Canada forecasts total value of $6,000 million for production during 1971 compared with an estimated $5,500 million this year and $4,690 million in 1969.

John Bonus, managing director of the association, says demand is generally strong but the industry is concerned about tax changes.

* * *

"Continuing uncertainty regarding the nature of the final legislation to emerge from the white paper tax debate to some degree tends to inhibit forecasts for the Canadian mining industry."

The total value figures include petroleum and natural gas. This segment of the industry was given a boost during 1970 with an increase in the quota for import to the United States.

Japanese demand for Canadian mining products was a significant factor in the increase in production value during 1970. Coal production, which has declined in recent years, may begin to come back during the coming year. The Japanese need coking coal and are considering contracts for coal from Western provinces.

* * *

In ore, one of the major items in the metallic category, had substantial increases during 1970 and industry sources expect the market to be strong during the coming year. Large Japanese ore carriers take delivery of Quebec iron ore at Gulf of St. Lawrence ports.

Copper did a turnabout during 1970. The major companies tried to increase prices during the early part of the year but were stopped by the government. By the end of the year, demand was weak and the companies were forced to cut prices.

Demand for nickel, the third major metal produced in Canada, continued fairly strong during 1970.

Ill-Informed Economists Attacked by Loffmark

Health Minister Ralph Loffmark said Tuesday Canada "is caught in the grip of ill-informed, pseudo-economists in Ottawa who are all mixed up."

His critique of economic theory was in a statement issued from his office that announced the awarding of a $2.7 million contract for a 201-bed extended care unit at Vancouver General Hospital.

Loffmark said the "pseudo-economists" have let interest rates go "sky-high" and the present "outrageously high interest rates are the main cause of inflation.

"Ottawa fiscal policies based on the outdated theories of the English economist, Keynes, are deliberately causing unemployment and stagnation. Ottawa must take steps to bring down interest rates. Canada needs stability for dynamic growth."

Air Service to Add Tel Aviv

Forecast for CP in '71: Mild

MONTREAL (CP) — N. R. Crump, chairman of Canadian Pacific, says the company is "mildly optimistic about prospects for 1971."

He said in his year-end statement Tuesday that easing of monetary policies will not be felt before the second quarter, adding that "government reluctance to lessen economic restraints might delay recovery until mid-1971."

Crump said that CP Air "anticipates traffic growth on both international and Canadian routes during 1971." He said Tel Aviv will be added to its international service at the end of March with four flights a week from Canada.

CP Air's net profit for 1970 will be considerably below that of 1969 and the 1971 profit prospects do not appear to be any better.

"The modest increases in international fares which will go into effect in the spring of 1971 will not compensate for expected increases in costs."

* * *

However, said Crump, overall railway freight revenues for the year are expected to be about 8 per cent higher than in 1969.

Crump said transportation operations were adversely affected by anti-inflation measures, tight money and strikes in key industries.

He said computer technology is becoming increasingly important in developing new transportation systems that will have a significant effect on pricing strategies.

Computers helped CP Rail design one of the world's most advanced unit train systems for moving export coal from south-eastern British Columbia to the new Pacific coast superport at Roberts Bank, said Crump.

A larger volume of coal is expected to move from Western Canada through the Lakehead next year and transportation systems "are being designed to serve this growing market."

Pulp, Paper Prospects Look 'Reasonably Good'

MONTREAL (CP) — R. M. Fowler, president of the Canadian Pulp and Paper Association, says the outlook for pulp and paper output and shipments appears "reasonably good" in 1971.

However, he said in his yearend statement Tuesday, "much will depend on the speed at which industrial growth in the United States and Canada regains its normal level."

* * *

"In short, production of pulp and paper in Canada in 1971 should be higher than in 1970."

Unfortunately, said Fowler, the prospects for earnings are not as promising.

"But it would be unrealistic to expect an easy and rapid return to a level of profits adequate to generate the continuing growth that the industry must display over the longer term — if Canada is to retain its place in pulp and paper trade."

* * *

Fowler said Canadian pulp and paper production was slightly lower in 1970 than in 1969, reflecting the lack of growth in the economies of the U.S. and Canada and long strikes at a number of mills.

"At the same time, costs increased substantially and revenues from exports suffered a serious decline from the increase in the value of the Canadian dollar."

In general, he said, 1970 was a more difficult and disappointing year for the Canadian pulp and paper industry than had been anticipated.

Earnings declined sharply, further reducing the already inadequate return on investment in the industry.

When final figures are available, said Fowler, they probably will show total industry shipments of about 18.4 million tons for the year, about two per cent lower than in 1969, although still the second highest in the industry's history.

Hope of Uninterrupted Commercials Wanes

By CHARLES MAHER
Colonist-Los Angeles Times Service

LOS ANGELES — There were some of the usual annoyances on television over the weekend. For example, every once in a while they would interrupt the cigarette commercials for a word from the announcer at a football game.

●

It never fails. Just when you figure something interesting is going to happen to the Marlboro Man (maybe he'll go to the dance in town and fall for a pretty schoolmarm who will agree to see him again only if he promises to kick his disgusting smoking habit), there's a break in the action and you're back at some fool game. It's probably too much to expect that television will ever give us even 15 minutes of commercial enjoyment uninterrupted by programming.

For the sophisticated viewer, the guy who just can't get enough of cigarette commercials, the situation is about to get worse.

A law banning cigarette advertising on TV and radio becomes effective at midnight Jan. 1. The sports fan, of course, will be one of the hardest hit. Sports programs have long been one of the tobacco industry's favorite advertising vehicles.

So, on New Year's Day, we'll be saying goodby to a lot of dear friends.

Among them will be the no-nonsense guy who buys Camel filters ("they're not for everybody") instead of some of those silly faddish brands (made by the same manufacturer).

And the Tareyton man, whose wholly admirable product loyalty has gotten him into a lot of fights, all of which he seems to have lost.

And that lovable but bungling Benson & Hedges man, who keeps getting the first 10 millimeters of his cigarette chopped off in the elevator door.

And all those wonderful Winston people, who have invented so many delightful ways of telling us that good grammar ain't hardly no substitute for good taste.

And the provident Raleigh man, who has saved up enough coupons to get himself a new armchair (to replace the one he threw out because it had cigarette burns all over it).

And the guy who came all the way up to Kools, only to find they didn't taste so hot.

And, of course, the good folks at Salem, who have been reminding us that if we ever get caught in the great outdoors, we should be sure to smoke constantly, so as to avoid contaminating our lungs with fresh air.

* * *

If you didn't read the story about the cigarette advertising ban in Sunday's paper, you are perhaps unaware of the extent of our loss as TV viewers. In one recent year, the story said, cigarette makers spent $226,000,000 on TV and radio advertising.

What is television going to be able to give us that could possibly provide the sort of intellectual stimulation we got from all those cigarette commercials? And what is television to do to make up for nearly a quarter of a billion dollars in advertising revenue that is about to go up, as they say, in smoke?

Actually, the networks will not suffer as much as you might suppose. For one thing, announcers will no longer be exposed to cigarette commercials and a lot of them will quit smoking. So they will no longer need cough buttons on their microphones. That will save the networks two or three hundred dollars right there.

As for the cigarette makers, you needn't worry that they will forget sports fans. Sunday's story about the TV ban said:

". . . the tobacco industry is using all of its marketing ingenuity to fill the void. Among other new promotions next year, cigarette makers will sponsor auto races, a Canadian golf tournament, a bowling tourney called the Winston-Salem Classic and a series of women's tennis matches dubbed the Virginia Slims international . . .

* * *

"The August issue of Tobacco Reporter, a trade journal, explained it this way:

" 'The advertising has been banned, but not the appearance of the product during the feature programming. For instance, at a stock car race, one or more of the participating vehicles will have a cigarette promotion blurb on its side. In following the race, the television cameras will pass fence advertisements while the pit crews and winners will be smoking with the cigarette pack prominently displayed.

" 'Such will hold true for any number of sporting events that appear on television. It could even go so far as to have the football booster sections displaying block cards that promote a particular brand.' "

But that still won't bring the Marlboro Man back to my living room. Watching football is not going to be the same without you, old podner. You're going to be missed. Just one last thing before you go: If I were you, I think I'd do something about that cough.

At Cedar Hill

Nearing completion at Cedar Hill golf course is new clubhouse, above, which is scheduled for opening late in January. Saanich Ald. William Noel, chairman of parks and outdoor recreation committee said golfers, when clubhouse is opened, will start play near end of Derby Road instead of on Finlayson as at present. The No. 18 hole will become No. 1 and No. 4 will become No. 10. Saanich officially takes over golf course just after New Year. — (William E. John)

Rangers Pass Bruins By Edging Seals, 3-2

New York Rangers defeated California Golden Seals, 3-2, in Tuesday's only National Hockey League game, moving past Boston Bruins into the East Division lead.

Playing their seventh game in 11 days, Rangers grabbed a 3-0 lead and then hung on to take a one-point lead.

Bruins have a chance to regain first place tonight when they make up one of their two games in hand against the North Stars in Minneapolis.

Tonight's game between Pittsburgh at Montreal will be telecast on Channel 8 starting at 5 p.m.

The win stretched New York's unbeaten streak at home this season to 19 games, including four ties, and added to two games at the end of the last regular season, tied the club record of 21 consecutive unbeaten games at home set two seasons ago.

Arnie Brown's first goal of the season, coming with both teams a man short midway through the second period, proved to be the winner.

Spurt by Ullman Scoring Feature

Phil Esposito of Boston Bruins slipped off his record average of two points per game during the past week and it could well be that his magic rubbed off on another centre — Norm Ullman of Toronto Maple Leafs.

While Esposito was managing "only" two goals and two assists in the three Boston games, Ullman climbed from 14th place to sixth in the league scoring race by scoring six goals and five assists in three games to bring his totals to 20 goals and 42 points.

Strength down the middle appears to be the keynote this season with five centres among the top 10 scorers, the others being New York's Jean Ratelle, Detroit's Alex Delvecchio and Toronto's Dave Keon.

And five of the next 10 scorers are also centres — Orland Kurtenbach and Andre Boudrias of Vancouver, Pit Martin and Stan Mikita of Chicago and Walt Tkaczuk of New York.

Winger Dave Balon of New York has taken some of the spotlight from the centres lately, becoming the third player, behind Esposito and Ullman, to reach the 20-goal mark. He currently has 21, 11 behind the pace-setting Boston star.

New York's Ed Giacomin (2.18) and Gilles Villemure (1.80) still lead the goalkeepers with a combined goals-against average of 2.11 per game. Gerry Desjardins (2.00) and Tony Esposito of Chicago (2.17) are next at 2.14.

Saanich Club Puts In Surprise Bid

CHILLIWACK — Saanich is making a surprise bid for the championship in the invitational peewee hockey jamboree which ends today at Chilliwack.

Saanich defeated favored North Shore, 8-6, in its opening game and advanced to the quarter-final, at 6 this morning against Burnaby, by defeating Merritt, 4-1.

Semi-finals will be played in the afternoon with the final at 9 p.m.

In the "B" division, the Saanich entry defeated Coquitlam, 5-0, but was knocked out in the second round by Kamloops, 3-0.

City Midgets Meet Today In Vancouver

NORTH VANCOUVER — Dave Archibald's second goal of the game, after 43 seconds of sudden-death overtime, gave Saanich a 2-1 win over Seattle Tuesday in the four-day invitational midget hockey tournament.

The win was Saanich's second in three games in the double-knockout event and the team will meet Esquimalt this morning with the winner advancing to meet Vancouver Pacific National Exhibition in the afternoon.

A total of 24 teams are participating in the tournament which ends today.

Vikings Get It

Spectacular Win

Tom Holmes' hook shot with two seconds remaining gave University of Victoria Vikings a 75-73 win over Warner Pacific College of Portland, Ore., in an exhibition men's basketball game Tuesday night at UVic gymnasium.

Holmes, held to two points in the first half, finished with 11 points and bottled up Portland's top scorer, Daryl Stroschine, in the second half. Stroschine had 13 points in the opening half and finished with 21 for the night, two more than teammate Rich McLean.

Warner Pacific started off quickly and looked as if they were going to run Vikings off the floor as they built a 7-0 lead. But Vikings recovered and were behind by one point at halftime, 41-42.

The teams were tied, 73-73, with a minute and five seconds remaining and Vikings kept possession of the ball and called a time out with eight seconds remaining to set up Holmes' shot.

The two teams meet again tonight starting at 8 p.m. at UVic.

Juniors Turn Down Impressed Seniors

CALGARY (CP) — Ron Butlin, president of the eastern Canada Hockey League, said Tuesday no further games will be played between senior hockey teams and members of the junior league.

The league gave permission for a benefit exhibition game Monday between the WCHL Calgary Centennials and the senior Calgary Stampeders of the Alberta Hockey League.

"We have a league ruling which prohibits exhibition games during our schedule except with affiliated teams."

The Stampeders found themselves in financial difficulties after the death of their owner in November and announced about a month later they would have to suspend operations.

STAMPS SAVED

Contributions and about $8,000 raised for the club at the game they lost, 4-1, to the Centennials appear to have provided sufficient funds for the team to continue, but no official word has been given.

The Alberta Hockey League has an interlocking schedule with the Saskatchewan Senior Hockey League and the Western International Hockey League.

Butlin said he received two requests Tuesday for similar exhibition games from other senior teams, but rejected their proposals.

It Starts At 11 a.m.

Set six hours aside next Sunday, football fans — the CBC, CBS and NBC networks have announced final TV details for the two National Football League divisional championships.

Word came Tuesday that the AFC final, Oakland at Baltimore, will begin at 11 a.m. on Channel 5 while the NFC final, Dallas at San Francisco, will start at 2 p.m. on Channels 2, 6, 7 and 12.

Both starting times are an hour later than usual due to other network TV commitments.

Brodie

Brodie Willing To Be Ex-Champ

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Whether the amateur champion of the Bing Crosby golf tournament gets to defend his crown two weeks from now will depend on the outcome of the National Football Conference title game.

The amateur is John Brodie, record-setting quarterback for San Francisco '49ers who are matched against Dallas Cowboys Sunday.

If the '49ers win, they have a Super Bowl date in Miami Jan. 17, the same day as the final round of the Crosby classic at Pebble Beach.

Brodie and Bob Rosburg won the Pro-Am last January, but John hopes he will have to send his regrets this time, avid golfer though he is.

Brodie sparkled in a 7-6-1 season in 1968, but then the '49ers fell off to 4-8-2 in 1969.

Then Brodie hit the peak in 1970.

With an improved line and sharp receivers, he led conference passers and was sacked only eight times, a new league record.

He completed 223 passes for 2941 yards and became the fourth quarterback in pro history to exceed 2000 completions and 25,000 yards during his career.

Coaching Ability May Hurt Landry

DALLAS (AP) — How do you go about beating someone you've taught everything you know?

That's the problem of coach Tom Landry in preparing his Dallas Cowboys for Sunday's National Football Conference final with San Francisco '49ers in Kezar Stadium.

The coach of the '49ers is Dick Nolan, Landry's defensive coach in 1966 and 1967 when the Cowboys came close to defeating Green Bay Packers for the National Football League title.

"Tom taught me everything I know," Nolan said Sunday after San Francisco had upset Minnesota Vikings, 17-14. "I'll enjoy playing against him."

DEFENCE STINGY

The Dallas defence has gone 21 consecutive quarters without allowing a touchdown, but Landry is making it clear the Cowboys can't live by defence alone against the '49ers.

"I know this, we'll have to do some scoring against San Francisco because the '49ers will be scoring with a guy like quarterback John Brodie in there," Landry said.

Dallas rushed for more than 200 yards against Detroit Lions in the 5-0 victory Sunday and came away with only a field goal. Quarterback Craig Morton could hit but four of 18 passes for 38 yards.

Bruins Shift To Avoid Football TV

BOSTON (AP) — Boston Bruins took notice of U.S. football's Super Bowl when they announced changes in starting times for two National Hockey League games at Boston Garden.

Because of the Super Bowl telecast on Jan. 17, a scheduled game with Toronto Maple Leafs was shifted from afternoon to night.

The Toronto game was scheduled for television. It will be replaced on TV by a game with the St. Louis Blues Jan. 31, moved from night to afternoon.

No Reason to Laugh

They didn't laugh after Arnold Palmer and Jesse Owens had performed but there were a few grins when the famous golfer and one-time Olympic sprint champion agreed to join orchestra at recent charity function in Detroit. Palmer picked up the bass fiddle, Owens sat down in front of drums and both displayed talent that had previously gone largely undetected. — (AP)

Joe Learned to Relax During Bombardment

By ALLAN R. BRUCE

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UPI) — Joe Daley learned to relax on the busiest night of his career. Now he doesn't worry any more.

Daley, 27, one of two remaining goaltenders in the National Hockey League who refuse to wear a mask, says he was never able to settle down while on the Pittsburgh Penguin roster a year ago.

"When I was with Pittsburgh, I felt that if I didn't come up with a superlative effort every time I got on the ice I would get sent to the minors," Daley says. As it was, he split the 1969-70 season between the Penguins and Baltimore of the American Hockey League.

But Daley was obtained by the Buffalo Sabres in the NHL expansion draft last June and in Buffalo he isn't under "that kind of pressure any more."

Now the pressure comes from a porous defence that gives opposition sharpshooters too many shots on goal — they've been averaging 43.5 shots per game against Daley.

"I think I probably matured about 20 years in the Boston game" Dec. 10, Daley says. That was the busiest night of his career as the Stanley Cup champions poured 72 shots on goal, scoring eight times. Daley held Boston to a 2-2 tie after two periods before the Sabres checking collapsed completely in the final stanza.

"Before Boston, I used to worry a lot about past games and past performances," Daley says. "Now I take each game as it comes. I realized that if I could go out and withstand that (Boston attack) I could play in the National Hockey League."

Daley has been used primarily as a backup to Sabres' regular goalie Roger Crozier this season, but that doesn't bother him. He says there is no jealousy among himself, Crozier and Buffalo's other backup goalie, Dave Dryden.

But don't get Joe Daley wrong. Joe Daley is the guy he'd most like to see in uniform. Hockey games are long, nerve-racking contests when viewed from the press box.

Daley has played in only 11 of the Sabres' 34 games this season, but most of the action has come in recent weeks while Crozier has been ill. Daley has shown a steady improvement and he picked up his first win last Sunday, a 5-2 decision over the Detroit Red Wings while the Sabres were outshot, 46-20.

The win was especially sweet for Daley. He won it for Crozier, who was obtained by Buffalo from Detroit and was scheduled to start the game but spent the time in a hospital bed instead.

Daley and veteran Lorne "Gump" Worsley of the Minnesota North Stars are alone as the NHL goalies who refuse to wear a mask.

Daley says tending goal is "tough enough without distractions. Until I find the right mask, I won't be wearing one. They say you have to be a little nuts to play goal, anyway — and I guess this proves it.

"Anyway, I stopped worrying about losing my looks a long time ago."

Red Smith

A group headed by Sonny Werblin, former president of the New York Jets, has withdrawn as bidder for the Joe Frazier-Cassius Clay fight after reportedly offering an unprecedented guarantee of $5,000,000 divided evenly between the boxers.

Werblin planned to put a plastic bubble on Singer Bowl in Flushing Meadow and promote the match there with a live attendance of about 20,000. Closed-circuit television would be expected to produce most of the receipts.

Reached by telephone at his winter home in Miami Beach, Werblin said: "I have no comment to make about being a bidder or withdrawing or anything else." Then he added:

"I am not a bidder. I had a conversation with 'em and that's as far as it went. I have heard so many things . . ." He left the sentence unfinished.

Associated with Werblin in the venture, according to the source, were his friend Bobby Sarnoff of National Broadcasting Company and Johnny Carson, the talk-show host.

There are two versions of Werblin's reason for withdrawing. One is that Clay was holding out for $3,000,000 instead of $2,500,000, and wore out Sonny's patience. When they didn't reach agreement by Werblin's Dec. 18 deadline, he pulled out and went to Florida.

The other version is that financial advisers at NBC did not consider the promotion a sound investment. If this is so, they were not alone in their judgment, for several big corporations have expressed interest in promoting the fight and then withdrawn. One of the first was General Electric, which is interested in the recreational-entertainment field.

* * *

Another bidder was Andy Williams, the singer. At one point he seemed so near agreement with the principals that Frazier started for New York to sign papers. He had travelled only four blocks from the Philadelphia office of Cloverlay, Inc., the corporation that owns all those pieces of him, when New York called on the telephone of his gold Cadillac. "Don't come," he was told. "This guy is chickening out."

The Werblin group's offer was a flat guarantee, with no option of percentages from TV, radio, films, or live gate. No athlete in any field has ever collected $2,500,000 for one performance, and the big purses which have been paid were all a percentage of receipts, never a guarantee.

Biggest ever collected from a live gate was Gene Tunney's $990,445 for defending the heavyweight championship against Jack Dempsey in Soldiers Field, Chicago, in 1927 (Gene gave Tex Rickard, the promoter, $9,555 so Tex could write him a check for an even $1,000,000).

According to Nat Fleischer's Ring Encyclopedia, Floyd Patterson and Sonny Liston each received a total of $1,434,000, mostly from closed-circuit, for their second match in Las Vegas in 1963. Under the record of their first match, in Chicago in 1963, a footnote reads: "The U.S. government attached the gate receipts and those from theatre TV, which grossed approximately $4,000,000 of which Patterson's share was $2,000,000." It is not clear that Floyd actually received such pay.

The fight mob is agreed that with threatre TV Frazier and Ali will break all records. This is because of the strong feelings raised by Clay's remarkable personality, by his position vis-a-vis Vietnam and Selective Service, and by the opponents' conflicting claims to the heavyweight championship of the world. Sweet are the uses of controversy.

* * *

It is said Werblin looked on the promotion as his valedictory, wanted to be known as the man who had put on the biggest money fight of all times. Anybody who knows him can believe it. When he resigned as president of Music Corporation of America, Variety said this about the man who had got his start booking dance bands:

"If he was not broadcasting's greatest showman, he certainly qualified as its greatest promoter and salesman. No one had better contacts, knew more secrets, swapped more information, flew more airline miles, ate more meals at 21, made more deals or sold so many hundreds of millions of dollars worth of programming."

Up to now, the showman has made his mark on two sports. He organized the group that bought the bankrupt Titans of the American Football League, renamed them Jets, and hired the $427,000 quarterback, Joe Namath, who was to lead them to the world championship. His signing of Namath was the making of the AFL; it set off the bidding war with the older National League which forced the leagues to merge.

A part owner of Monmouth Park, he races a stable that has included outstanding horses, notably Silent Screen, last winter's future book favorite for the Kentucky Derby. By oversight Silent Screen was not entered for the Hopeful at Saratoga two summers ago. In a typical gesture, Werblin gave Bowes Bond, his trainer, and Johnny Rotz, the jockey, the $15,000 he would have paid as a supplementary entry fee.

He would have put his mark on boxing.

Skating Champion Fails P-E Course

ROCKFORD, Ill. (AP) — Janet Lynn, the United States women's figure skating champion and one of America's premier hopefuls for a gold medal in the 1972 Olympics, may not be graduated from high school because she lacks credits in physical education.

Miss Lynn's father, Ralph Nowicki, said Monday, "It's really kind of a comedy. It's become a family joke."

The teen-age skating champion uses only her first and middle names in competition, dropping her family name.

Nowicki, a Rockford pharmacist, said the family was not aware of Janet's predicament until recently.

Janet is an honor student.

Officials at Guilford high school have presented the problem to the Rockford Board of Education, which has the power to grant an exception.

Paul Blair Will Remember 1970

By MILTON RICHMAN

NEW YORK (UPI) — Some people are getting set already.

They're going around synchronizing their watches hours in advance because they want to make sure they don't miss that precise moment when midnight rolls around Thursday and everybody wishes everybody else a happy New Year.

MESSAGE LEFT

Paul Blair, the centre fielder for the Baltimore Orioles, is no different than anyone else. He's getting ready for the new year also. But there has to be a message for everybody, or at least a moral, in the kind of old year Paul Blair had.

Maybe the message is never give up; maybe the moral is when nothing else works sometimes prayer does.

Paul Blair will always remember the year 1970 if only for one day — May 31. That was the day the Orioles were in Anaheim, California for a ball game with the Angels and that was the day it was nearly all over for Paul Blair.

Ken Tatum, since traded to the Red Sox by the Angels, hit Blair with a pitch just below the left eye.

There's only one way to describe the way Paul Blair looked when they carted him off to the hospital and he does a pretty good job of describing it himself.

"I WAS A MESS"

"I was a mess," he says. "My eyebone was shattered, my nose was broken and so were most of the other bones in my face. The doctor said a half inch higher and my eye would've been out. He said I also was gonna have double vision for a couple' months."

That was what bothered the 26-year-old Blair most. He made his living hitting a baseball and if he stood up there at the plate and saw two of them where there really was only one, well, you can figure the rest out yourself.

Blair

They put a patch over Paul Blair's left eye for five days and in between the kidding he took from some of his Baltimore teammates about being the new Moishe Dayan Paul Blair was scared.

"I was scared stiff I'd never play again so I lay there in my bed and prayed every night," Blair says.

HE PEEKED

Now it turns out Paul Blair is one of those ballplayers Jim Bouton wrote about — a peeper.

Blair had been specifically warned by his doctor not to touch the patch over his eye under any circumstances but he couldn't help himself he claims.

So at night after the doctors and nurses had left and he was in his room all alone, Paul Blair would get off the bed, walk into the bathroom, flick on the light, pull the patch way from his eye . . . and peek!

"I didn't see double at all," Blair remembers. "Was I happy!"

Paul Blair was so happy he was back in action again only three weeks after he nearly lost his eye. He finished the season with 18 home runs, 65 runs batted in, 24 stolen bases and a .267 average. That isn't half bad.

Then came the World Series with Cincinnati and nobody — technically not even Brooks Robinson — had a better one than Paul Blair.

He cracked out nine hits and led both clubs with a .474 average.

When they passed out all that champagne in the Orioles' dizzy dressing room on Oct. 15 following the final game of the series in which he had gone three-for-four, Paul Blair stood off rather quietly to the side and hardly drank any.

He's not that big for champagne so the chances are he won't be having any at midnight Thursday.

While others will be going around noisily ushering in the new year Paul Blair will be doing some quiet thinking about the old one. He figures there's a message in it somewhere for everybody.

Particulars Today

Frazier vs. Clay

NEW YORK — The long-awaited heavyweight title showdown between Joe Frazier and Cassius Clay now appears set for Madison Square Garden and closed circuit television on March 8.

Garden boxing officials Tuesday announced a press luncheon for noon Wednesday, indicating that the negotiations have been completed.

There have been reports that each fighter has been guaranteed a purse of $2.5 million for a show expected to gross close to $10 million.

It has been reported that Jerry Perenchio, a California agent, negotiated the bout and will form a new company to handle the closed circuit television.

The fighters' guarantees alone nearly match the record live gate for the second fight between Gene Tunney and Jack Dempsey. That fight in 1927, grossed only $158,000 more than Clay or Frazier will receive.

For the first time in history an unbeaten former champion, Clay, and an unbeaten current champion, Frazier, will be fighting for the title. The 26-year-old Frazier gained recognition as undisputed champion on Feb. 16 by stopping Jimmy Ellis in five rounds and defended his title on Nov. 18 by knocking out Bob Foster in two rounds for his 26th consecutive victory and 23rd kayo.

Clay, deposed as champion in 1967, for refusing to go into the U.S. Army, was given permission earlier this year to return to the ring. The 28-year-old Philadelphian made a successful comeback by stopping Jerry Quarry on Oct. 26 in Atlanta in three rounds and followed that with a 15-round technical knockout against Oscar Bonavena on Dec. 7, to run his record to 31 consecutive victories and 25 knockouts.

A bidding war for the bout has been going on for the last two weeks between Madison Square Garden and Houston's Astrodome. However, neither of the major promoters were willing to match the $2,500,000 guarantee by the Perenchio group.

Next Pro Golf Tour Offers $7,124,801

NEW YORK (AP) — The 1971 professional golf tour will be the busiest and richest in history, Joseph C. Dey Jr., commissioner of the Professional Golfers Association Tournament Players Division, said Monday.

Sixty-three tournaments are scheduled or are under negotiation for 1971 and they do not include the Ryder Cup and World Cup competitions. In 1970 there were a record 55 tournaments.

Prize money in 1971 will total $7,124,801 compared to $6,751,523 this year.

The satellite tour also will be increased in 1971 with 15 tournaments, compared to six in 1970, and will be worth $445,000.

Eight tournaments in 1971 will have prize money of at least $200,000 on the assumption that the PGA championship, the U.S. Open and the Masters will again be in that category. Topping the list will be the Westchester Classic June 22-25 with a gross of $250,000.

The PGA will be played Feb. 25-28 at Palm Beach, Fla.; the Masters April 8-11 at Augusta, Ga., and the U.S. Open June 17-20 at Ardmore, Pa.

Australian Team Wins Tennis Cup

PERTH, Australia (AP) — Margaret Court followed up on a second set break and sparked Australia to victory over Great Britain in the finals of the Federation Cup women's tennis tournament Tuesday.

Mrs. Court, playing nervously in the blistering heat, had dropped the first set to British veteran Ann Jones, 8-6, then got a break in the second set.

It was in the eighth game when Mrs. Court's scorching forehand drive caught the top of the net and dribbled over. She took that game to lead 5-3 and held service at love for a 6-3 decision.

She rattled up a 4-1 lead in the final set and took it 6-2 to nail down the Cup for Australia for the fifth time.

Yvonne Goolagong of Australia romped past Britain's Virginia Wade 6-4, 6-1 in the first match and Mrs. Court's triumph gave the Australians an unbeatable 2-0 lead. The Australian girls also won the meaningless doubles match 6-4, 6-4.

Harness Racing Response Tabled as 'Encouraging'

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia Jockey Club says it's off to an encouraging start in a bid to establish harness racing at Exhibition Park despite some early setbacks.

Figures released by Al Grillo, harness racing general manager, show wagering for the first 17 days of the 47-day winter meeting was $1,234,191, an average of $72,599.

Attendance averaged 1,902 for a total of 32,337.

"I think these figures are encouraging for a start," said Grillo.

"Remember when Greenwood Raceway (at Toronto) first started, they thought $80,000 a day was a good handle. Now they bet more than $550,000 a day."

Prior to the opening of the meet Nov. 13, Grillo said that projections indicated an average handle of $100,000 would be enough to carry it through the inaugural season. Opening night at Exhibition Park has been the best with $118,724 wagered. The smallest handle was $60,912 on Nov. 25.

Pinto

Three reasons why . . .
Pinto is no ordinary small car.
Reason No. 1—Its engines are made in Germany and England by Ford of Europe. Over 4,000,000 of these engines have been produced. A modified version powers the famous Lola and Lotus racing cars.

These engines give you outstanding reliability and performance.

Reason No. 2—The steering is great. It's called rack and pinion. No other North American car has it—but some imports—like Jaguar, Ferrari and Porsche.

Rack and pinion steering gives you excellent handling, quick turning. But that's not all. Reason No. 3—Pinto also has the widest track in the small car field: this means its wheels are wider apart for much better stability when passing, turning or in strong wind.

Five Easy Pieces Best Film

NEW YORK (CP) — Dan George, an Indian chief from North Vancouver who was a longshot selection in the movie Little Big Man, turned in such a memorable performance that the New York film critics group awarded him its prize for best supporting actor.

George, a Salish chief, won critical praise for his part as Old Lodge Skins, a Cheyenne chief. Critics praised his innate dignity, called his performance a joy to watch, and one critic used the term "priceless" to describe the scene where the Chief prepares for his own imminent death.

* * *

A hereditary chief, George was a logger and longshoreman prior to his start as an actor.

This came about accidentally when his son was an extra in a CBC production in which a white actor played the key role of an old Indian.

When the actor became ill, the son asked the producer: "Why not give a real Indian a chance?"

Some parts of Little Big Man were filmed in Alberta. It had its world premiere in New York in mid-December.

The New York film awards were announced Monday night.

Five Easy Pieces, a film (partly shot in Victoria) about a man who flees from his family and from society, won the award for the best film of 1970.

* * *

George C. Scott was best actor of the year for his portrayal of the title character in Patton, the general who loved war. British actress Glenda Jackson was selected best actress of the year for her portrayal of the liberated woman in the film Women in Love based on the novel by D. H. Lawrence.

Bob Rafelson was voted best director for Five Easy Pieces.

Best screen writing was by Eric Rohmer, who also directed My Night at Maud's, a French film.

Karen Black was best supporting actress for her portrayal of the mistress in Five Easy Pieces.

The awards are sometimes considered the most important in the motion picture industry.

* * *

The group doing the selecting is composed of 22 critics from New York's daily newspapers, national magazines based in New York, radio and television stations and networks.

In the balloting, Five Easy Pieces was the clear winner. Runners-up included The Passion of Anna, a film by Swedish director Ingmar Bergman.

Also named were M.A.S.H., Patton, Costa-Gavras's French film The Confession, the Spanish film Tristana, My Night at Maud's, O Hazard Balthazar, Ryan's Daughter, Catch-22 and Fellini Satyricon.

Federico Fellini was close runner-up for best director.

Big Swing for Pendulum

Love Story Due For Oscar Rank

By BILL THOMAS

Spring is just around the corner and along with all the attendant wonders of nature it will be Oscar-time in Hollywood again.

The cat fight that goes on behind the scenes before the little gold men are handed out is probably underway, but my prediction is that Erich Segal's Love Story will take the cake.

Apart from the fact that it is a brilliant picture, Love Story represents the swing of the pendulum away from sex, violence, acres of skin, and boneyards of battered heads. Love Story is very simply exactly that — a love story.

The potency of its drawing power at the Fox Cinema is displayed by the fact that the line-up goes around the corner, from Quadra up Hillside.

Edmonton-born director Arthur Hiller has handled Ali MacGraw and Ryan O'Neal extremely well. They bring exactly the brashness and also the tenderness that Segal intended.

The plot is disarmingly simple, so much so that when it was rewritten in book form it turned out to be a long short story. It also happened to be a 5 million-copy best-seller.

MacGraw and O'Neal are a delight, with Miss MacGraw having a slight edge on acting talent. But it is a bit unfair to play favorites for both are really superb.

Ray Milland gives a brilliant character portrayal as a high altitude member of the establishment, who is the father of the student played by O'Neal. It would seem obvious that Milland has a whole new career ahead of him, if he wants it, as a character actor.

John Marley is also excellent as the other father who is at the other end of the social scale.

Love Story has without a doubt the finest musical score in a long time. Francis Lai has come up with some wonderful music which really makes the picture. His original music gets a boost from Bach and Mozart, but the handling of the score is so sensitive that it is on a par with the music of Elvira Madigan.

But then, Mozart had a hand in that, too.

Segal's script Love Story has been described as "not so much about where it's at, but how it feels." It quite definitely is a film that shouldn't be missed. But don't go without a plentiful supply of paper handkerchiefs.

As cinema manager Barney Simmons said, "After most pictures we go in and clean up the popcorn. With Love Story, we have to mop up the tears."

Curtain Time Earlier

NEW YORK (UPI) — Beginning next Monday, night life on Broadway begins at 7:30.

Producers and theatre operators belonging to the League of New York Theatres are advancing the nightly curtain time from 8:30 p.m. to 7:30 p.m. in response to requests from theatregoers.

The earlier curtains will reduce the period between the end of the business day and the start of the theatre night, and will enable theatregoers to get home earlier.

Curtain time for matinees also will be advanced from 2:30 p.m. to 2 p.m.

Bingo Anyone?

New Clamps On Lotteries

The provincial cabinet has adopted a new set of regulations governing lotteries, including provisions that apply to bingo games.

One of the new clauses requires the sponsors of bingo games to purchase yearly licences of $100.

Another sets the limit for lottery prizes, excluding bingo games, at $5,000 cash or merchandise or real or personal property having that equivalent retail market value.

Exept in the case of a bingo game, not less than 35 per cent of the gross proceeds of a lottery is required to be paid to a charitable or religious cause. The objects of the lottery must be set out in the licence.

The regulations also forbid anyone being paid wages or salaries for running a lottery. The only exceptions will be those persons who are specifically authorized to do so by the attorney-general's department.

The department also gets wider powers in setting fees.

"The attorney-general may prescribe a fee to be paid by any organization, taking into account the size of the organization and the nature of the lottery, other than bingo, to be held," says an amendment to the regulations.

Lottery tickets must include the name of the sponsoring organization, the location, date and time of the draw, and must be consecutively numbered. Organizers must retain all unsold tickets for not less than 90 days.

Police, Firemen Push with Will

Saanich and Victoria police and firemen entertained about 40 young cerebral palsy victims Tuesday when they took them for rides on ice surface of Memorial Arena in these colorful sleighs, then gave them treats of candy and soft drinks. Driver's Presence Before Judge Termed 'Miracle'

"Well, the miracle is that you're here at all," Judge William Ostler said Tuesday in Victoria Provincial Court to a man who pleaded guilty to a charge of impaired driving.

The man, Gary Edward Shillingford, 25, of 299 View Royal, replied: "Yes, your honor."

The judge referred to the fact that a breath-analysis test taken after Shillingford was stopped Dec. 12 in Victoria showed a blood-alcohol reading of .28 per cent when driving with a reading of more than .08 per cent is a crime in Canada.

The judge fined Shillingford $450.

Donald Marlow Champion, 31, of 1747 Emerson, who is facing a number of charges, informed the judge his bid for Legal Aid had been refused and asked for another remand before electing trial method.

The judge agreed, putting the case over to next Tuesday and adding: "But you'll be expected to make your election at that time."

Champion faces three charges laid by Victoria police. One includes one count of possession of nitroglycerine, one count of possession of explosives and two counts and possession of stolen goods. The second is a single charge of possession of stolen goods and the third contains two counts of false pretences.

☐

Terrance Southwick, 23, of 3080 Earl Grey, was remanded to Jan. 6 for election of trial method on a charge of theft involving more than $50 after he asked for time to seek Legal Aid. The charge was laid Dec. 21 by Saanich police.

Southwick is also due to appear Jan. 11 for preliminary hearing on one RCMP charge of trafficking in heroin and another of trafficking in MDA.

Locked Away

PARIS (Reuter) — Charles de Gaulle's papers will be stored in the National Archives here and will not be available to the general public for 50 years, the culture ministry announced Tuesday.

Capilano Fall Kills Hiker

NORTH VANCOUVER (CP) — A middle-aged hiker was killed Monday in a fall down the steep Capilano Canyon in North Vancouver.

The man is believed to have been climbing the bank near the Capilano suspension bridge when he slipped and fell to the floor of the canyon. It took North Vancouver district firemen an hour to get the body to the top of the canyon.

Fires Face Wetter Water

Whether by wetter water or by slippery water, the business of fighting fires is changing — and the Victoria fire department is looking into ways of keeping up with the changes.

A spokesman for the department disclosed Tuesday that consideration has been given to "wetter water," which is a chemical that penetrates such packed substances as paper and wool more readily than plain water.

* * *

The chemical apparently has the effect of penetrating quickly to the source of flames in such materials, saturating it and cutting off the oxygen.

The disclosure was made when the department was asked for comment on a report about "slippery water," which is a different chemical that cuts down the friction loss in hose lines and allows more water to pass through at a greater velocity.

The spokesman said the department had been informed of the "slippery water" chemical and would look into it.

* * *

"Slippery water" features automatic chemical conversion of fire-hydrant water to a fluid that flows faster through hoses. The idea has been tested in New York City, where more than 100 specially-equipped pumpers have been ordered.

"Wetter water" was described by the Victoria spokesman as "not a very large expenditure." It would require a container for about 10 gallons on the side of each pumper truck, with the chemical put in hoses by induction or gravity.

Regionalism Hit In Parliament

About two hours was spent in debate Tuesday on the matter of regional government by the 40th session of the Older Boys' Parliament of B.C., in session in the legislative chambers.

Delegates from the northern part of the province felt that a resolution which would centre the parliament's activities in the Kelowna district was unfair and failed to take into account the fact that a large part of the province was being excluded.

Public relations minister Don MacLeod, of Vancouver, said that debate was spirited and that there was strong opposition to the establishment of any form of a regional pattern which would exclude the north.

"It was really a housekeeping sort of day with discussion of procedure and internal matters with relation to the Parliament," Macleod said, "but we expect a strong lobby to develop before the end of the week in favor of the inclusion of girls to our membership.

"Generally the picture is broadening," he added, "and we expect to be able to take a more comprehensive view of the whole province."

The 55-member house is associated with the Canadian Council of Churches and all members are drawn from Christian youth groups.

The house will sit until Thursday debating government and private members' bills as part of the annual session to give young men a better understanding of the operation of a democratic parliament.

Jets for Libya

PARIS (UPI)—France will start delivering Mirage jet fighters to Libya early in January, government sources said Tuesday. The sources said the planes were the first of an order for 110 aircraft placed by Libya in January, 1970.

The special Joint Committee of the Senate and the House of Commons on the Constitution of Canada is travelling across Canada to find out what people think about our country and its future—whether our present constitution meets all our requirements.

It will be something like a Town Hall meeting. Everybody who loves Canada and has some ideas about the way it should grow and develop is invited. You don't have to be an expert or represent any group. We want the opinions of individual Canadians—men and women, old and young, rich and poor and in-between. Your thoughts can be spoken or you may wish to present a brief, or you may prefer to sit and listen.

You will be most welcome. Come and enjoy a friendly exchange of views on questions that affect the future of Canada—the constitutional aspects of questions like:

Le Comité spécial mixte du Sénat et de la Chambre des communes sur la Constitution du Canada visite toutes les régions du pays pour connaître ce que les citoyens pensent du Canada, de son avenir et pour savoir si la Constitution actuelle convient à leurs aspirations.

Les réunions du Comité revêtiront le caractère de réunions publiques. Cette invitation s'adresse à tous ceux qui aiment le Canada et qui veulent le voir se développer comme il convient. Point n'est besoin d'être expert ou de représenter un groupement. Le Comité veut connaître l'opinion de tous les Canadiens quels qu'ils soient, hommes et femmes, jeunes et moins jeunes, riches et pauvres. Il est loisible à chacun d'exprimer ses idées oralement ou par écrit ou bien simplement d'assister aux réunions.

Le Comité vous invite cordialement à participer à cet échange d'idées sur les problèmes constitutionnels qui façonneront l'avenir du Canada.

High View Surprise To Admiral

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Coast Guard admiral forced to retire because of his role in returning a defecting Soviet seaman said Tuesday he thought at the time his superiors approved of the move.

Rear-Admiral William Ellis told a House of Representatives foreign affairs subcommittee that in the absence of any guidance from the coast guard command in Washington he felt returning the defector was proper.

"Either they weren't going to give us any advice or they agreed with it," he said in explanation for his instruction to have Simas Kudirka returned to a Russian fishing boat Nov. 23 without further word from Washington.

Ellis, a coast guard district commander, and Capt. Fletcher Brown, his chief of staff, were recommended for a court martial by a coast guard board that investigated the incident. Both officers accepted retirement instead.

Ellis said he was concerned about the fishing-rights talks then going on between the United States and the Soviet Union when he recommended to Brown that Kudirka be returned.

Home Test Detects Pregnancy

A do-it-yourself pregnancy test, the first of its kind to be marketed in Canada, is being sold in some Victoria drug stores for $5.25.

It has been described by the manufacturers as a simple and accurate test to detect a hormone present in the urine of pregnant women.

* * *

The amount of this hormone increases during the early stages of pregnancy and may be detected as early as four days after a missed menstrual period.

A pharmacist with a Victoria retail drug store said the product seemed "to come out of the blue" two weeks ago. It was a surprise, he explained, because he had not read about it earlier in any of the literature.

* * *

The manufacturers say it is not intended to replace a doctor's diagnosis but rather to encourage women to seek early advice.

"Clinical testing has been carried out in Canada with an accuracy of more than 96 per cent among groups of non-technically trained women representing a cross-section of educational and economic backgrounds," said George C. Jackson, general manager of Denver Laboratories (Canada) Ltd.

Gas for Cong Springs U.S. Leak

GREAT MEADOWS, N.J. (AP) — Residents near the Gamma Chemical Co. plant here say their crops, animals and health are harmed by tear gas dust made for use against the Viet Cong.

The agent occasionally leaks from the plant and is carried by winds. Richard Sullivan, New Jersey environmental protection commissioner, has ordered the firm to comply with state pollution laws by Jan. 15 or close down.

Bus Dispute Hearing Set

The B.C. Mediation Commission will hold a hearing Thursday in Vancouver seeking a settlement in the contract dispute between British Columbia Hydro and transit bus drivers.

The hearing was called after the term of mediator Gus Leonidas expired and his report on the dispute was made available to Hydro and the Amalgamated Transit Union.

The hearing does not prohibit a strike which the union, with 1,800 members in Vancouver and Victoria, has threatened to commence Monday if there is no settlement by then.

The three-man mediation commission's decision will not be binding on either party, but the provincial cabinet could make the decision binding under section 18 of the Mediation Commission Act.

The union is an affiliate of the B.C. Federation of Labor which has a policy of boycotting hearings of the mediation commission in protest against its powers of compulsory arbitration.

A union spokesman said its representatives would not appear voluntarily at the scheduled Thursday hearing but that the union would abide by the law if its officers or members were summonsed to appear.

B.C. Hydro had offered the union a 6.5-per-cent wage increase in a two-year contract. The old contract expired in October. The union has rejected the offer.

Publisher Readies FLQ Member's Book

TORONTO (CP) — McClelland and Stewart Ltd. announced Monday it will publish in February an English translation of a book by Pierre Vallieres, who has been charged with sedition in Montreal.

The book, Les Negres Blancs d'Amerique — White Negroes of America — gives Vallieres' reasons for joining the Front de Liberation du Quebec about 1966.

"It is because I cannot bear to be a nigger that I joined the FLQ," Vallieres wrote. ". . . The Quebec revolution will not stop."

Jack McClelland, head of the publishing house, said Monday he asked Justice Minister John Turner whether publication of the book would contravene any legislation, including the Public Order Temporary Measures Act, 1970, which bans dissemination of FLQ propaganda.

McClelland said Mr. Turner told him the provincial attorneys-general would be the ones to decide in such a matter.

"I'm not going to try to get permission from every provincial attorney-general in the country," the publisher said.

Vallieres, a 32-year-old self-educated journalist, wrote Les Negres Blancs d'Amerique while in prison in 1968 in connection with a 1966 bombing.

In 1963, he was chosen by Pierre Trudeau and Gerard Pelletier to succeed them as editor of the review Cite Libre, but by 1966 Vallieres was a prominent supporter of the FLQ.

Trudeau Recognizes Liberal Discontent

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau has formally recognized discontent in Liberal ranks because of the government's quick rejection of two resolutions out of the party's policy convention here last month.

Liberal party headquarters Tuesday made public a four-page letter written Dec. 18 by Trudeau to a convention delegate, Denise Howe of Rexdale, Ont., giving a detailed explanation for the rejections. A copy went to all convention delegates.

The explanation had already been given in the Commons and elsewhere by the prime minister.

The rejected resolutions called for establishment of an independent review board to oversee administration of the anti-terrorist public order act and for implementation of a guaranteed annual income plan.

Logging Protested

Blast Puts Two in Jail

YELLOWKNIFE, N.W.T. (CP) — Terrance John Smith, 23, formerly of Vancouver, and Frank Edward Fischer, 22, formerly of Kelowna, were sentenced to eight months imprisonment Tuesday in court when they pleaded guilty to charges of damaging, by explosives, two cars owned by RCMP officers.

* * *

Territorial Judge Mr. Justice W. G. Morrow also sentenced the two to a 12-month probation period to run following the sentence.

Smith and Fischer, who have been living in Yellowknife for about six months, were arrested after RCMP Inspector H. A. Feagan's private car had received about $1,600 damage in a blast.

A staff sergeant's car, parked nearby, was also damaged.

Esquimalt Rink Wins Top Event

Rinks from the host club and Racquet Club of Victoria split the event championships in the 10th annual Christmas mixed bonspiel at the Esquimalt Curling Club, which ended late Monday night.

Al Paterson of Esquimalt captured the "A" event title with a 9-8 victory over Don Edl of the Victoria club after slipping by Victoria's Vern McDougall, 7-6, in the semi-final. Edl advanced to the final with a 12-5 victory over clubmate Don Oulton.

"B" honors went to Ron Young of the Racquet Club with a 5-4 victory over Esquimalt's Joe Iannarelli. Young downed Duncan's Howie Valleau, 10-7, and Iannarelli ousted Victoria's George Becker, 10-4, in the semi-finals.

Len Bjola of Esquimalt won the "C" event with an 8-7 win over Terry Archer of Edmonton. In semi-final action, Bjola downed clubmate Larry Robinson, 10-7, and Archer scored a 9-6 triumph over Playland's Stan Olson.

Gary Webster of Racquet Club won the "D" event by defeating Esquimalt's Don McMillan, 9-7, after advancing with a 6-5 win over Roy Horrigan, also of Esquimalt. McMillan downed clubmate Ed Sinnott, 7-6, to reach the final.

Veteran Sportsman Buried on Tuesday

Funeral services were held Tuesday for Percy C. Shrimpton, who died Thursday at the age of 80 in the Veterans' Hospital.

A follower of soccer and hockey until shortly before his death, Shrimpton was rated as one of the top goalkeepers in the province during his soccer career, which ended with the Hudson's Bay team in the old Wednesday league. He refereed the sport after completing his playing career.

He was also wicketkeeper for the defunct Five C's when they dominated the local cricket league.

Shrimpton, a native of Watford, England, came to Victoria in 1912.

His wife, Mary, died last February and Shrimpton is survived by his son, John, of Victoria; foster son, Norman Foster, of Courtenay, and his daughters, Mrs. May Edwards of Seattle and Mrs. Mill Ogden of Nanaimo.

Policemen Were Hanged from Trees—Poles

By BENT RIIS-CLESEN

GDANSK, Poland (AP) — This city is calm now but what it was two weeks ago can be seen in the burned-out Communist party headquarters — and is echoed in reports of people who say they saw policemen hanged from trees.

"The crowd went mad because of the brutality used by the police," said a 17-year-old youth who asserted he saw 10 policemen lynched and other policemen dumped into an icy creek after being stripped of their clothing.

* * *

A 24-year-old salesgirl said: "I did not see the executions myself but my girl-friend told me she was there and saw one of the police strung up."

There was no official confirmation of the reports.

Police have never given a detailed account of the violence that raged here and elsewhere in Poland in the rioting over an increase in prices of essential goods. Nobody knows the exact number of dead in Gdansk. The government has said 20 persons were killed. Others estimate the toll to be in the hundreds.

Poles here attack the Polish news media for not telling the truth.

* * *

One informant said police killed at least a dozen civilians in front of the burning party headquarters.

Now people are strolling the streets. Restaurants and bars are open. Buses, street cars and taxis are plentiful.

But the party headquarters is a scene of desolation. Doors are down, windows smashed. Hundreds of torn-up paving stones litter the area.

A witness said that when the four-storey building was engulfed by flames party officials escaped to the roof where they were lifted off by the delegation members, and himself shot dead one of military helicopters.

At the main railway station opposite the party building, the departure shed was set on fire and partly destroyed.

Poles interviewed on the streets said police cars drove recklessly into crowds, throwing off demonstrators and killing several, including women and children.

Witnesses said the troubles erupted when workers marched to party headquarters to protest higher food prices announced by the government.

* * *

They were refused permission to talk to local party officials and when the delegation then decided to fight its way into the building, a party official called guards some informants said.

Thousands of demonstrators who flocked to the scene tore up paving stones and hurled them at the premises. They made Molotov cocktails and set the headquarters afire.

Other rioters attacked the police headquarters, trade union centre and other public buildings in the heart of Gdansk.

Major 'Humanizing' Overhaul Needed

Wanted: New Suburbia

CHICAGO (AP) — Dr. Margaret Mead, noted anthropologist, called Tuesday for a major architectural and "humanizing" overhauling of United States suburbs so people of all economic levels can live there.

She was one of a group of scientists speaking at a news conference preceding a symposium on Human Design and Social Innovations at the 137th meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

In urging architectural and social overhauling of the suburbs, Dr. Mead said suburbia should be transformed into "humanizing units" with housing provided for all classes of people, instead of being limited to the relatively well-off."

She said that "humanizing" aspects should also be extended to present suburbanites whose living conditions, she contended, are far from rosy despite seemingly relative affluence.

More ready access to and from urban areas — via improved transportation — is a need for both current suburbanites and others who might later be provided housing there.

She agreed with the observation of another panelist, Dr. Hubert Locke, of the Towns Feasibility Division, Metropolitan Fund, Detroit, that present sprawling shopping centres in suburbia are "obscene . . . without a corner grocery store anywhere."

But, the anthropologist said that, hand-in-hand with architectural overhauling of the suburbs, must come a change in the "frightful" philosophy of living there so that "we don't have to feel that we have to have two cars in every garage, two vacuum cleaners for every home — one for upstairs and one for downstairs — and power-driven lawnmowers for each square inch of grass."

She said that redesigning of suburbia should go hand-in-hand with a massive redesigning of housing in urban, inner-city areas, which could attract many young married couples back to urban areas they had fled.

Even Slim Hopes Abandoned for 21

NEW YORK (AP) — A missing lifeboat, carrying the slim hope of rescue for 21 crew members lost in the sinking of the Panamanian tanker Chryssi, apparently went down with the ship during a fierce Atlantic storm Monday, the U.S. Coast Guard said Tuesday.

The coast guard, drawing on eyewitness accounts of 17 survivors of the high-seas disaster, said the boat was still secure on the tanker when last seen about 270 miles southwest of Bermuda.

An air-and-sea search of the area was officially suspended at dusk.

Provinces Tangling On Pollution Suit

REGINA (CP) — A pollution lawsuit launched by the Manitoba government has indirectly forced the closure of two Saskatchewan chemical plants and is threatening the operation of a pulp mill.

Interprovincial Co-Operatives Ltd. closed its chemical plant two miles north of Saskatoon Monday, saying it is unable to continue paying its bills because the Manitoba lawsuit is hindering its ability to obtain credit.

Manitoba is seeking $2 million damages from Interprovincial, claiming mercury from the Saskatoon plant polluted Manitoba waters through the South Saskatchewan River system.

* * *

The International closure also shut down Armour Industrial Chemicals Ltd. in Saskatoon and has created a problem at the Prince Albert pulp mill which it supplies with bleaching chemicals.

Saskatchewan Treasurer D. G. Steuart said Tuesday that Premier Ross Thatcher had twice asked the Manitoba government to withdraw its suit, but Premier Ed Schreyer, after meeting with the Manitoba cabinet, refused.

The premier defended Manitoba's actions in seeking damages since the provincial fishing industry suffered when lakes had to be closed due to mercury pollution.

* * *

"It's only right we try to recover part of the money lost. We must take this through the courts so we can have adjudications to where financial responsibility lies," Schreyer said.

Steuart said in an interview that the first request was made during the prairie economic council conference in early December in Winnipeg and the second by telegram.

George Kirkwood, plant manager for Armour, said his plant depends on Interprovincial to supply steam, water and hydrogen.

* * *

Kirkwood said Armour, which normally employs 23 persons, has laid off all but its maintenance staff "until we find out what has happened." Interprovincial employed 40 persons.

He said he had believed that Federated Co-Operatives Ltd. had agreed to take over the operation of Interprovincial and to supply some additional financing but "now was backing out" because of the Manitoba lawsuit.

Premier Thatcher said the Interprovincial plant owes the Saskatchewan Economic Development Corp. (SEDCO) more than $6 million.

Steuart said Interprovincial supplies caustic soda to the Price Albert pulp mill, used in the bleaching of wood pulp, and without a continuous supply the operation of the pulp mill was in "serious jeopardy" and could even mean closure.

He said Interprovincial had first discussed its financial difficulties with the government about a year ago and for the last eight or nine months efforts had been made by the government, Federated and Interprovincial to get new management at the plant.

Soldiers Benefit, But Who Pays?

'Free' Calls Add Up to Big GI Bill

FRANKFURT, Germany (UPI) — Telephone company accountants Tuesday wondered who would settle the bill for thousands of phone calls made during Christmas by U.S. soldiers who somehow obtained a list of persons authorized to make free calls to the United States.

Some of the GIs talked for an hour or more and the bill could run to hundreds of thousands of dollars.

The newspaper Stars and Stripes said the soldiers expedited the calls by pronouncing a secret code word adopted by an American business firm.

European officials of the International Business Machines said the code word was intended only for use by its employees serving in the U.S. armed forces. As in the past, IBM gave its employees the right to make one five-minute phone call home at IBM expense at any time between Dec. 7 and Jan. 3.

(IBM officials in New York denied there was a code word, but said a list of persons authorized to make free calls did exist and operators failed to verify names of callers.)

Apparently, the list that IBM arranged with the German post office leaked to soldiers in Hanau, a Frankfurt suburb. Word spread quickly to garrison towns all over Southern Germany and also West Berlin.

"Last Sunday we had maybe as many as 300 phone calls," an international operator in Frankfurt said. "The calls keep coming in."

An IBM official said the German post office that controls the telephone system had been asked to stop taking free calls "until we can find out where we stand."

Bidis: New Drug Kick

MIAMI, Fla. (Reuter) — Drug-oriented youngsters here have found a new kick: Oriental cigarettes made from the brown betel leaf grown in Southeast Asia and containing the alkaloid arecoline, a mild, non-addictive stimulant. The smokes are called bidis and sell for about 75 cents a pack.

Esquimalt on Centre Borrowing:

Voters Should Decide

Esquimalt voters should be given an opportunity to express their wishes at the polls on the proposed borrowing of $800,000 to build a muncipal activity centre, council decided Tuesday night.

In a special meeting, closed to the public in order to allow the two members-elect to join in discussions, it was decided to recommend to the incoming council "that a referendum be held to see if the voters of Esquimalt are in favor."

Mayor Arthur Young said after the meeting that only one council member, whom he declined to identify, had opposed the motion.

"He wanted council to agree to borrow the money without going to referendum," Young said, "because he thought a referendum wasn't necessary because the people want the centre and that it would mean a delay of six weeks in getting people to work.

"He felt the idea of the loan is to get people working and it should be done right away."

If the recommendation is approved when the new council meets next Monday, a referendum would probably be held Feb. 27.

"That would give us plenty of time to get the information to the people," he said.

Young said all council members definitely agreed the centre was a desirable project.

Concern over the manner in which the money might be borrowed without ratepayer approval arose after Dan Campbell, municipal affairs minister, suggested referendums on the projects might not be required.

Money for the project, if approved by the municipal affairs department, would be part of a $35 million loan fund created for the province by the federal government.

The loans would be made through the provincial government which would guarantee them on behalf of the municipalities.

Subterfuge Denied In Castle Proposal

By JOHN MATTERS

Victoria Mayor Courtney Haddock Tuesday denied that the city's administration used "subterfuge" in handling a proposal for a garden apartment development on the grounds of Spencer Castle.

He said in an interview that the observations of Ald. Peter Pollen were "a serious reflection on a very able administration, and furthermore they are not true."

When city council reviewed the development proposal Monday, Pollen noted the absence from the agreement of a $250,000 bond that would be posted with the city to encourage specific land use.

"I'm appalled that the city manager has allowed this misinformation to go on so long," the alderman said. "I'm appalled that this thing is being sold to the public, to the members of the council, and to me, with obvious subterfuge and misinformation."

City manager Dennis Young, contacted at his home Tuesday night, said:

"I don't have any comment. I am looking into the legal implications . . . and I categorically deny any subterfuge."

The mayor said that Pollen, as chairman of city council's community development committee, always had access to the plans and other legal documents connected with the Spencer Castle proposal. In addition, he could have consulted the city's administration at any time.

Haddock said the alderman was given the floor at Monday's council meeting because he will not be able to attend the inaugural meeting of the New Year and he thought Pollen might have New Year's greetings for city council.

"Then he went into an oratorical outburst, most of which we have heard before, about the environment and so on. The other members were as surprised as I was when he mentioned this (the Spencer Castle criticism).

* * *

"It was most unfortunate because Mr. Young is a very able administrator and I believe the city is well-managed. There certainly is no subterfuge and I'd be in there like a tiger if I thought so," said Haddock.

The mayor pointed out that he has the power to resubmit such proposals, in effect hold them up, if he thought anything was improper.

Haddock said developer Danilo Danzo of Port Alberni has offered to put up substantial guarantees that he will conform to the terms of the development permit. In addition, the city, which owns some of the property needed for the apartments, will have special powers, he said.

* * *

The proposal for what is known as Castle Hill Development was reviewed at a public hearing Dec. 17 and the principle of rezoning from single family to garden apartment use was accepted at Monday's city council meeting.

The project, however, requires a development permit and this will be the subject of another public hearing next month.

Yukon Awaits Many Visitors

The destroyer-escort HMCS Yukon slid into the Inner Harbor Tuesday with Victoria Mayor Courtney Haddock aboard, in readiness for her role in British Columbia's Centennial celebrations New Year's Eve.

For British-born skipper Cmdr. Colin Shaw, this is no ordinary assignment.

As he relaxed in his cabin, he explained why.

"Naval forces have played a vital part in the development of British Columbia since the earliest days of the province's history, and yet, I feel it is appalling that so few members of the public have an opportunity to visit us.

"I really want them to see us, and so we'll be open Wednesday (today), Thursday, Saturday and Sunday from 1:30 until 4:30 p.m."

In Shaw's view, far too few Victorians have set foot on a navy ship, and this is the situation he hopes to correct.

In his cabin aboard the Yukon he was joined by Centennial celebration co-ordinator Robert Gillespie, who is responsible for producing the New Year's Eve celebrations.

The Yukon will remain moored in the Inner Harbor, and at midnight she will be dressed over-all in a blaze of colored lights.

That is, if, as Shaw puts it, "God and the electricians are willing."

Yukon recently took first prize in the illumination contest for Armed Forces vessels.

The special celebrations which will involve the Yukon get underway at 11 p.m. New Year's Eve and will include more than 300 young people, an elaborate fireworks display and a booming salute.

The setting will be the causeway and the legislative building grounds. Among those on hand will be the Oak Bay high school band that represented Canada at Expo 70 in Osaka, the Newcombe Glee Club, the Royal Canadian Sea Cadet Corps Rainbow band, army and air force cadets, Boy Scouts and Miss Teenage Canada, who is 18-year-old Jana Jorgenson of Coquitlam.

The salute will come from 100 mortar bombs fired with non-military charges.

Despite the festive nature of the occasion, the skipper and crew of the Yukon will still remain on active service, ready to put to sea at minimum notice, if any kind of maritime emergency develops.

British Columbia's entry into Canadian Confederation will get a supersonic screaming welcome at 10:17 a.m. New Year's Day, when two supersonic jets from Cold Lake, Alta., make figure-eight passes over the legislative buildings.

* * *

Centennial year will be highlighted May 3-12, when the Queen will fly to British Columbia to take part in official celebrations. She will be accompanied by Prince Philip and Princess Anne, and the Royal yacht Britannia will be moored in the Inner Harbor.

Her Majesty will take part in a series of regional visits throughout the province.

Two-Way Gym In Saanich Gets Go-Ahead

The provincial government Tuesday cleared the way for a $190,000 gymnasium at Royal Oak junior high school, a development that Saanich school board chairman Mrs. Rubymay Parrott said will be a "first" in B.C.

The gymnasium is a joint project of the school board and Saanich municipality, which will contribute $40,000 toward the cost.

"As my final act as chairman of School District 63, I am absolutely delighted to learn Premier Bennett has given us permission to call tenders for this project," said Mrs. Parrott, defeated in the Dec. 12 election.

* * *

She said it was the first time, to her knowledge, that a school board and municipal government have together worked on a recreation facility for both school and general community use.

The 70-foot-by-100-foot gymnasium will have room for six badminton courts or two basketball courts and will have an entrance that is separate from the main school block.

"From an educational point of view, it will allow Royal Oak to continue with its semester system," said Mrs. Parrott.

* * *

She explained Saanich had been as patient with the provincial government as had the school board. The municipality has kept aside for the past 18 months its $40,000 contribution to the building.

"I hope this is only the beginning of municipal-school board co-operation," said Mrs. Parrott. "At the Royal Oak grounds, there is space available for tennis courts and perhaps even a swimming pool."

Condition Now Good

Pedestrian Lillah B. Lalonde, 69, of 1011 Bank Street, was in good condition in Royal Jubilee Hospital Tuesday, recovering from head injuries she received after being struck by a motorcycle Monday. Police said the motorcycle was driven by James Loewen, 1263 Fort Street. The accident took place at 8:23 p.m. Monday at Fort and Richmond.

Oak Bay Boats, Trailers

Storage Permit Bids Few

Protesters at the September public hearing on the Oak Bay trailer bylaw must have been serious when they said they were more concerned with the principle behind the bylaw than with the bylaw itself.

Although more than 130 persons, almost all of whom were objecting to the proposed rezoning, appeared at the hearing, only 27 permits have been issued to allow storage of camper bodies, boats, trailers or the like in front yards.

Deadline for obtaining the permits, as required under the bylaw, which was passed Nov. 23, was 30 days later.

"It's not as large a problem as we had expected," a spokesman for the Oak Bay building inspector's office said Tuesday. "The problem that was disclosed wasn't very serious."

There were 70 applications for permits, he said, although many came from persons who had misunderstood the bylaw and realized, after it was explained to them, that their situations did not require permits.

"Some applications were made by people who intended to buy campers or trailers in the future," he said, "but they could not obtain permits.

"There were five or six in that particular category."

Under the bylaw, items such as camper bodies and boats must be stored behind the main building line of the property unless topography or siting of the house is such that this is impossible, in which case a permit must be obtained allowing storage in front of the line.

The permits, however, could only be obtained within 30 days so that unless a person had the item already, he would never be eligible for one.

As the announced intent of the bylaw is to ultimately remove entirely from the municipality items that cannot be stored in rear or side lots, permits will not be transferable to future owners of a lot for which a permit is held.

Second Munn Road Property

B.C. Hydro Obtains Order For More Expropriation

B.C. Hydro has obtained a cabinet expropriation order against a second Munn Road property-owner, it was disclosed Tuesday.

The order gives the crown agency the right to take "without the consent of the owner or any other person" five acres that belong to Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Borden.

The Bordens and their three children now live at 2144 Ferndale, Saanich, and acquired the Munn Road site for a future home.

* * *

One of their neighbors would have been Mr. and Mrs. Pat Codyre, 1890 Munn Road, who in August got a similar cabinet order, which they have resisted.

The Codyres are one of five families that B.C. Hydro wants to move from Munn Road so it can build a high-voltage line from the proposed Pike Lake substation to Goward substation in downtown Victoria.

* * *

Mrs. Borden said Tuesday night all she and her husband wanted was a similar site of five acres in Saanich. However, they have canvassed almost every real estate owner in Victoria and it is impossible to obtain such an acreage for the $7,500 Hydro has offered, she added.

"It is wonderful property — there is a stream running through it and there are deer and pheasants out there," said Mrs. Borden. "It was never a speculative venture with us."

She pointed out that John Tisdalle, Social Credit MLA for Saanich and the Islands, has agreed that it would be impossible for them to get similar property for under $2,500 an acre.

Mrs. Borden said she was uncertain what steps she and her husband would take next in their dealings with Hydro — "we will have to calculate all the risks of engaging in a fight."

The Bordens bought the property two years ago after looking for a year for a future homesite.

* * *

"It's not the money," said Mrs. Borden. "It's what we would have to pay for another five acres."

Meanwhile, Codyre said Tuesday that Hydro's behavior in respect of the Bordens illustrated that the provincial government agency was "acting like a bunch of Prussians."

He said he is not quarrelling over money — all he wants is Hydro to provide him and his wife with a home and five acres similar to what they occupy now.

* * *

In addition, said Codyre, Hydro never had any need to expropriate the Munn Road properties because there are about 60 acres of wild land behind the homes that could be used for the powerline.

"Hydro apparently has not learned a lesson of life — that they cannot forever throw around the taxpayers' money to save a few feet of power cable."

New Prosecutor Takes Over in Mid-Hearing

By BRUCE LOWTHER

In a development believed unprecedented in Victoria's lower courts, a new prosecutor took over Tuesday in the middle of a preliminary hearing at Victoria Provincial Court into a charge of non-capital murder.

John Macintyre, a member of chief prosecutor J. W. Anderson's staff, was called in from the court's family division to replace Anderson following the collapse Monday of Anderson's wife Elda.

Mrs. Anderson, 43, died Tuesday in Royal Jubilee Hospital after suffering a cerebral hemorrhage while at home at 1714 Carnegie. Funeral services will be held at 1:30 p.m. Monday in St. Aidan's United Church, Richmond at Cedar Hill Crossroad, with Haywards in charge of arrangements.

Anderson had conducted the prosecution during the first two days of a preliminary hearing into a joint charge of non-capital murder against William Albert Larlham, 20, and Gary Smith, 18, both of CFB Esquimalt, and Terrance Parsons, 20, of Oak Bay.

They were charged Nov. 13, three days after the death in Victoria of part-time taxi driver Gerald Mulholland, 37, of 917 Bewdley.

The hearing was to have continued Tuesday and today until a probable end late this afternoon. But because Macintyre was not familiar with the case, he asked Tuesday morning for a 24-hour adjournment for study purposes.

Judge William Ostler approved after support was voiced by the three defence lawyers, Brian Smith for Larlham, J. J. Gow for Smith and Cal Becker for Parsons.

The hearing now may take all of today and Thursday in Provincial Court and could extend to next week, although the court's agenda is filled through most of January.

Publication of the evidence was barred by Ostler on the hearing's first day at the request of the defence.

The unexpected hearing delay, believed to be the first such incident in a lower court in Victoria, was not the only trouble Victoria Provincial Court ran into Tuesday.

Judge E. F. N. Robinson, who is in charge of traffic court four days a week, was unable to drive to Victoria from his Ladysmith home because of wintry road conditions. Traffic cases were transferred to Ostler's criminal court, where they occupied most of the day.

Robinson, whose main court duties are in the Nanaimo district, has been conducting traffic court on a temporary basis since October, following the retirement of Judge J. A. Byers. The provincial government has yet to appoint a permanent replacement for Byers.

Furniture Over Cars?

Home Castle Again

By PAUL STEIGER

Colonist-Los Angeles Times Service

LOS ANGELES — Is a man's home becoming his castle again?

Robert Fogarty Jr. claims it is. Fogarty is in the furniture business. He is also one of a growing group of analysts and industry executives who believe that furniture, appliances and other home furnishings are about to become North America's major consumer market. Many predict it will surpass the $58,000,000,000 car industry in dollar sales sometime in this decade.

Why so? "People are simply staying home more," Fogarty says. "Crime, congestion, the decay of downtown areas all tend to make it unpleasant to go out. So people entertain in their homes where they once would have gone out with friends to a restaurant and a show.

"Since people are in their homes more often, the way their homes look is becoming a status symbol that has begun to rival in importance the wife's dress or the family car," Fogarty argues. "And this portends a revolution for people who make or sell home furnishings."

Not everybody is as enthusiastic about the possibilities as Fogarty, of course. The top executive of Schlumberger Ltd., the New York and Houston conglomerate for which Fogarty was a management trouble-shooter until the end of last year, rejected his proposal for immediate expansion in the home furnishings field. Money market conditions weren't right, they said.

* * *

So what did Fogarty do?

Last January, at the age of 36, with a wife, three children and little savings to speak of, he ignored the growing unemployment rolls and slackening economy and quit his job to go into business for himself.

He formed his own private corporation—brazenly titling it Habitation Resources Inc. — and set about looking on his own for financing and for operations to put into it.

When he began, he had no idea how to raise the money he needed. "I didn't know what the hell an investment banker was," he admits. But somehow he uncovered an insurance company willing to lend him 1.25 million dollars to get started — the loan is eventually convertible into a very major share of HRI's stock — and last May his company acquired its first operating entity: Mode Furniture, a 33-year-old privately owned Los Angeles furniture manufacturer.

Fogarty says he now has moved Mode into the black and expects it to be profitable for the fiscal year ending next June.

* * *

He also says that sales are running about 12 per cent above last year's $8 million pace.

That's a nice modest beginning, but Fogarty isn't interested in modesty. He is holding to a prediction he made when he started HRI last spring that he would build it into an $800 million, firebreathing corporate monster within 17 years.

Ceylon Given Woman Envoy

COLOMBO (AP) — Yugoslavia has named a woman as ambassador to Ceylon, which has a woman premier. Olga Strujic is the second female ambassador to the island state in the Indian Ocean. The United States appointed Frances Willis to a similar post shortly after Sirimavo Bandaranaike became premier in 1960.

Cathedral Recital

Organ recital will be given by Eileen Turnidge, 15, of Salem, Ore., at 8 p.m. today in Christ Church Cathedral. Young musician has studied organ for only two years yet has amazing mastery of instrument, according to Beal Thomas, director of music at cathedral. Miss Turnidge has been organist at Central Lutheran Church, Salem, for past year. Free concert is open to public.

Royal Break Denied Anew

LONDON (Reuter) — Princess Margaret and Lord Snowdon said it yet again Tuesday: Their 10-year-old marriage is definitely not breaking up.

The latest affirmation that all is well followed a newspaper report that they were parting.

The report appeared in a Washington newspaper, but a spokesman for Princess Margaret said in a statement in London Tuesday that it was "certainly not true."

The princess spent Christmas with the Queen and other members of the Royal Family at Windsor Castle, while her husband was in a London hospital recovering from a minor operation.

●

Press speculation on a marital split has become a familiar phenomenon to them. They have issued statements in the past denying any such possibility.

The most spectacular denial was made by Snowdon himself in New York nearly four years ago. In an impromptu press conference at the offices of Vogue magazine he announced to a gathering of reporters and photographers: "I love my wife."

Holiday Tradition

Eggnog Variety

Dorothy Wrotnowski

The eggnog is traditional holiday fare. And there is as much controversy surrounding the making of the eggnog as there is over the making of haggis. Everyone seems to have his OWN SPECIAL way, so the following recipes are for the uninitiated.

HOLIDAY EGG NOGS

6 eggs separated; ¼ teaspoon salt; ⅔ cup sugar; 2½ cups light cream; 1 cup milk; 1 cup light rum; 1¼ cups whipping cream; freshly grated nutmeg.

Beat egg whites and salt until frothy. Gradually beat in ⅓ cup of the sugar and continue beating until stiff peaks form. Beat egg yolks until light. Gradually add remaining sugar, beating until thick and lemon-colored. Beating constantly, very slowly add light cream, milk and rum. Whip cream until softly stiff. Gently fold whipped cream and egg whites into egg-cream mixture. Chill thoroughly. Serve sprinkled with nutmeg. Makes about 12 cups.

A fairly simple method of making eggnog is to bring to a boil 1 quart of milk, 3 ounces of sugar, a grated nutmeg and the peel of a lemon. Pour this over six well-beaten eggs, stirring constantly. Add a cup of rum (more if desired). Have a punch bowl heated and pour mixture into bowl from a height to make it froth. Serve immediately.

Here's an old-fashioned recipe for making eggnog. Beat the yolks and whites of six eggs separately. Add sugar to taste to the beaten egg yolks and a quart of thin cream. Add a cup of rum, whisky or brandy, then the beaten egg whites. Serve sprinkled with nutmeg.

A little stronger potion is this recipe for Athole Brose, the famous Scottish drink:

One pound heather honey, 1 scant cup of water, 24 ounces Scotch whisky.

Stir honey and water with silver spoon until honey is thoroughly dissolved. Then slowly add the whisky and stir until frothy.

Any leftover mincemeat? Try these rather unusual desserts for a change from tarts and pie.

APPLE MINCE CRUMBLE

Four cups thinly sliced apples, 1 cup mince meat, ½ cup chopped nuts, ½ cup chopped pitted dates, ½ cup semi-sweet chocolate pieces, ½ cup cranberry juice.

Spread half the apple slices in bottom of shallow 9-inch greased baking dish. Combine mincemeat, nuts, dates and chocolate pieces. Spread over apples. Cover with remaining apple slices and pour on cranberry juice.

CRUMBLE

One cup firmly packed brown sugar, ½ teaspoon cinnamon, ¼ teaspoon nutmeg, ¼ teaspoon salt, ½ cup soft butter or margarine.

Combine brown sugar, cinnamon, nutmeg and salt; stir in butter until mixture is crumbly. Spread crumble over apple-mincemeat mixture and pat down. Bake in moderate oven, (350 degrees) until apples are tender — about 1 hour.

MINCEMEAT RIPPLE PIE

One egg white, 1 tablespoon sugar, ¼ teaspoon salt, ⅔ cup chopped pecans, 2 cups mincemeat, ⅓ cup chopped red and green maraschino cherries, 1 tablespoon brandy extract, 1 quart vanilla ice cream.

Butter a 9-inch pie plate. Beat egg white until foamy; add sugar, salt and nuts. Press into bottom and sides of buttered pie plate. Bake in a 375-degree oven until golden — 4 to 5 minutes. Cool. Combine mincemeat, cherries and brandy extract. Alternately spoon ice cream and mincemeat mixture into prepared pie shell, to form a ripple pattern. Freeze. Half an hour before serving, remove pie from freezer and let stand in refrigerator.

Many Brides For Christmas

TORONTO (CP) — Officials at city hall say that the number of December marriages performed here is twice that of other months — even the much-heralded June. More than 750 Toronto girls annually get married in December at the rate of about 30 a day. The average rate for the rest of the year is about 15 a day.

Always Time for More

Sculpturing elephants in clay is just one of activities which make Mrs. Betty Lowe, 35 South Turner, one of busiest women in town. With family of nine children and husband, Walter, to look after, she still manages to sculp, paint in oils, attend adult studies classes, sing in local choirs and contribute many hours each week to other worthy civic causes. 1971—It's Your Turn

High Fashion Died In Long Barrage

By MARYLOU LUTHER

(Colonist-Los Angeles Times Service)

Two days before closing his doors on New York's 7th Ave. for good, Designer X was having a fantastic season, you understand.

One week after bankruptcy proceedings had started, the owner of a design complex in Los Angeles was denying reports that business was a little off.

These men are two of an estimated 37,000 people in the business of making clothes who will start 1971 without a job.

* * *

And that statistic doesn't count the unemployed in allied fields such as furs (endangered species legislation didn't help this business), pantyhose (volleys from Rep. Leonor Sullivan (D-Mo.) only created more snags), textiles (the country's second largest fibre producer laid off 2,200 in one week) and retail (Haggarty's in Los Angeles, and one of New York's oldest, Best and Co., closed their doors and some stores went so far into the red they may spend 1971 trying to find pink).

Not only was the fashion fallout grim and far-reaching, haute couture was pronounced dead by the director general of one of France's hautest, Yves Saint Laurent.

You might say 1970 was the year fashion died.

* * *

The pot-shots started early in January, when Rudi Gernreich predicted a fashion future of shaved bodies and uniforms.

By year's end, broadsides had come from such diverse elements as card-carrying midi protestors and the treasury department's John Rowley, who this month warned stores that they would have to be licensed firearm dealers to buy and sell the newest belt rage — bulleted cartridge cases — unless they add a plastic tip to the bullets or cement them into the case with glue.

Only Spiro Agnew held his fire.

* * *

A year of protest from "the street" (that's versus "the avenue") has resulted in:

● The end of awe, the beginning of ah-phooey to the cult of designers. Or: It's quickly becoming almost ~~obscene to~~ admit you're wearing an expensive dress. And if that dress was designed by a man with a Coty award to his credit, it's downright pornographic. Get the idea? Reverse snobbism.

● The pantsuit phenomenon. Women unsure of peripatetic hemlines or unwilling to go along with longer skirts put their money into pantsuits. Millions won the right to work in pants.

* * *

Here, in order of their happening, are the events that led to this black fashion midnight called 1970.

JAN. 1: Rudi Gernreich predicts shaved bodies and uniforms.

JAN. 20: Europe's couture meets for its semi-annual fashion rites, decrees that 1970 will be the year of the midi.

FEB. 27: Madame Pompidou visits the United States in her loaned-out midis. One look and the youth of America label the look as establishment, decide to stay mini or go ankle-length.

MARCH: A group of Beverly Hills mini-lovers organize POOF (Preservation of Our Femininity and Finances). By year's end, all were wearing some form of longism.

MAY: North America's ready-to-wear market follows Europe's lead with drooping hemlines.

JUNE 18: Women make front page news by wearing pantsuits to work.

JUNE 28: Los Angeles' Rebecca Welles designs a skirt for men.

JULY: Designer Yves Saint Laurent brings back the mini in a fashion spoof featuring Carmen Miranda.

AUGUST: Conservationists lobby in favor of endangered species legislation.

SEPT. 17: Yves Saint Laurent's director-general, Pierre Berge, says "Couture is dead—it's finished."

OCTOBER: America's designers go on fantasy trip in a fashion retrospective featuring recession dresses at inflation prices.

NOVEMBER: Rudi Gernreich revolutionizes his midi-less collection with training rifles, dogtags, military gear.

DECEMBER: Pantsuits sparkle. Ankle-lengths register strongly. Midis are markdowns.

The question now remains for 1971 to settle. Is the word, if not the whole idea of fashion, dead?

And if fashion is dead, can just plain clothes survive?

1971, it's your turn.

You've Growing Up to Do

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I am a married woman (in the early 30s) who is puzzled, and searching for answers that might not exist. Every now and then (more often, lately) I get word that friends of ours — couples who have been married for 25 years and longer — are getting a divorce. I harbor a secret fear in the corner of my heart that one day that "older couple" might be us.

Timmy and I have always gotten along well. We have four lovely kids. I made it a point to teach our children that Daddy comes first. He is King in our house. They love him and respect him. He is a wonderful father.

But there must be more to life than PTA, housework, marketing, cooking, cleaning, laundry and sex with your husband. I ache to feel that special electricity when my eyes meet his across a crowded room. It never happens. I yearn for a man who will make my heart pound a mile a minute. Timmy used to — but the thrill is gone. Things are quiet and calm and — I might as well say it — dull as dishwater.

We have a lot to be thankful for — good health, attractive, well-behaved kids, and a promising financial future. Why isn't this enough? Is something wrong with me? Am I chasing the impossible dream? I will be watching and waiting for your answer. Please don't fail me.—Moonglow

Dear Moon: Put away your story books, little girl. You've got some growing up to do. Yes, there is more to life than PTA, housework, cooking, cleaning, laundry — and sex with your husband. There's illness and emotional breakdowns that make it impossible for some women to do the housework, cooking, cleaning and laundry.

As for sex with your husband, don't knock it, honey. There are plenty of husbands who aren't interested. There is also alcoholism, in-law trouble, problems with out-of-control children and money worries. Read the papers. Look around you. Case your friends.

No marriage can maintain the honeymoon level of excitement forever. And it's a good thing. We'd all die of exhaustion. Time diminishes the raging fires to soft glow — present but no longer ferocious and demanding. Count your blessings. Too many people fail to appreciate what they have until they have lost it. Don't let it happen to you.

□

Dear Ann Landers: I'm 28. My girl is 24. We've been officially engaged for six years. She is my first serious sweetheart and I am hers.

About a year ago she started to leave her engagement ring at home. When I asked why, she said she was allergic to the metal. So I had the stone reset in platinum instead of gold. Three months ago she started not to wear her ring again. This time she said it bothered her when she typed.

Last week she asked if I'd mind if she had a date with the personnel manager. I said, "Of course I'd mind." She has gone into one of her three-day sulks and I am getting fed up on her moodiness. What is your advice?—Pushing 30

Dear Push: Set the prisoner free. She's beginning to suspect the world is not bound on the north, south, east and west by you. Take back the ring and tell her to date anybody she wants to. And you should do the same. You two may wind up together yet, but you both need to see some new faces.

Indian Girls Given Home

VANCOUVER (CP) — A five-bedroom home in Vancouver's Kitsilano district is proving to be a haven for Indian girls unable to find accommodation in the city. The home, called Tawow In, was opened in 1969 by Mrs. R. W. Cantryn, a counsellor at the Vancouver Indian Centre. Since opening, Tawow In — Cree for "room for one more" — has cared for more than 60 girls for periods of one night to six months.

8 CARDS OF THANKS

Words are so inadequate to express our sincere appreciation and thanks to our dear relatives, friends, and neighbours, for the beautiful cards, cablegrams and flowers and heartfelt expressions of sympathy extended to us in the loss of our beloved husband, dad, and grandfather. We would like to offer special thanks to the Rev. J. G. Titus for his lovely and comforting service, to the nurses and staff of the Coronary Care Unit and also the staff of 4 South of the Royal Jubilee Hospital. To Dr. T. A. M. Peet, Dr. R. A. Gale and Dr. L. Swartz for their constant wonderful care and attention, also to Mr. S. Campbell of Sands Chapel of Heather at Colwood, and the pallbearers. May God bless you all. — May Yule and family.

THE LATE
ARTHUR WILLIAM SANKEY
We wish to extend our heartfelt thanks and appreciation for the acts of kindness, messages of sympathy, contributions to the Purple Cross BPOE Victoria Lodge No. 2, and beautiful floral offerings received from our many friends in our sad bereavement in the loss of our beloved husband and father O. L. Foster and the members of the BPOE Victoria Lodge No. 2. — Margaret E. Sankey, Charles and Judy.

We wish to thank Mary and Lavern Sands also staff of Sands Mortuary, Rev. Canon Willis; Dr. A. W. Perry and nurses 4 South Jubilee Hospital for their acts of love and sympathy during our recent loss of our beloved Mom and Gran, the late Mrs. Grace Atkinson. — Joan Collins, Betty Ackerman, Maureen and Mickey.

Bruce Lowther

MADNESS, ETC.: Money-short CBS may abandon its hallowed primetime public affairs hour, won by Edward R. Murrow in the 1950s and lately occupied by Sixty Minutes at 10 p.m. Tuesdays. The program probably will move to 6 p.m. Sundays next fall . . . News ratings on ABC have jumped since Harry Reasoner quit CBS to become ABC anchor man.

The U.S. Federal Communications Commission recently asked ABC, NBC and CBS to clear an hour each weekday afternoon for a non-commercial educational and cultural show for children. The networks decided they couldn't afford it . . . ABC has dropped plans to run a new syndicated version of Ralph Edwards' This Is Your Life at 8:30 p.m. Mondays. Instead, the slot will go to a quiz called The Reel Game with Jack Barry of 21.

□

BUREAU OF USELESS INFORMATION: Tuesday's answer — Three men named Harry, Herbert and Donald who come from the same family and sing are the Mills Brothers. And they've been in show business for a fantastic 42 years! Love 'em.

Today's question — I name four movie directors and four films; all you have to do is link each director with his film. The directors are John Ford, Alfred Hitchcock, John Huston and Alexander Korda; the movies are Four Feathers, Maltese Falcon, Quiet Man and Spellbound. Answers next Tuesday, and enjoy the holiday.

"FUMBLE!"

Wednesday Highlights

C-5:00 p.m. — NHL hockey, Pittsburgh at Montreal — 8.

5:00 — KTVW has another U.S. college football game, with North Carolina against Arizona State in the Peach Bowl — 13.

C-7:30 — A special called the Frozen World of Seals and walruses, which explains that — 7.

C-7:30 — UPI reviews the sports news of 1970 — 12.

● 8:30 — Kenneth Clark ends his Civilisation series with by far the best program. Don't miss it — 9.

C-9:00 — A good CBC tradition is the annual year-ender with Charley (Don Harron) Farquharson and Fred (Mike Magee) Dobbs — 2, 6.

C-9:00 — Kraft shows Comedy on Ice — 5.

● 10:00—Have a Ball with Gary Graffman, Aubin Mehta and the Los Angeles Philharmonic as they romp through Tchaikovsky's piano concerto and 1812 overture—9.

CABLE 10—5:00 p.m., Ladies First; 6:00, Project Travel; 6:30, Prime Resource, with the B.C. Forest Service; 7:00, Outdoorsmen, hunting; 7:30, Struggle for a Border.

Wednesday Movies

C-9:00 a.m.—Texas Carnival (1951 Red Skelton). Also Esther Williams, who invented aqualungs—4.

12:45 noon — Jamboree (1959 rock stinker). Lost in it are a few talents, like Count Basie—6, 8.

4:00 p.m.—Street with No Name (boring 1948 undercover policeman). Richard Widmark giggles while Mark Stevens looks heroic—7.

C-5:30—Gunfight at Dodge City (1959 Joel McCrea)—12.

8:30—Tale of Two Cities (1958 English-made version). Generally a failure despite the talent of Dirk Bogarde, but today's best film—8.

C-9:00—For Love of Money (poorish 1963 romanticomedy). Mitzi Gaynor, Kirk Douglas, Thelma Ritter. At least Mitzi's in it—7.

11:30—The I Don't Care Girl (baddish 1953 Eva Tanguay fairytale). More Mitzi Gaynor, so turn down the sound and enjoy—7.

Wednesday Radio

7:00 p.m.—An hour concert from a recent Vancouver appearance by jazzman Charlie Byrd—CBU (690).

8:05—Gala has music by Chabrier, Arensky, Smetana and others. Certainly seems the right day to read a book—CFMS (98.5).

Winning Contract

By HOWARD and BEE SCHENKEN

Bee says: The average male seems to be utterly, firmly and irrevocably convinced that a woman cannot possibly be expected to stop thinking of family, clothes, beauty and other interests long enough to figure out the best method of defending a hand.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 ◇	1 ♡	1 ♠	Pass
2 ◇	Pass	4 ♠	All pass

Opening lead: Three of ♡.

I was rather proud of myself in this deal. My parnter (at cut-in bridge) led the three of hearts and when dummy played the jack I, quite deliberately, put on the king rather than the queen.

What went though my mind was just the faint possibility that we might make two tricks in clubs if my partner could be persuaded to shift to that suit when he regained the lead.

If I had played the queen of hearts — which is certainly the normal card to play — my partner might have been pardoned for thinking that he had better lead another heart when he got in.

Mark what happened. South won with the ace of hearts, crossed to a diamond, and led a trump, losing the queen to the king.

Without the slightest hesitation, my partner returned a club. He had taken a bit of notice of the card I had played at trick one and my efforts to persuade him that hearts was the wrong suit to attack were rewarded. This was one time when the only way to beat the contract was to deceive my partner.

Berger Eyes Pro Soccer In Montreal

OTTAWA (CP) — Sam Berger, owner of Montreal Alouettes of the Eastern Football Conference, said Tuesday that he is interested in bringing a North American Soccer League franchise to Montreal.

Berger said in an interview that he has had discussions with soccer league officials, including Lamar Hunt of Dallas.

"Soccer may have a great future for Canada and the game is popular, particularly in Montreal and Toronto," Berger said.

He added that there were a great many details to go into before a final decision was made.

Champs Take Tag-Team Go

Don Leo Jonathan and Dunc McTavish retained their Canadian tag-team championship by defeating Gene Kiniski and John Quinn Tuesday in the professional wrestling card at Memorial Arena.

Jonathan and McTavish took the final fall of the best-of-three match on a disqualification.

In other bouts, Dan Kroffat defeated Chatti Yokuchi, Eric Froelich downed Yasu Fiji and Earl Black beat Bill Cody.

Mount Prevost holds snow on highest peaks

Snowfall Piles Up

Snow continued to fall in several up-Island points Tuesday night with the road between Campbell River and Gold River receiving more than two feet.

Snow was falling heavily on the Hump between the Island's east coast and Port Alberni. It was snowing in Port Alberni late Tuesday night with more than an inch lying on the ground.

On the 75 miles of highway between Port Alberni and Tofino the snow varied in depth from eight inches to 19 inches and the highways department called for chains.

Travellers to Kelsey Bay, home port of the Queen of Prince Rupert, had to drive through seven inches of snow while motorists using the Campbell River-Gold River Road found about 18 inches of snow about half way along the route.

Gold River was blanketed with six inches of snow in the past 48 hours, and police reported light snowfall Tuesday night.

Ucluelet reported snow falling late Tuesday night following mixed rain and snow showers.

On the east coast of the island, rain and heavy winds were reported in Campbell River and Courtenay, with less wind but heavy rain in Nanaimo and Duncan.

Gale warnings have been called all up the east coast with winds gusting up to 45 miles an hour and rain and snow. The wind is expected to drop by Wednesday afternoon.

Nanaimo Mayor Frank Ney remained at Green Mountain ski area Tuesday night after he was stuck there by a blizzard Sunday.

Ferries Normal

In contrast with Monday's shattered schedules, B.C. Ferries officials Tuesday reported vessels running on time until the final sailing, when high winds delayed the departure of the stretch ferry Queen of Esquimalt from Tsawwassen for one hour and 10 minutes.

Gale force winds gusting up to 45 miles an hour southeast were expected to subside by 4 a.m. today to southerly 20 miles an hour.

"We should be all right for morning," a ferry official said.

The winds were to be accompanied by showers of rain and snow.

The Queen of Victoria Tuesday night left Swartz Bay on time — 9 p.m., for Tsawwassen, but a ferry official said she would probably dawdle along until the Queen of Esquimalt cleared the mainland dock.

Anticipating a backlog of traffic as the result of Monday's muddle, officials scheduled two extra return trips from Swartz Bay at 8 a.m. and 12 p.m. Tuesday, but one official said there was no backlog.

The service then continued on normal schedules with the Queens of Victoria, Saanich and Esquimalt carrying on.

Jim Cox touches up school

School in Shape Monday... Maybe

DUNCAN — Less than two weeks ago, a fire damaged Quamichan junior high school, but Cowichan school district maintenance men probably will have the school operational by Monday.

The decision on opening will be made by board officials Thursday. The fire gutted the gymnasium and caused smoke and water damage to other portions of the school.

No official damage estimate is available, but the loss is expected to be close to $150,000.

Maintenance superintendent George Routley said Tuesday the cleaning of the school is progressing well, and the burned-out area has been partitioned off from the rest of the school so students will not be endangered.

Insurance adjusters have invited local contractors to submit bids for the re-building of the gymnasium. Routley said the cause of the blaze has not yet been determined.

Boost Ahead

COURTENAY — Increased salaries for teachers and members of Canadian Union of Public Employees, plus a hike in the cost of busing children to school, will probably result in an increased mill rate for school purposes, a school board official has indicated.

Roy Mills, secretary-treasurer of Courtenay school district, told trustees that if they leave the provisional budget essentially unchanged except for the three adjustments stated above, the rate would probably work out to 33.9 mills.

On the other hand, he said, should the board increase its budget up to the limit of the government's 110 per cent financing formula, the rate would be about 35.6.

Last year's mill rate for education purposes in District 71 was 32.57.

Mills explained that the provisional budget for teacher salaries was calculated on the basis of an 8.1 per cent pay raise, but the final figure turned out to be 8.36 per cent, plus additional fringe benefits, which will exceed the provisional budget figure by about $11,000.

Parise Hurt

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — Left-winger J. P. Parise of Minnesota North Stars will be sidelined for at least two games because of a strained back muscle, a spokesman for the National Hockey League club said Tuesday.

North Stars are also without winger Buster Harvey, out for at least three games with a banged-up knee.

Larose Ready

MONTREAL (CP) — Claude Larose will play tonight against Pittsburgh Penguins with a face mask protecting his broken nose, a spokesman for Montreal Canadiens said Tuesday. However, Canadiens will likely be without defencemen Guy Lapointe and Jacques Laperriere for the inter-locking National Hockey League game.

Colts, '49ers

LAS VEGAS (AP) — San Francisco '49ers and Baltimore Colts are slight favorites for Sunday's National Football League conference finals.

The '49ers are four-point favorites over Dallas Cowboys in the National Conference championship and Jimmy "The Greek" Snyder has made the Colts a one-point pick over Oakland Raiders.

Aldermen Wrap Up Careers

PORT ALBERNI — The final meeting of the year proved one of the shortest as city council wound up its business in a mere 45 minutes.

It was also the final meeting for long-term Ald. John Williamson, who is retiring from public office, and the last meeting for Ald. Garnett Reynolds and Ald. Alvin Robinson, who were defeated in the last civic election.

All three aldermen paid tribute to the administrative staff of city hall. Williamson said he had found many friends among the aldermen and the mayor, and in spite of differences of opinion at times, he felt he was leaving the council with more friends than he came in with.

Mayor Fred Bishop recalled that he and Reynolds and Williamson had been together for quite a number of years. "While others may forget the tidal wave, I shall always remember your dedication at that time."

The loss of Williamson on city council will also mean his retirement from the Alberni-Clayoquot regional district.

The inaugural meeting for 1971 will be Jan. 4.

Permit Sought

TOFINO — John Thomas Walter of Tofino has applied to the Canadian Transport Commission for approval of a company to be known as Walter's Air Services Ltd. to transport passengers and goods on a charter basis from Tofino.

Tenders Called

The B.C. highways department has called for tenders on 5.02 miles of the Island Highway from the North end of Nimpkish Lake to Nimpkish Junction. Bids must be submitted by Jan. 19.

Minor's Cards On Bar

NANAIMO (CP) — A young woman who pleaded guilty to being in licensed premises must tour 10 beer parlors introducing herself as a minor who cannot be a customer until her 19th birthday March 22.

Patricia Brown pleaded guilty before Provincial Court Judge Eric Winch Tuesday and was given the tour instead of a fine.

Winch told her she could have caused hardship for the Balmoral Hotel management if they had been charged with allowing a minor in the premises, in that they could have lost their liquor licence.

She must get signatures to prove she contacted the barmen and must complete her tour by Jan. 7.

Army Spied Despite Ban

CHICAGO (AP) — A former United States Army intelligence agent testified Tuesday his unit ignored a ban on surveillance of private citizens and continued to trace such persons as Adlai Stevenson III, militant priest James Groppi and Rev. Ralph David Abernathy of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference.

John O'Brien, 26, a former member of the 113th Military Intelligence Group based in Evanston, a northern suburb of Chicago, testified in a U.S. District Court hearing on a suit filed by the American Civil Liberties Union against top army officers including Gen. William Westmoreland, army chief of staff.

The hearing is on a motion by the ACLU for a preliminary injunction to force the army to halt the surveillance.

O'Brien was discharged in June but he said he visited his former unit last month and learned that surveillance activities continued.

Col. Joseph Walker Jr., commander of the 113th and a defendant, said Monday that surveillance was discontinued in June in accordance with an army directive.

Bonfire Will Greet Centennial Year

COURTENAY — New Year 1971 will be ushered into the Comox Valley area with a blaze of light as a huge centennial bonfire is lit at Forbidden Plateau ski lodge.

This will be the first of many functions scheduled throughout 1971. Each will have a special feature, and Courtenay pioneers are already looking to next June, when Major-General G. R. Pearkes will present them with centennial medallions.

Jan. 2 a luncheon will be the first function. It is expected that the official centennial flag will be presented to the city.

In Comox no announcement has been made for any special means of marking the New Year.

March will see 35 pioneers and one centenarian receive medallions from Pearkes, and on Aug. 14 the town centennial project will be officially opened.

The project is a playing field development at village park. When completed there will be three ball fields. It is expected that turfing of the area will be well established by the fall of 1971.

Bells will ring at midnight in Cumberland on New Year's Eve, but no special civic functions are planned.

June 5 to 12 will be pioneers week, Mayor William Moncrief said. A dinner will formally mark the centennial year, and Major-General G. R. Pearkes is expected to present medallions.

A Little League baseball diamond is Cumberland's centennial project. It will be incorporated in the much larger parks project being carried on by the village. Plans are to open the ball park May 24.

The Poinsettia

In this series of articles on the after-care of Christmas gift potted plants, I propose to start by providing notes on the poinsettia, for this flower has become just as much a symbol of Christmas as the holly and the mistletoe.

This plant grows wild in only one part of the world — in Central America, in that section where the southern tip of Mexico touches borders with Guatemala and British Honduras.

In its tropical homeland, the poinsettia is a rather weedy roadside shrub growing 10 feet tall, and strangely enough, in those latitudes where night and day are of almost equal duration, the plant doesn't come into bloom until March or early April.

It was a Scottish nurseryman of Philadelphia, Robert Buist, who discovered that the poinsettia could be made to bloom in time for Christmas. In his experiments, he found that the farther north they were grown, the earlier they would bloom, and in latitudes above Boston, where winter days are short and nights are long, the flamboyant "flowers" reach their peak of perfection during the Christmas season.

* * *

This lucky combination of Christmas colors — bright red and dark green — with a Christmas-blooming habit of growth made the plant a natural for the florist trade, and Buist made himself a sizeable fortune supplying cuttings of the new plant to commercial greenhouse operators all over America and Europe.

Recently, new varieties have been bred, some in pink, some in cream or ivory; these are exquisite plants, but to my mind not as Christmassy as the red.

Your gift poinsettia should do well in a sunny window and a daytime temperature around 70 degrees, with a drop of not more than 10 degrees during the night.

A common cause of leaf-dropping is too great a drop in temperature at night, so it is wise to move your plant back into the room and away from the window overnight to avoid this chilling.

This sensitivity to chilling shows up in the watering also, and ice cold water will sometimes cause the lower leaves to fall. Wait until the soil surface feels dry to the touch, then give enough lukewarm water to moisten the soil all the way through. Any water draining into the saucer should be emptied before it is re-absorbed.

* * *

The leaves will probably start dropping off in any case around the end of January. This is the plant's resting period, and when it happens, simply stop watering and put it away in a cool basement.

Since the poinsettia, growing unchecked, would make a 10-foot shrub, it must be pruned drastically to restrain it to houseplant size. Prune in April, cutting all stems back to three-inch stubs.

Rub a little powdered charcoal into the cut surfaces to control bleeding, and treat the milky sap with some respect for it is acrid and irritating and can cause pain if it gets into the eyes or open wounds.

The prunings may be cut up into six-inch slips and rooted in a mixture of vermiculite and damp peat moss to make more plants.

After pruning, knock the plant out of its pot, shake off most but not all of the old soil, and repot into fresh sandy loam or purchased potting soil.

Water moderately and bring into room temperature. When new shoots sprout from the stubs of stems, thin these out to a total of three or four, otherwise your plant will be too bushy and congested.

* * *

In June, sink the pot up to its rim in the outdoor garden — morning sun only — and keep the plant watered and fed through the summer.

The most critical part of the culture — and where most folks go wrong — is when the plant is brought indoors in the fall. During this period it is most important to give it 12 to 14 hours of unbroken darkness every night, starting around October 10; remember Robert Buist's discovery that short days and long nights foster early blooming.

Give your plant plenty of sun by day, but keep it in a room where the lights are not turned on even momentarily after the sun sets, for this would create an artificially long day and would delay blooming.

We Fooled Them!

Starship 9872-Vega to Intergalactic Control — Greetings.

Acting on our own initiative, we inspected last week the third planet out from the star, Sol, on the fringes of Galaxy y-736 to determine if the life forms thereon offer any threat to the peace of the universe.

Such inspection, as you know, is required by intergalactic regulations whenever a life form develops the capability for space travel and thus poses a danger of spreading.

* * *

Our decision to inspect was made when our instruments detected that rudimentary rockets from the planet had already reached its single moon. There was also evidence of thermonuclear energy being employed by its inhabitants.

At the same time, our psych scanners — though not always reliable at such distances — had picked up vibrations indicating the existence of a species filled with hostility, irrationality, hatred and greed which actually condoned the killing of its own kind.

* * *

Such a diseased life form would, of course, present the gravest of threats to our healthy universe. We thus approached the planet cautiously, regretfully preparing to incinerate it the moment our suspicions could be confirmed.

We landed at dusk last Thursday on a large land mass in the northern hemisphere. The predominant species, we found, is a featherless biped called "man" (plural: "men").

* * *

We inspected their quarters first. These are perhaps unique. In the centre of each is a tree decorated with colored lights and gay ornaments — the sight of which somehow makes one's heart leap up.

And the music! Everywhere, there is music. In the crisp evenings, groups of these creatures walk through the streets, serenading their neighbors with song.

Music being the key to any culture, we studied the songs carefully. It was interesting to find that men sing of nothing but peace, good will and brotherhood

* * *

But an even more pleasant surprise came in the morning when we observed how men arise to face another day.

As soon as all in the family are awake, they gather about the tree in the centre of the home to give each other gifts. Most of the gifts are for the children.

And — oh! — to hear their cries of joy, to see their shining eyes, to observe the fond embraces! Many members of the inspection team were overcome by the scene.

These happy creatures then worshipped their God of love and kindness, whom they call the Prince of Peace. They devoted their day to feasting, making merry with their loved ones and giving generously to the poor. Truly, what a noble breed they are.

We remained on the planet for one of its revolutions, departing the following dusk. In that period our psych scanner picked up only vibrations of love, peace and good will to all.

* * *

Obviously, then, as this species develops its capabilities for space travel it should be welcomed into the universe as rational, loving, sentient beings — posing no threat whatsoever to the brotherhood of life.

It is with great pleasure your inspection team presents this glowing report. Allow us to close with the farewell traditionally employed by the creatures known as men in their daily life:

"Merry Christmas!"

There's a new man in Faye Dunaway's life, someone "I think I love." Faye asked that I not reveal the name of that certain someone she planned to see in New York over the holidays, but did say, "It's all right to say it most definitely isn't Marcello Mastroianni." The Faye-Marcello friendship has so cooled that they didn't even get together for old times sake while both were in Manhattan earlier this month.

Faye is understandably elated over the reviews she has garnered for her magnificent portrayal of the cold, anxiety-ridden, doomed-to-tragedy high fashion model in Puzzle of a Downfall Child. Conceived by director Jerry Schatzberg (while he was Faye's fiance, and before Mastroianni entered the scene), many claim "Puzzle" is Jerry's testament of love, a script that would allow Faye to display her full range of talents. I feel there's no one even in competition with her for Oscar honors.

I think you'll agree, when The Search segment of Medical Centre airs, that Joanne Linville gives one of the most deeply moving performances of the season when Chad Everett breaks the news she has lost her baby. Even more moving is Joanne's courageous performance that occurred away from the cameras several months ago. The wife of director Mark Rydell, she experienced the personal tragedy of losing her own prematurely born baby. Chad didn't know the real-life story when he and Joanne filmed the emotional scene for the MGM TVer. Now Joanne feels freer in talking about it, and revealing cheerfully that she and Mark have plans to adopt a baby. They already have one young son.

Obfuscation

As a language grows more "sophisticated," in the modern sense, it seems to accomplish two opposite things at once: it clarifies expression and confuses it at the same time. In "advanced" societies, words are as often used as smoke-screens as they are used as smoke-signals.

* * *

This reflection was prompted by a little news item out of Swaziland, the new African state which has established its own national airline. Recently, the airline decided to print tickets in Swazi instead of English, "and ran up against some tricky linguistic problems," the story noted.

Technical and legalistic terms are nonexistent in this tribal tongue, and the official translator of the tickets finally gave up trying to translate such phrases as "unless expressly so provided, nothing herein contained shall waive any limitation of liability of carrier . . ."

Every passenger has seen this gobbledygook on his ticket, and not one out of a thousand English-speaking travellers can understand it. Such language is devised (as it is in household leases) to give the carrier and the landlord all the best of it, while confusing the layman.

* * *

In our society, millions of people agree to or sign things they haven't read because they couldn't understand them even after reading.

This is not to make the arrogant assumption that tribal languages are childish, as so many of us do. Prof. Mario Pei, in his book, The Story of Language, points out that the two principal African tongues, Hausa and Swahili, are far from crude or simple-minded.

Swahili, indeed, he tells us, has reached such a stage of development that the comedies of Moliere have been successfully translated into it, and presented with an all-African cast.

* * *

And the Bantu languages (of which family this is a member) are termed "infinitely expressive" by this professor of linguistics.

For instance, English has no word like "mumagamagama," which means "one who loses other people's things," or "muwavi," meaning "a good-looking women who can't cook," or "muwandoloci," meaning "someone who growls when awakened in the morning," or "mutolatoli," meaning "one who is constantly divorcing and remarrying."

* * *

Bantu even has a word for a "yes-man" — "muvumizi."

The terms and phrases we have developed, which are lacking in Swazi and other native tongues, are not so much tools of communication as weapons of obfuscation — means of confounding, intimidating, impressing, frightening or fooling people.

When you are loftily told that your ailment may be "iatrogenic," what that means is that it's probably something you picked up from the doctor.

Super Salesman in Right Place for B.C. Birthday Kickoff

Amid Pasadena Roses, Bennett Sees Green

By IAN STREET
Colonist Legislative Reporter

PASADENA — It's perfectly in keeping with the picture most Canadians hold of Premier Bennett that he should be here in California to open British Columbia's Centennial 71 celebrations.

Another premier might have chosen to stand huddled against the New Year's Eve chill on the steps of the legislative buildings watching fireworks explode in the inky skies above Victoria.

But Bennett has his eye fixed on a maximum of 30 seconds of television exposure, to an audience of more than 100 million viewers, that comes with participation in the annual Tournament of Roses Parade held each New Year's Day.

The brash, huckster image belongs here among the razzle dazzle. Somehow, amid palms trees under blues skies, it doesn't seem quite so absurd that a centenary — which Bennett describes as the most important in Canada's history — should be kicked off this way so many hundreds of miles beyond our borders.

"Greatest test of the 70s will be in finding jobs . . . and protecting our environment."

The choice, as he sees it, lies between a practical businesslike approach — with enormous potential returns in tourism from continent-wide television exposure — or being merely sentimental. Obviously, tourist dollars win hands down.

The premier, however, likes to take a back seat to no one in expressions of his attachment to British Columbia and Canada. In an exclusive interview with the Colonist, Bennett talked about his feelings on this province's future in Confederation. The premier also discussed events planned as part of the coming centenary which he believes will help cement our nationhood.

Centennial 71, Bennett said, is much more significant than the 1967 national birthday party which marked the centenary of Confederation. In the coming year, not only British Columbians but all Canadians are celebrating a century of true nationhood, starting with the creation in 1871 of Canada from sea to sea.

As protests mount against Spain six doomed Basques write . . .

'We Wish to Die'

Six Basques behind metal screen in Burgos cell —AP

From AP, UPI

MADRID — Six Basque nationalists under sentence of death have spurned clemency and expressed a desire to die for the dignity of man and the liberty of their native land, a Basque spokesman said Tuesday.

The development came as Gen. Francisco Franco met with his highest advisers to discuss the case of the six. He alone can commute death sentences.

Reuter news agency quoted informed sources as saying there were indications Franco would commute the sentences to 30 years.

A letter, purporting to come from one of the six, was made public in St. Jean de Luz, France, across the border from the Basque country, by Teleforo de Monzon, a leading Basque spokesman.

"We hope strongly that clemency will not be accorded," the letter said.

"We are revolutionaries. We wish to die for the dignity of man and the liberty of our Basque lands."

* * *

De Monzon said he believes the writer expressed the spirit of the other five, describing them "all as serene and determined as he."

Spain's Council of the Realm advised Franco Tuesday to commute the death sentences ordered for the six Basques, but the more powerful cabinet remained split on the issue, government sources reported.

* * *

Fascist Spain and Soviet Russia, two countries on opposite ends of the political spectrum, were both under increasing world-wide pressure Tuesday — to commute the death sentences for the Basques are on one side and for two Russian Jews convicted of an airplane hijack plot on the other.

Appeals for clemency came from the Vatican, heads of state and trade unions.

* * *

European governments that spoke out against the death sentences and appealed to Spain for clemency included Britain, Israel, Switzerland, France, West German, Ireland, Italy, Sweden, Belgium, Austria, Norway, the Soviet Union and Yugoslavia.

Various organizations throughout the world, including the British Council of Churches, the British opposition Labor party, and the bishops of Denmark and Norway also sent telegrams to Franco on behalf of the Basques.

Basque sympathizers in major cities throughout Europe demonstrated against the verdict. In London, Cardiff, Glasgow, and Dublin, demonstrators settled in for long vigils outside Spanish embassies, bundling up under blankets against heavy sleet.

In Washington, the U.S. senate Tuesday night also protested death sentences handed out to the two Russian Jews and a congressman announced legislators from several countries plan to fly to Moscow to protest the treatment of Soviet Jewry.

In Ottawa, the Canadian government called in the Soviet ambassador Tuesday and delivered a formal protest against death sentences handed down to the two Russian Jews.

Six Lots Barred from Shelves

Imported Tuna Screened For Mercury

OTTAWA (CP) Testing of all imported fish has resulted in six lots of tinned tuna being barred from the retail market because of mercury contamination, health authorities said Tuesday.

All were imported, either frozen for canning here or from Japanese or Cuban canners.

Conflicting news reports from Ottawa indicated domestic tuna was also involved, but this could not be confirmed.

A spokesman for the federal fisheries department inspection division in Vancouver elaborated on the official statement by explaining that although it might be possible some contaminated tuna could be on retail shelves now, it would not be a safety hazard.

"In the first place," he said, "the standards were set based on the assumption that a person would be eating a very large amount of tuna, as in Japan where fish and rice forms the diet of many people.

* * *

"But even if it were the sole source of diet, it would still not be a hazard because products that will be purchasable from now on will not be contaminated so the mercury would not be able to accumulate."

He explained it would not be possible to give brand names in the case of the Japanese tuna, at least, because the cans are unlabelled and importers who would label them would be purchasing from several different factories throughout the country.

He was unaware of any other sources of contaminated

Lewis Demands End to Anti-Terror Law

FLQ Trio Zips In, Out of Court

- FLQ member's book to be published by McClelland. Page 12

From CP, UPI

MONTREAL — Brothers Paul and Jacques Rose and Francis Simard were given formal notice Tuesday at a special coroner's inquest they are being held as material witnesses in the murder of Pierre Laporte, Quebec's former labor minister.

In a 30-second appearance — a formality — the three were told they are being held under warrants issued Nov. 5.

They are to be brought before the inquest when it resumes Monday.

In Ottawa, David Lewis, deputy NDP leader, called for immediate revocation of the government's anti-terrorist legislation following the Monday arrests of the FLQ suspects.

Lewis said "There is no longer any possible excuse for the Public Order Act to continue in force."

"I therefore call on the prime minister to discuss with the premier of Quebec the revocation of this act at the earliest possible date."

The New Democratic Party was the only party to oppose the government's "anti-terrorist" legislation.

Lewis
. . . "no excuse"

None of the three was handcuffed as they were brought one by one into the courtroom on the sixth floor of the Quebec provincial police headquarters where the coroner's inquest has been held.

Paul Rose, sporting a week-old beard, was dressed in a dirty reddish-brown sweater and dark slacks. His unkempt hair varied from reddish yellow in the middle to dark at the sides. His brother Jacques wore a blue shirt with blue jeans.

Simard, pale and gaunt, wearing a grey work shirt and dark slacks, also was unshaven.

Apart from Paul Rose who said something and was drowned out by Sessions Judge Jacques Trahan, none of them tried to speak. They were asked if they had a lawyer and Jacques Rose, the only one to smile, said he had none. Simard made no comments.

Reporters and workers from QPP headquarters were the only spectators.

Seven other persons, including Michel Viger, who rented a farmhouse where the Roses and Simard were found, also appeared Tuesday and are to testify Monday.

Viger, a 30-year-old accountant, rented the large white farmhouse in October and was picked up by police with the Roses and Simard.

B.C. Cabinet Accepts Isman Resignation

The B.C. cabinet has accepted the resignation of Provincial Court Judge Bernard Isman of Vancouver, who had been under suspension since August for alleged dealings with a woman suspected of prostitution and drug abuse.

The cabinet order made public Tuesday also rescinded the order that appointed him to the bench in 1963.

Isman, 63, was suspended Aug. 24.

* * *

The suspension was followed by a hearing into the matter by the seven-member B.C. Judicial Council, chaired by former provincial judge Cyril White, now chairman of the Workmen's Compensation Board.

The hearings were closed to the public after Isman's counsel said a woman who was a key witness would not appear if they were held in public.

Passengers Injured

DUNROBIN, Ont. (CP) — The eastbound Canadian National Super Continental passenger train was derailed near here Tuesday night and eight to 10 persons were reported injured.

Cause of the accident was not known.

But a special train was sent here from Ottawa, 20 miles to the southeast, to take the passengers there.

Kissing Disease Vaccine Close

CHICAGO (Reuter) — A team of medical researchers reported Tuesday a major development toward the production of a vaccine against infectious mononucleosis, often called the kissing disease.

The researchers from Northwestern University told the annual meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science that they had identified a protein from the red blood cells of sheep that may provide immunity from the disease.

Injected into chickens it stimulated the production of a chemical immunity that is identical to the same kind of immunity that humans get after recovering from a bout with mononucleosis, it was reported.

Woman Stabs Needler During Violence Study

CHICAGO (Reuter) — A symposium on crime, violence and social control achieved a violent touch Tuesday when a young heckler was stabbed in the arm by a woman with a knitting needle.

The incident occurred during a three-hour panel discussion at the annual meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science being held in three large hotels in Chicago.

Twelve persons entered the meeting room during the discussion and began interrupting and jeering the participants. They attempted to make the point that crime is not an individual behavior problem but the results of "political repression, racism and imperialism."

A woman in the audience, later identified as the wife of a delgate, who had been knitting, became so upset that she jabbed a needle into the arm of a protester in the aisle.

Hang On to Your Stetson

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The John B. Stetson Co., manufacturer of famous hats since 1865, announced Tuesday it will stop making hats in early 1971.

Norman Karps, executive vice-president, said:

"Despite the diligent efforts of management and the loyalty of our customers, the severe decline in the use of hats has made it economically unfeasible to continue the production of hats in our large Philadelphia plant."

Thus, the modern male's dislike of hats will bring an end to the Stetson hat, long identified with the rich history of the American West and worn by ranchers and oil millionaires, among others.

At one time the Stetson firm employed 5,000 workers at its Philadelphia plant, but today only 300 work there. Other plants are in Danbury, Conn., and New York City.

Hope of Uninterrupted Commercials Wanes

At Cedar Hill

Nearing completion at Cedar Hill golf course is new clubhouse, above, which is scheduled for opening late in January. Saanich Ald. William Noel, chairman of parks and outdoor recreation committee said golfers, when clubhouse is opened, will start play near end of Derby Road instead of on Finlayson as at present. The No. 18 hole will become No. 1 and No. 4 will become No. 10. Saanich officially takes over golf course just after New Year. — (William E. John)

By CHARLES MAHER

Colonist-Los Angeles Times Service

LOS ANGELES — There were some of the usual annoyances on television over the weekend. For example, every once in a while they would interrupt the cigarette commercials for a word from the announcer at a football game.

It never fails. Just when you figure somethng interesting is going to happen to the Marlboro Man (maybe he'll go to the dance in town and fall for a pretty schoolmarm who will agree to see him again only if he promises to kick his disgusting smoking habit), there's a break in the action and you're back at some fool game. It's probably too much to expect that television will ever give us even 15 minutes of commercial enjoyment uninterrupted by programming.

* * *

For the sophisticated viewer, the guy who just can't get enough of cigarette commercials, the situation is about to get worse.

A law banning cigarette advertising on TV and radio becomes effective at midnight Jan. 1. The sports fan, of course, will be one of the hardest hit. Sports programs have long been one of the tobacco industry's favorite advertising vehicles.

So, on New Year's Day, we'll be saying goodby to a lot of dear friends.

Among them will be the nononsense guy who buys Camel filters ("they're not for everybody") instead of some of those silly faddish brands (made by the same manufacturer).

And the Tareyton man, whose wholly admirable product loyalty has gotten him into a lot of fights, all of which he seems to have lost.

And that lovable but bungling Benson & Hedges man, who keeps getting the first 10 millimeters of his cigarette chopped off in the elevator door.

And all those wonderful Winston people, who have invented so many delightful ways of telling us that good grammar ain't hardly no substitute for good taste.

* * *

And the provident Raleigh man, who has saved up enough coupons to get himself a new armchair (to replace the one he threw out because it had cigarette burns all over it).

And the guy who came all the way up to Kools, only to find they didn't taste so hot.

And, of course, the good folks at Salem, who have been reminding us that if we ever get caught in the great outdoors, we should be sure to smoke constantly, so as to avoid contaminating our lungs with fresh air.

* * *

If you didn't read the story about the cigarette advertising ban in Sunday's paper, you are perhaps unaware of the extent of our loss as TV viewers. In one recent year, the story said, cigarette makers spent $226,000,000 on TV and radio advertising.

What is television going to be able to give us that could possibly provide the sort of intellectual stimulation we got from all those cigarette commercials? And what is television to do to make up for nearly a quarter of a billion dollars in advertising revenue that is about to go up, as they say, in smoke?

* * *

Actually, the networks will not suffer as much as you might suppose. For one thing, announcers will no longer be exposed to cigarette commercials and a lot of them will quit smoking. So they will no longer need cough buttons on their microphones. That will save the networks two or three hundred dollars right there.

As for the cigarette makers, you needn't worry that they will forget sports fans. Sunday's story about the TV ban said:

". . . the tobacco industry is using all of its marketing ingenuity to fill the void. Among other new promotions next year, cigarette makers will sponsor auto races, a Canadian golf tournament, a bowling tourney called the Winston-Salem Classic and a series of women's tennis matches dubbed the Virginia Slims international . . .

* * *

"The August issue of Tobacco Reporter, a trade journal, explained it this way:

" 'The advertising has been banned, but not the appearance of the product during the feature programming. For instance, at a stock car race, one or more of the participating vehicles will have a cigarette promotion blurb on its side. In following the race, the television cameras will pass fence advertisements while the pit crews and winners will be smoking with the cigarette pack prominently displayed.

" 'Such will hold true for any number of sporting events that appear on television. It could even go so far as to have the football booster sections displaying block cards that promote a particular brand.' "

But that still won't bring the Marlboro Man back to my living room. Watching football is not going to be the same without you, old podner. You're going to be missed. Just one last thing before you go: If I were you, I think I'd do something about that cough.

It Starts At 11 a.m.

Set six hours aside next Sunday, football fans — the CBC, CBS and NBC networks have announced final TV details for the two National Football League divisional championships.

Word came Tuesday that the AFC final, Oakland at Baltimore, will begin at 11 a.m. on Channel 5 while the NFC final, Dallas at San Francisco, will start at 2 p.m. on Channels 2, 6, 7 and 12.

Both starting times are an hour later than usual due to other network TV commitments.

Brodie Willing To Be Ex-Champ

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Whether the amateur champion of the Bing Crosby golf tournament gets to defend his crown two weeks from now will depend on the outcome of the National Football Conference title game.

The amateur is John Brodie, record-setting quarterback for San Francisco '49ers who are matched against Dallas Cowboys Sunday.

If the '49ers win, they have a Super Bowl date in Miami Jan. 17, the same day as the final round of the Crosby classic at Pebble Beach.

Brodie and Bob Rosburg won the Pro-Am last January, but John hopes he will have to send his regrets this time, avid golfer though he is.

Brodie sparkled in a 7-6-1 season in 1968, but then the '49ers fell off to 4-8-2 in 1969.

Then Brodie hit the peak in 1970.

With an improved line and sharp receivers, he led conference passers and was sacked only eight times, a new league record.

He completed 223 passes for 2941 yards and became the fourth quarterback in pro history to exceed 2000 completions and 25,000 yards during his career.

Rangers Pass Bruins By Edging Seals, 3-2

New York Rangers defeated California Golden Seals, 3-2, in Tuesday's only National Hockey League game, moving past Boston Bruins into the East Division lead.

Playing their seventh game in 11 days, Rangers grabbed a 3-0 lead and then hung on to take a one-point lead.

Bruins have a chance to regain first place tonight when they make up one of their two games in hand against the North Stars in Minneapolis.

Tonight's game between Pittsburgh at Montreal will be telecast on Channel 8 starting at 5 p.m.

The win stretched New York's unbeaten streak at home this season to 19 games, including four ties, and added to two games at the end of the last regular season, tied the club record of 21 consecutive unbeaten games at home set two seasons ago.

Arnie Brown's first goal of the season, coming with both teams a man short midway through the second period, proved to be the winner.

Spurt by Ullman Scoring Feature

Phil Esposito of Boston Bruins slipped off his record average of two points per game during the past week and it could well be that his magic rubbed off on another centre — Norm Ullman of Toronto Maple Leafs.

While Esposito was managing "only" two goals and two assists in the three Boston games, Ullman climbed from 14th place to sixth in the league scoring race by scoring six goals and five assists in three games to bring his totals to 20 goals and 42 points.

Strength down the middle appears to be the keynote this season with five centres among the top 10 scorers, the others being New York's Jean Ratelle, Detroit's Alex Delvecchio and Toronto's Dave Keon.

And five of the next 10 scorers are also centres — Orland Kurtenbach and Andre Boudrias of Vancouver, Pit Martin and Stan Mikita of Chicago and Walt Tkaczuk of New York.

Winger Dave Balon of New York has taken some of the spotlight from the centres lately, becoming the third player, behind Esposito and Ullman, to reach the 20-goal mark. He currently has 21, 11 behind the pace-setting Boston star.

New York's Ed Giacomin (2.18) and Gilles Villemure (1.80) still lead the goalkeepers with a combined goals-against average of 2.11 per game. Gerry Desjardins (2.00) and Tony Esposito of Chicago (2.17) are next at 2.14.

Saanich Club Puts In Surprise Bid

CHILLIWACK — Saanich is making a surprise bid for the championship in the invitational peewee hockey jamboree which ends today at Chilliwack.

Saanich defeated favored North Shore, 8-6, in its opening game and advanced to the quarter-final, at 6 this morning against Burnaby, by defeating Merritt, 4-1.

Semi-finals will be played in the afternoon with the final at 9 p.m.

In the "B" division, the Saanich entry defeated Coquitlam, 5-0, but was knocked out in the second round by Kamloops, 3-0.

City Midgets Meet Today In Vancouver

NORTH VANCOUVER — Dave Archibald's second goal of the game, after 43 seconds of sudden-death overtime, gave Saanich a 2-1 win over Seattle Tuesday in the four-day invitational midget hockey tournament.

The win was Saanich's second in three games in the double-knockout event and the team will meet Esquimalt this morning with the winner advancing to meet Vancouver Pacific National Exhibition in the afternoon.

A total of 24 teams are participating in the tournament which ends today.

Vikings Get It

Spectacular Win

Tom Holmes' hook shot with two seconds remaining gave University of Victoria Vikings a 75-73 win over Warner Pacific College of Portland, Ore., in an exhibition men's basketball game Tuesday night at UVic gymnasium.

Holmes, held to two points in the first half, finished with 11 points and bottled up Portland's top scorer, Daryl Stroschine, in the second half. Stroschine had 13 points in the opening half and finished with 21 for the night, two more than teammate Rich McLean.

Warner Pacific started off quickly and looked as if they were going to run Vikings off the floor as they built a 7-0 lead. But Vikings recovered and were behind by one point at halftime, 41-42.

The teams were tied, 73-73, with a minute and five seconds remaining and Vikings kept possession of the ball and called a time out with eight seconds remaining to set up Holmes' shot.

The two teams meet again tonight starting at 8 p.m. at UVic.

Juniors Turn Down Impressed Seniors

CALGARY (CP) — Ron Butlin, president of the eastern Canada Hockey League, said Tuesday no further games will be played between senior hockey teams and members of the junior league.

The league gave permission for a benefit exhibition game Monday between the WCHL Calgary Centennials and the senior Calgary Stampeders of the Alberta Hockey League.

"We have a league ruling which prohibits exhibition games during our schedule except with affiliated teams."

The Stampeders found themselves in financial difficulties after the death of their owner in November and announced about a month later they would have to suspend operations.

STAMPS SAVED

Contributions and about $8,000 raised for the club at the game they lost, 4-1, to the Centennials appear to have provided sufficient funds for the team to continue, but no official word has been given.

The Alberta Hockey League has an interlocking schedule with the Saskatchewan Senior Hockey League and the Western International Hockey League.

Butlin said he received two requests Tuesday for similar exhibition games from other senior teams, but rejected their proposals.

Coaching Ability May Hurt Landry

DALLAS (AP) — How do you go about beating someone you've taught everything you know?

That's the problem of coach Tom Landry in preparing his Dallas Cowboys for Sunday's National Football Conference final with San Francisco '49ers in Kezar Stadium.

The coach of the '49ers is Dick Nolan, Landry's defensive coach in 1966 and 1967 when the Cowboys came close to defeating Green Bay Packers for the National Football League title.

"Tom taught me everything I know," Nolan said Sunday after San Francisco had upset Minnesota Vikings, 17-14. "I'll enjoy playing against him."

DEFENCE STINGY

The Dallas defence has gone 21 consecutive quarters without allowing a touchdown, but Landry is making it clear the Cowboys can't live by defence alone against the '49ers.

"I know this, we'll have to do some scoring against San Francisco because the '49ers will be scoring with a guy like quarterback John Brodie in there," Landry said.

Dallas rushed for more than 200 yards against Detroit Lions in the 5-0 victory Sunday and came away with only a field goal. Quarterback Craig Morton could hit but four of 18 passes for 38 yards.

Bruins Shift To Avoid Football TV

BOSTON (AP) — Boston Bruins took notice of U.S. football's Super Bowl when they announced changes in starting times for two National Hockey League games at Boston Garden.

Because of the Super Bowl telecast on Jan. 17, a scheduled game with Toronto Maple Leafs was shifted from afternoon to night.

The Toronto game was scheduled for television. It will be replaced on TV by a game with the St. Louis Blues Jan. 31, moved from night to afternoon.

They didn't laugh after Arnold Palmer and Jesse Owens had performed but there were a few grins when the famous golfer and one-time Olympic sprint champion agreed to join orchestra at recent charity function in Detroit. Joe Learned to Relax During Bombardment

By ALLAN R. BRUCE

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UPI) — Joe Daley learned to relax on the busiest night of his career. Now he doesn't worry any more.

Daley, 27, one of two remaining goaltenders in the National Hockey League who refuse to wear a mask, says he was never able to settle down while on the Pittsburgh Penguin roster a year ago.

"When I was with Pittsburgh, I felt that if I didn't come up with a superlative effort every time I got on the ice I would get sent to the minors," Daley says. As it was, he split the 1969-70 season between the Penguins and Baltimore of the American Hockey League.

But Daley was obtained by the Buffalo Sabres in the NHL expansion draft last June and in Buffalo he isn't under "that kind of pressure any more."

Now the pressure comes from a porous defence that gives opposition sharpshooters too many shots on goal — they've been averaging 43.5 shots per game against Daley.

"I think I probably matured about 20 years in the Boston game" Dec. 10, Daley says. That was the busiest night of his career as the Stanley Cup champions poured 72 shots on goal, scoring eight times. Daley held Boston to a 2-2 tie after two periods before the Sabres checking collapsed completely in the final stanza.

"Before Boston, I used to worry a lot about past games and past performances," Daley says. "Now I take each game as it comes. I realized that if I could go out and withstand that (Boston attack) I could play in the National Hockey League."

Daley has been used primarily as a backup to Sabres' regular goalie Roger Crozier this season, but that doesn't bother him. He says there is no jealousy among himself, Crozier and Buffalo's other backup goalie, Dave Dryden.

But don't get Joe Daley wrong. Joe Daley is the guy he'd most like to see in uniform. Hockey games are long, nerve-racking contests when viewed from the press box.

Daley has played in only 11 of the Sabres' 34 games this season, but most of the action has come in recent weeks while Crozier has been ill. Daley has shown a steady improvement and he picked up his first win last Sunday, a 5-2 decision over the Detroit Red Wings while the Sabres were outshot, 46-20.

The win was especially sweet for Daley. He won it for Crozier, who was obtained by Buffalo from Detroit and was scheduled to start the game but spent the time in a hospital bed instead.

Daley and veteran Lorne "Gump" Worsley of the Minnesota North Stars are alone as the NHL goalies who refuse to wear a mask.

Daley says tending goal is "tough enough without distractions. Until I find the right mask, I won't be wearing one. They say you have to be a little nuts to play goal, anyway — and I guess this proves it.

"Anyway, I stopped worrying about losing my looks a long time ago."

High View Surprise To Admiral

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Coast Guard admiral forced to retire because of his role in returning a defecting Soviet seaman said Tuesday he thought at the time his superiors approved of the move.

Rear-Admiral William Ellis told a House of Representatives foreign affairs subcommittee that in the absence of any guidance from the coast guard command in Washington he felt returning the defector was proper.

"Either they weren't going to give us any advice or they agreed with it," he said in explanation for his instruction to have Simas Kudirka returned to a Russian fishing boat Nov. 23 without further word from Washington.

Ellis, a coast guard district commander, and Capt. Fletcher Brown, his chief of staff, were recommended for a court martial by a coast guard board that investigated the incident. Both officers accepted retirement instead.

Ellis said he was concerned about the fishing-rights talks then going on between the United States and the Soviet Union when he recommended to Brown that Kudirka be returned.

Home Test Detects Pregnancy

A do-it-yourself pregnancy test, the first of its kind to be marketed in Canada, is being sold in some Victoria drug stores for $5.25.

It has been described by the manufacturers as a simple and accurate test to detect a hormone present in the urine of pregnant women.

* * *

The amount of this hormone increases during the early stages of pregnancy and may be detected as early as four days after a missed menstrual period.

A pharmacist with a Victoria retail drug store said the product seemed "to come out of the blue" two weeks ago. It was a surprise, he explained, because he had not read about it earlier in any of the literature.

* * *

The manufacturers say it is not intended to replace a doctor's diagnosis but rather to encourage women to seek early advice.

"Clinical testing has been carried out in Canada with an accuracy of more than 96 per cent among groups of non-technically trained women representing a cross-section of educational and economic backgrounds," said George C. Jackson, general manager of Denver Laboratories (Canada) Ltd.

Bus Dispute Hearing Set

The B.C. Mediation Commission will hold a hearing Thursday in Vancouver seeking a settlement in the contract dispute between British Columbia Hydro and transit bus drivers.

The hearing was called after the term of mediator Gus Leonidas expired and his report on the dispute was made available to Hydro and the Amalgamated Transit Union.

The hearing does not prohibit a strike which the union, with 1,800 members in Vancouver and Victoria, has threatened to commence Monday if there is no settlement by then.

The three-man mediation commission's decision will not be binding on either party, but the provincial cabinet could make the decision binding under section 18 of the Mediation Commission Act.

The union is an affiliate of the B.C. Federation of Labor which has a policy of boycotting hearings of the mediation commission in protest against its powers of compulsory arbitration.

A union spokesman said its representatives would not appear voluntarily at the scheduled Thursday hearing but that the union would abide by the law if its officers or members were summonsed to appear.

B.C. Hydro had offered the union a 6.5-per-cent wage increase in a two-year contract. The old contract expired in October. The union has rejected the offer.

Mill Boost Ahead

COURTENAY — Increased salaries for teachers and members of Canadian Union of Public Employees, plus a hike in the cost of busing children to school, will probably result in an increased mill rate for school purposes, a school board official has indicated.

Roy Mills, secretary-treasurer of Courtenay school district, told trustees that if they leave the provisional budget essentially unchanged except for the three adjustments stated above, the rate would probably work out to 33.9 mills.

On the other hand, he said, should the board increase its budget up to the limit of the government's 110 per cent financing formula, the rate would be about 35.6.

Provisional Budget

Last year's mill rate for education purposes in District 71 was 32.57.

Mills explained that the provisional budget for teacher salaries was calculated on the basis of an 8.1 per cent pay raise, but the final figure turned out to be 8.36 per cent, plus additional fringe benefits, which will exceed the provisional budget figure by about $11,000.

"The salary allowance for the CUPE contract used in the provisional budget was 8 per cent. If a settlement similar to that reached by the four boards to the south is attained here, it will run just a little higher for a probable total extra cost of $2,000," Mills said.

Bus Increase

He said he had planned on an increase in bus costs of 6 per cent per mile, and although the bus company has not submitted a formal request, "initial discussions indicate an average increase in the order of 8 per cent."

He said that, if granted, this would increase the busing cost by slightly more than $4,000.

Mills said the reduction in last year's mill rate, due to the government's setting the basic levy lower than it had anticipated, should not be expected this year.

"It would be unwise to anticipate such largesse this year," he told trustees.

Ladysmith Mayor:

Challenge Grows in 1971

LADYSMITH — Ladysmith council will face a year of "greater challenge than ever before," Mayor Kay Grouhel said Monday.

"We face an interesting year — one of greater challenge than ever before. As costs remain high or grow higher, we will all have to work that much harder to accomplish everything we wish to do during the coming year," she told council.

* * *

Mrs. Grouhel described the highlight of the year as the start of work on the Land Assembly Project, which involves the development of a parcel of land adjacent to Holland Creek, at the south end of Ladysmith, where nearly 100 large fully serviced residential lots will be offered for sale.

Public works chairman Ald. Pat Ryan reviewed the year's operation of his department, whose major project during 1970 was the installation of 3,750 feet of eight-inch water line on First Avenue, replacing four-inch line.

* * *

A number of paving projects were completed in various parts of town, new sidewalks were laid, and some work was done on the land assembly project. Storm drains and new sewers were installed where required, and the town purchased four new pieces of equipment.

Earlier in the meeting, Ryan presented the tenders for street signs and posts to be installed as soon as possible on all existing street intersections in the town. The signs will be green with white letters and figures and will be mounted on steel posts.

Ald. George Oliver told council that the Ladysmith and District General Hospital's financial position is now much improved over last year.

Expansion has started with the approval of six more beds, and the Central Vancouver Island Health Unit has authorized hiring of one new public health nurse for the Ladysmith district.

Oliver said that two more public health inspectors are needed, and "we will have to put more pressure on the unit and the minister of health if we are to get these."

* * *

Steady library progress was reported by Oliver, who said that the installation of photocopying machines in some branches had proved so successful that more will be installed during 1971.

Highlights in the field of recreation during 1970 included the first Beach Ball Days, now to become an annual celebration; more improvements and additions to Transfer Beach Park; work done on tennis courts, and a number of meetings held in an effort to acquire the Agricultural Hall for the town.

* * *

A Centennial 71 Committee was formed with Willis Jamison as chairman, and the suggested project, as of now, is the improvement of the Agricultural Hall as a community recreation centre.

Ald. Bob Stillin, chairman of the welfare committee for Ladysmith, told council that 1970 welfare costs to the town totalled $51,281, and that there is little hope of these costs declining during 1971. He also urged the council to give further consideration to improvements in the cemetery, including reseeding, gravestone repair, road improvements and a new fence and gate.

As water works chairman, Stillin expressed pleasure at replacement of 3,300 feet of wooden stave pipe in co-operation with the Saltair Water Works, and the completion of a feasibility study of the Saltair Water Works.

He said he hoped that plans will go ahead in 1971 for cementing the Arbutus reservoir, as a serious pollution problem exists there.

Ald. Pat O'Brien called 1970 an "uneventful year—which is a good year"—for the Ladysmith volunteer fire department.

"There were no serious fires, and no injury or loss of life due to fires, during 1970, which indicates that the department is operating on a high standard of prevention and extinguishment," O'Brien told council. A new bylaw was drawn up and passed during the year, and present membership in the department totals 26.

* * *

O'Brien also reported on the Ladysmith Volunteer Ambulance Drivers' Association, which has just recently completed its first full year of operation with nine drivers.

As in the case of the fire department, O'Brien stressed the need for larger, more convenient quarters, as soon as possible.

Snowfall Piles Up

Snow continued to fall in several up-Island points Tuesday night with the road between Campbell River and Gold River receiving more than two feet.

Snow was falling heavily on the Hump between the Island's east coast and Port Alberni. It was snowing in Port Alberni late Tuesday night with more than an inch lying on the ground.

On the 75 miles of highway between Port Alberni and Tofino the snow varied in depth from eight inches to 19 inches and the highways department called for chains.

Travellers to Kelsey Bay, home port of the Queen of Prince Rupert, had to drive through seven inches of snow while motorists using the Campbell River-Gold River Road found about 18 inches of snow about half way along the route.

Gold River was blanketed with six inches of snow in the past 48 hours, and police reported light snowfall Tuesday night.

Ucluelet reported snow falling late Tuesday night following mixed rain and snow showers.

On the east coast of the Island, rain and heavy winds were reported in Campbell River and Courtenay, with less wind but heavy rain in Nanaimo and Duncan.

Gale warnings have been called all up the east coast with winds gusting up to 45 miles an hour and rain and snow. The wind is expected to drop by Wednesday afternoon.

Nanaimo Mayor Frank Ney remained at Green Mountain ski area Tuesday night after he was stuck there by a blizzard Sunday.

Ferries Normal

In contrast with Monday's shattered schedules, B.C. Ferries officials Tuesday reported vessels running on time until the final sailing, when high winds delayed the departure of the stretch ferry Queen of Esquimalt from Tsawwassen for one hour and 10 minutes.

Gale force winds gusting up to 45 miles an hour southeast were expected to subside by 4 a.m. today to southerly 20 miles an hour.

"We should be all right for morning," a ferry official said.

The winds were to be accompanied by showers of rain and snow.

The Queen of Victoria Tuesday night left Swartz Bay on time — 9 p.m., for Tsawwassen, but a ferry official said she would probably dawdle along until the Queen of Esquimalt cleared the mainland dock.

Anticipating a backlog of traffic as the result of Monday's muddle, officials scheduled two extra return trips from Swartz Bay at 8 a.m. and 12 p.m. Tuesday, but one official said there was no backlog.

The service then continued on normal schedules with the Queens of Victoria, Saanich and Esquimalt carrying on.

Agriculture Student Wins Dairy Club Scholarship

DUNCAN — A second-year University of British Columbia student received a $100 scholarship Tuesday from Island Farms Dairies Co-op Association for outstanding achievements in 4-H.

The scholarship went to Alison Mayer, 20, of Duncan.

Duncan district agriculturist and southern Vancouver Island 4-H supervisor Ken Jameson made the presentation at his office in the new provincial government office building.

"We could not have a more worthy member we could have given it to," Jameson said. The scholarship, offered this year for the first time, is for a student who is taking advanced education, either vocational, technical or university training, but the student must be a member of a 4-H dairy club.

Miss Mayer, who has been a member of the Cowichan 4-H Jersey Club for 10 years, is studying agriculture. In the past several years, she has won many different awards at fairs and various other 4-H events

Aldermen Wrap Up Careers

PORT ALBERNI — The final meeting of the year proved one of the shortest as city council wound up its business in a mere 45 minutes.

It was also the final meeting for long-term Ald. John Williamson, who is retiring from public office, and the last meeting for Ald. Garnett Reynolds and Ald. Alvin Robinson, who were defeated in the last civic election.

All three aldermen paid tribute to the administrative staff of city hall. Williamson said he had found many friends among the aldermen and the mayor, and in spite of differences of opinion at times, he felt he was leaving the council with more friends than he came in with.

Mayor Fred Bishop recalled that he and Reynolds and Williamson had been together for quite a number of years. "While others may forget the tidal wave, I shall always remember your dedication at that time."

The loss of Williamson on city council will also mean his retirement from the Alberni-Clayoquot regional district.

The inaugural meeting for 1971 will be Jan. 4.

Charter Plane Permit Sought

TOFINO — John Thomas Walter of Tofino has applied to the Canadian Transport Commission for approval of a company to be known as Walter's Air Services Ltd. to transport passengers and goods on a charter basis from Tofino.

Tenders Called

The B.C. highways department has called for tenders on 5.02 miles of the Island Highway from the North end of Nimpkish Lake to Nimpkish Junction. Bids must be submitted by Jan. 19.

Minor's Cards On Bar

NANAIMO (CP) — A young woman who pleaded guilty to being in licensed premises must tour 10 beer parlors introducing herself as a minor who cannot be a customer until her 19th birthday March 22.

Patricia Brown pleaded guilty before Provincial Court Judge Eric Winch Tuesday and was given the tour instead of a fine.

Winch told her she could have caused hardship for the Balmoral Hotel management if they had been charged with allowing a minor in the premises, in that they could have lost their liquor licence.

She must get signatures to prove she contacted the barmen and must complete her tour by Jan. 7.

School in Shape Monday…Maybe

DUNCAN — Less than two weeks ago, a fire damaged Quamichan junior high school, but Cowichan school district maintenance men probably will have the school operational by Monday.

The decision on opening will be made by board officials Thursday. The fire gutted the gymnasium and caused smoke and water damage to other portions of the school.

No official damage estimate is available, but the loss is expected to be close to $150,000.

Maintenance superintendent George Routley said Tuesday the cleaning of the school is progressing well, and the burned-out area has been partitioned off from the rest of the school so students will not be endangered.

Insurance adjusters have invited local contractors to submit bids for the re-building of the gymnasium. Routley said the cause of the blaze has not yet been determined.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West

2 ♢	Pass	4 ♠	All pass

Opening lead: Three of ♡.

I was rather proud of myself in this deal. My partner (at cut-in bridge) led the three of hearts and when dummy played the jack I, quite deliberately, put on the king rather than the queen.

What went though my mind was just the faint possibility that we might make two tricks in clubs if my partner could be persuaded to shift to that suit when he regained the lead.

If I had played the queen of hearts—which is certainly the normal card to play—my partner might have been pardoned for thinking that he had better lead another heart when he got in.

Mark what happened. South won with the ace of hearts, crossed to a diamond, and led a trump, losing the queen to the king.

Without the slightest hesitation, my partner returned a club. [illegible] had taken a bit of notice of the card I had played at trick one, and my efforts to persuade him that hearts was the wrong suit to attack were rewarded. This was [illegible] when the only way to beat the contract was to deceive my partner.

High Tides Swamp Property

'Saanich Refuses to Help'

Mrs. Bert De Goey, whose property at 2656 Killarney in Cadboro Bay has been flooded by high tides, said Monday that repeated pleas have been made to Saanich officials to correct the situation.

"In every case," said Mrs. De. Goey, "we have been shuttled from office to office and official to official. Nothing has been done and it appears that nothing will be done."

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. De Goey were all ready to move into their new house Monday morning when the incoming tide, driven by high winds poured into a sea-side ditch, swamping property, home and the sites of two nearby houses.

Mrs. H. A. Jones, 2660 Killarney, said the report that there was a break in the seawall was erroneous.

* * *

"There is no seawall here," she said. "What there is is a ditch into which the water pours and floods when tides are extraordinarily high. We have a flooded driveway and some of our neighbors have had some trouble but there have been no flooded basements so far as I know."

Mrs. Jones said Monday evening that Saanich work crews were on the job.

"I have suggested that the ditch be filled in," she said. "It is a hazard for children as it is deep and wide. I have confidence that this will be done by Saanich."

Neville Life, Saanich municipal engineer, said Monday the ditch involved in the flooding had been a source of trouble before but only under conditions of high tides driven by high winds.

* * *

He said he did not consider the situation serious and that it certainly was a temporary conditon which would cease to be a problem when winds subsided.

Victoria Sticks To Policy

Rejecting a plea from the Victoria Visitors Bureau, a city council committee on Monday supported a longstanding policy that may cost the city a large convention.

Council's recreation and community services committee was told that a convention of Jehovah's Witnesses, to be attended by as many as 5,000 in July, would require use of Memorial Arena's concession facilities.

Jack Morgan, the city's recreation director, said it has never been municipal policy to allow anyone to take over the concesson area and any switch at this time would give other groups a legitimate claim to those facilities.

Letters from the Victoria Visitors Bureau said the convention of the religious group would bring between $250,000 and $350,000 revenue to the city and many persons might combine the convention with a family vacation on Vancouver Island.

However, members of the council committee were not impressed. Ald. Percy Frampton, chairman, suggested that delegates to a Jehovah's Witnesses' convention do not use motels and hotels as much as the Visitors Bureau would believe.

City Aquatic Complex

Bad News from Almost Everywhere

The city of Victoria's $1.6 million aquatic centre will cost more than expected and likely will open in September, nine months later than once proposed.

It was bad news from almost every quarter when city council's recreation and community services committee on Monday afternoon had a 90-minute session with the supervising architect, general contractor and structural engineer.

However, the most distressing moment for Ald. Percy Frampton, chairman of the committee, occurred when it was decided the Central Park complex will not be completed in time for Victoria to be the site of the Canadian swimming championship trials in July and that the swimming officials should be so advised.

Once expected to be completed about now, the swimming pool complex might open sometime between mid-July and mid-September.

Architect John di Castri told the committee he can't see any reason why it shouldn't be ready in July and he is perplexed by statements that it won't open until September.

* * *

Representatives of the general contractors, H. E. Fowler and Sons Ltd., were at the meeting and did not dispute the suggestion that the opening is nine months away.

Di Castri told the council committee that last summer's lockout of the construction industry was a major factor in the delay. If the contractors had not locked out tradesmen, the aquatic complex was planned to be completed April 29.

"Since that time, there have been additional claims (for construction delays) to the extent of about 60 days — to July 23," added di Castri. "In checking the general contractor's critical path chart, I find there are 141 construction days left and that would bring completion to July 20.

"However, I understand the date the contractor now is talking about is Sept. 15."

A spokesman for the contracting firm said there have been special problems caused by the weather. For example, the concrete used for the bleachers had to be heated.

"We are trying to do our very best — even now we can't guarantee a completion date."

However, the question of extra costs took most of the committee's time and attention.

* * *

Last January, city council restored $69,000 worth of items that less than a month earlier had been deleted from the contract. Of that action, The Daily Colonist said in an editorial on Jan. 24:

"There is more than a faint air of duplicity about the action of Victoria city council's recreation and community services committee in recommending additional expenditures on the Central Park aquatic complex after hurriedly trimming the costs in December."

On Monday, di Castri told the committee that $41,850 worth of that work has actually been necessary. The residue has been deleted.

However, the general contractor is claiming $40,879 for other work, most of it necessitated, according to the firm, by the presence of unexpected subsurface rock.

In addition, $3,399 worth of work on the pool is being disputed by the structural engineer and another $4,867 is being sought as structural "extras."

The "extras" are sought by the general contractor on the basis that they either were not included in the original specifications, or the information was scanty.

City Solicitor T. P. O'Grady told the committee that the city is not liable even if the information about the subsurface rock was scanty.

O'Grady said that if a contractor chooses to bid on such a contract, he must be prepared for surprises.

Ottawa Visitor Prefers Comment

The intent behind holding public hearings on constitutional reform could have been subverted if residents of the Greater Victoria area had been given more than two weeks' notice of the date of hearings here.

That was the explanation given Monday by Richard Gervais, executive assistant to the parliamentary committee on the constitution, for the short notice of the date.

Gervais, in Victoria Monday to make arrangements for the hearing which will be held in the Empress Ballroom Saturday, Jan. 9, said in an interview the itinerary for the public hearings had been approved in late October.

Letters announcing the hearings, however, were only received by area councils during the past two weeks. Advertisements regarding the hearing began to appear in local newspapers Monday.

"Our attitude is that every Canadian has given some thought to at least some aspect of constitutional change since the debate (on reform) was opened," Gervais said.

* * *

"They've discussed it with their friends or thought about it themselves and now we want a spontaneous expression of their views."

Asked whether a longer advance notice might not have allowed concerned citizens to compose their thoughts and perhaps do a bit of research to ensure their ideas were not based on incorrect information, Gervais said: "Then they would become experts. We hear the experts in Ottawa."

* * *

He admitted that most "spontaneous" comments were based on misinformation but said a well-prepared brief would not tell members of the committee "what people have on their chest."

Gervais insisted the committee's approach of inviting opinions without reference to the grounds upon which they are based could not be assumed to mean the federal government had chosen this method of appealing directly to an ill-informed public in an attempt to subvert provincial authorities who would be more aware of consequences of proposed changes.

"No province has objected to the debate being made public," he said. "In a democracy, if there is a lack of information or if the information is wrong, it is up to them to respond."

The 30-member joint Senate-House committee was established in mid-October and has, since that time, been holding hearings in Ottawa for three weeks of each month and spending the fourth week "pulse-taking" in various locations throughout the country.

"This is a political problem," Gervais said. "There are many solutions to the problem of Quebec, for instance, in theory, but they must be acceptable in practice, and this means politically."

* * *

The political aspects of the constitutional review are further indicated in the composition of the committee.

Of the 30 members, 10 are from Quebec, eight from Ontario, six from Manitoba, three from New Brunswick, two from Alberta and one from British Columbia. Saskatchewan, Newfoundland, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island are not represented at all.

"Parties are represented but not provinces," Gervais said. "This is not based on regionalism, but on party philosophy."

The committee is the largest, he said, to ever travel throughout the country as a whole.

At the last hearing, held in Southern Ontario, 26 of the members were present, but it is not known yet how many will be present for the B.C. tour. Seven members constitute a quorum as long as both the Commons and the Senate are represented.

The hearing in Victoria will begin at 10 a.m. and resume at 2 p.m. Following each presentation, discussion will be thrown open to members of the audience for comment or questions.

"If need be," Gervais said, "we will come back again or sit again the next morning. We've left the next morning clear in case this is necessary."

* * *

The B.C. hearings, which will be held in Vancouver, Prince George and Kamloops as well as Victoria, are scheduled for the week Jan. 7 through 15.

French-English translation facilities will be available at the hearings as one-third of the committee members conduct the hearings in French only, Gervais said.

Champs Take Tag-Team Go

Don Leo Jonathan and Dunc McTavish retained their Canadian tag-team championship by defeating Gene Kiniski and John Quinn Tuesday in the professional wrestling card at Memorial Arena.

Jonathan and McTavish took the final fall of the best-of-three match on a disqualification.

In other bouts, Dan Kroffat defeated Chatti Yokuchi, Eric Froelich downed Yasu Fiji and Earl Black beat Bill Cody.

Colts, '49ers

LAS VEGAS (AP) — San Francisco '49ers and Baltimore Colts are slight favorites for Sunday's National Football League conference finals.

The '49ers are four-point favorites over Dallas Cowboys in the National Conference championship and Jimmy "The Greek" Snyder has made the Colts a one-point pick over Oakland Raiders.

Army Spied Despite Ban

CHICAGO (AP) — A former United States Army intelligence agent testified Tuesday his unit ignored a ban on surveillance of private citizens and continued to trace such persons as Adlai Stevenson III, militant priest James Groppi and Rev. Ralph David Abernathy of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference.

John O'Brien, 26, a former member of the 113th Military Intelligence Group based in Evanston, a northern suburb of Chicago, testified in a U.S. District Court hearing on a suit filed by the American Civil Liberties Union against top army officers including Gen. William Westmoreland, army chief of staff.

The hearing is on a motion by the ACLU for a preliminary injunction to force the army to halt the surveillance.

O'Brien was discharged in June but he said he visited his former unit last month and learned that surveillance activities continued.

Col. Joseph Walker Jr., commander of the 113th and a defendant, said Monday that surveillance was discontinued in June in accordance with an army directive.

Bonfire Will Greet Centennial Year

COURTENAY — New Year 1971 will be ushered into the Comox Valley area with a blaze of light as a huge centennial bonfire is lit at Forbidden Plateau ski lodge.

This will be the first of many functions scheduled throughout 1971. Each will have a special feature, and Courtenay pioneers are already looking to next June, when Major-General G. R. Pearkes will present them with centennial medallions.

Jan. 2 a luncheon will be the first function. It is expected that the official centennial flag will be presented to the city.

In Comox no announcement has been made for any special means of marking the New Year.

March will see 35 pioneers and one centenarian receive medallions from Pearkes, and on Aug. 14 the town centennial project will be officially opened.

The project is a playing field development at village park. When completed there will be three ball fields. It is expected that turfing of the area will be well established by the fall of 1971.

Bells will ring at midnight in Cumberland on New Year's Eve, but no special civic functions are planned.

June 5 to 12 will be pioneers week, Mayor William Moncrief said. A dinner will formally mark the centennial year, and Major-General G. R. Pearkes is expected to present medallions.

A Little League baseball diamond is Cumberland's centennial project. It will be incorporated in the much larger parks project being carried on by the village. Plans are to open the ball park May 24.

Super Salesman in Right Place for B.C. Birthday Kickoff

Bennett Sees Green Among Roses

By IAN STREET
Colonist Legislative Reporter

PASADENA — It's perfectly in keeping with the picture most Canadians hold of Premier Bennett that he should be here in California to open British Columbia's Centennial 71 celebrations.

Another premier might have chosen to stand huddled against the New Year's Eve chill on the steps of the legislative buildings watching fireworks explode in the inky skies above Victoria.

But Bennett has his eye fixed on a maximum of 30 seconds of television exposure, to an audience of more than 100 million viewers, that comes with participation in the annual Tournament of Roses Parade held each New Year's Day.

The brash, huckster image belongs here among the razzle dazzle. Somehow, amid palms trees under blues skies, it doesn't seem quite so absurd that a centenary — which Bennett describes as the most important in Canada's history — should be kicked off this way so many hundreds of miles beyond our borders.

The choice, as he sees it, lies between a practical businesslike approach — with enormous potential returns in tourism from continent-wide television exposure — or being merely sentimental. Obviously, tourist dollars win hands down.

The premier, however, likes to take a back seat to no one in expressions of his attachment to British Columbia and Canada. In an exclusive interview with the Colonist, Bennett talked about his feelings on this province's future in Confederation. The premier also discussed events planned as part of the coming centenary which he believes will help cement our nationhood.

Centennial 71, Bennett said, is much more significant than the 1967 national birthday party which marked the centenary of Confederation. In the coming year, not only British Columbians but all Canadians are celebrating a century of true nationhood, starting with the creation in 1871 of Canada from sea to sea.

As protests mount against Spain six doomed Basques write . . .

'We Wish to Die'

From AP, UPI

MADRID — Six Basque nationalists under sentence of death have spurned clemency and expressed a desire to die for the dignity of man and the liberty of their native land, a Basque spokesman said Tuesday.

The development came as Gen. Francisco Franco met with his highest advisers to discuss the case of the six. He alone can commute death sentences.

Reuter news agency quoted informed sources as saying there were indications Franco would commute the sentences to 30 years.

A letter, purporting to come from one of the six, was made public in St. Jean de Luz, France, across the border from the Basque country, by Teleforo de Monzon, a leading Basque spokesman.

"We hope strongly that clemency will not be accorded," the letter said.

"We are revolutionaries. We wish to die for the dignity of man and the liberty of our Basque lands."

* * *

De Monzon said he believes the writer expressed the spirit of the other five, describing them "all as serene and determined as he."

Spain's Council of the Realm advised Franco Tuesday to commute the death sentences ordered for the six Basques, but the more powerful cabinet remained split on the issue, government sources reported.

* * *

Fascist Spain and Soviet Russia, two countries on opposite ends of the political spectrum, were both under increasing world-wide pressure Tuesday — to commute the death sentences for the Basques on one side and for two Russian Jews convicted of an airplane hijack plot on the other.

Appeals for clemency came from the Vatican, heads of state and trade unions.

* * *

European governments that spoke out against the death sentences and appealed to Spain for clemency included Britain, Israel, Switzerland, France, West Germany, Ireland, Italy, Sweden, Belgium, Austria, Norway, the Soviet Union and Yugoslavia.

Various organizations throughout the world, including the British Council of Churches, the British opposition Labor party, and the bishops of Denmark and Norway also sent telegrams to Franco on behalf of the Basques.

Basque sympathizers in major cities throughout Europe demonstrated against the verdict. In London, Cardiff, Glasgow, and Dublin, demonstrators settled in for long vigils outside Spanish embassies, bundling up under blankets against heavy sleet.

In Washington, the U.S. senate Tuesday night also protested death sentences handed out to the two Russian Jews and a congressman announced legislators from several countries plan to fly to Moscow to protest the treatment of Soviet Jewry.

In Ottawa, the Canadian government called in the Soviet ambassador Tuesday and delivered a formal protest against death sentences handed down to the two Russian Jews.

Six Lots Barred from Shelves

Imported Tuna Screened For Mercury

OTTAWA (CP) — Testing of all imported fish has resulted in six lots of tinned tuna being barred from the retail market because of mercury contamination, health authorities said Tuesday.

All were imported, either frozen for canning here or from Japanese or Cuban canners.

Conflicting news reports from Ottawa indicated domestic tuna was also involved, but this could not be confirmed.

A spokesman for the federal fisheries department inspection division in Vancouver elaborated on the official statement by explaining that although it might be possible some contaminated tuna could be on retail shelves now, it would not be a safety hazard.

"In the first place," he said, "the standards were set based on the assumption that a person would be eating a very large amount of tuna, as in Japan where fish and rice forms the diet of many people.

* * *

"But even if it were the sole source of diet, it would still not be a hazard because products that will be purchasable from now on will not be contaminated so the mercury would not be able to accumulate."

He explained it would not be possible to give brand names in the case of the Japanese tuna, at least, because the cans are unlabelled and importers who would label them would be purchasing from several different factories throughout the country.

He was unaware of any other sources of contaminated

Lewis Demands End to Anti-Terror Law

FLQ Trio Zips In, Out of Court

- FLQ member's book to be published by McClelland. Page 12

From CP, UPI

MONTREAL — Brothers Paul and Jacques Rose and Francis Simard were given formal notice Tuesday at a special coroner's inquest they are being held as material witnesses in the murder of Pierre Laporte, Quebec's former labor minister.

In a 30-second appearance — a formality — the three were told they are being held under warrants issued Nov. 5.

They are to be brought before the inquest when it resumes Monday.

In Ottawa, David Lewis, deputy NDP leader, called for immediate revocation of the government's anti-terrorist legislation following the Monday arrests of the FLQ suspects.

Lewis said "there is no longer any possible excuse for the Public Order Act to continue in force."

"I therefore call on the prime minister to discuss with the premier of Quebec the revocation of this act at the earliest possible date."

The New Democratic Party was the only party to oppose the government's "anti-terrorist" legislation.

Lewis
. . . "no excuse"

None of the three was handcuffed as they were brought one by one into the courtroom on the sixth floor of the Quebec provincial police headquarters where the coroner's inquest has been held.

Paul Rose, sporting a week-old beard, was dressed in a dirty reddish-brown sweater and dark slacks. His unkempt hair varied from reddish yellow in the middle to dark at the sides. His brother Jacques wore a blue shirt with blue jeans.

Simard, pale and gaunt, wearing a grey work shirt and dark slacks, also was unshaven.

Apart from Paul Rose who said something and was drowned out by Sessions Judge Jacques Trahan, none of them tried to speak. They were asked if they had a lawyer and Jacques Rose, the only one to smile, said he had none. Simard made no comments.

Reporters and workers from QPP headquarters were the only spectators.

Seven other persons, including Michel Viger, who rented a farmhouse where the Roses and Simard were found, also appeared Tuesday and are to testify Monday.

Viger, a 30-year-old accountant, rented the large white farmhouse in October and was picked up by police with the Roses and Simard.

B.C. Cabinet Accepts Isman Resignation

The B.C. cabinet has accepted the resignation of Provincial Court Judge Bernard Isman of Vancouver, who had been under suspension since August for alleged dealings with a woman suspected of prostitution and drug abuse.

The cabinet order made public Tuesday also rescinded the order that appointed him to the bench in 1963.

Isman, 63, was suspended Aug. 24.

* * *

The suspension was followed by a hearing into the matter by the seven-member B.C. Judicial Council, chaired by former provincial judge Cyril White, now chairman of the Workmen's Compensation Board.

The hearings were closed to the public after Isman's counsel said a woman who was a key witness would not appear if they were held in public.

Passengers Injured

DUNROBIN, Ont. (CP) — The eastbound Canadian National Super Continental passenger train was derailed near here Tuesday night and eight to 10 persons were reported injured.

Cause of the accident was not known.

But a special train was sent here from Ottawa, 20 miles to the southeast, to take the passengers there.

Kissing Disease Vaccine Close

CHICAGO (Reuter) — A team of medical researchers reported Tuesday a major development toward the production of a vaccine against infectious mononucleosis, often called the kissing disease.

The researchers from Northwestern University told the annual meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science that they had identified a protein from the red blood cells of sheep that may provide immunity from the disease.

Injected into chickens it stimulated the production of a chemical immunity that is identical to the same kind of immunity that humans get after recovering from a bout with mononucleosis, it was reported.

Woman Stabs Needler During Violence Study

CHICAGO (Reuter) — A symposium on crime, violence and social control achieved a violent touch Tuesday when a young heckler was stabbed in the arm by a woman with a knitting needle.

The incident occurred during a three-hour panel discussion at the annual meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science being held in three large hotels in Chicago.

Twelve persons entered the meeting room during the discussion and began interrupting and jeering the participants. They attempted to make the point that crime is not an individual behavior problem but the results of "political repression, racism and imperialism."

A woman in the audience, later identified as the wife of a delegate, who had been knitting, became so upset that she jabbed a needle into the arm of a protester in the aisle.

Hang On to Your Stetson

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The John B. Stetson Co., manufacturer of famous hats since 1865, announced Tuesday it will stop making hats in early 1971.

Norman Karps, executive vice-president, said:

"Despite the diligent efforts of management and the loyalty of our customers, the severe decline in the use of hats has made it economically unfeasible to continue the production of hats in our large Philadelphia plant."

Thus, the modern male's dislike of hats will bring an end to the Stetson hat, long identified with the rich history of the American West and worn by ranchers and oil millionaires, among others.

At one time the Stetson firm employed 5,000 workers at its Philadelphia plant, but today only 300 work there. Other plants are in Danbury, Conn., and New York City.
